Move To Drop Tax Nixed . . .

Solons Okay Hike In Food Tax Credit

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted Tuesday to raise the tax credit on food to $16, but rejected an effort to have the sales tax on food repealed altogether.

The Legislature advanced LB430, offered by Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers, on a 35-0 vote. Chambers had written the bill so the tax on food would be repealed, and he harshly criticized his colleagues, accusing them of bowing to special interests, when they amended it.

Chambers and others who favored repeal of the tax said lawmakers were giving in to the cities that ride "piggyback" on the food tax (Omaha, Lincoln and Bellevue) by adding 1% to the 2½% state tax to get local revenue.

To Seek Change

He said he would try to force changes in the bill before it faces a final vote.

If the bill becomes law, Nebraskans could claim a $16 tax credit next year to compensate for sales tax paid on food. They now get a $13 credit, and those who pay no income tax may claim a cash rebate.

Senators approved an amendment, offered by Grand Island Sen. Ralph Kelly, that would let parents of children who receive welfare claim the food tax exemption for the first time

It was at that point, when the bill had already been gutted so the tax would not be removed, that Chambers attacked his colleagues the hardest

Chambers chided them to throw the "crumb" Kelly suggested to the people.

'Sleazy Thingss'

"You've done all the sleazy things that you can," Chambers said, adding the senators had "taken care of the special interest groups," and "kowtowed to the governor."

Gov. J James Exon had for years said he favored removing the sales tax on food, but this year expressed some concern about loss of revenue that would have resulted from Chambers' original bill.

The Kelly amendment was adopted on a 26-22 vote.

"Special interest groups can get what they want," Chambers said, "but today the poor, the ignorant and the elderly have been tromped into the dirt."

Senators first amended the bill so that the State Board of Equalization would set tax credit levels, based on a formula including the Consumer Price Index, offered by Speaker Jules Burbach of Crofton.

They removed the Burbach amendment and put in a flat $16 credit, offered as an amendment by Gothenburg Sen. Herb Duis. That action came after Burbach and Omaha Sen. George Syas said the attorney general indicated the initial formula could be unconstitutional.

In debate Tuesday morning, Chambers and Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh noted that in 1967 the Legislature promised the public the sales tax paid on food would be returned.

Opposed By Omaha

Chambers and Cavanaugh said the tax repeal was being opposed by the City of Omaha, and Cavanaugh noted Omaha was "crying" about losing $3 million through the tax repeal but would find it "unthinkable" to make up the money by having corporations taxed.

Chambers argued that many people, especially the old and less educated, don't know how to apply for the tax credit. Thus, state coffers get a windfall they're not entitled to.

Chambers said Omaha city officials did not testify against the bill at its public hearing, but found "legislative assassins" to try to amend it.

'Cowardly Individuals'

Chambers said the Omaha officials behaved like "weak-kneed, weak, cowardly individuals."

Cavanaugh said the Legislature's promise to refund the sales tax paid on food "was a lie then and it's still lie."

"This is unquestionably and unarguable an unfair tax on food," Cavanaugh said.

Omaha Sen. Warren Swigart said Omaha would have no way to make up the $3 million it would lose if the tax were repealed

Draws Scoffs

Cavanaugh and Chambers scoffed at that suggestion, saying the money could be raised easily if lawmakers wanted to tax corporations instead of food.

Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis and Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch supported Chambers and the effort to repeal the tax altogether.

Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes said it was unfair to tax food while avoiding certain taxes on corporations that could bring in much more revenue.

Rebels Enter Phnom Penh

From Press Reports

Khmer Rouge insurgent forces fought to within three miles of downtown Phnom Penh Wednesday. Cambodia's acting President, Gen. Sak Sutsakhan, ordered a fight to the end.

From the southeast, insurgents pushed to within half a mile of the presidential palace whose last tenant, Marshal Lon Nol, is in exile in Hawaii.

The rebel attacks from the south and southeast also put them within half a mile of one of three of Phnom Penh's main power generators.

Pochentong Airport was still in government hands but since the rebels are at its edge no planes are flying support from it. The rebel radio reported they had captured the airport.

Associated Press dispatches from Phnom Penh said the rebels, firing Chinese-made AK47 rifles and rocket grenades, advanced quickly after seizing Takhmau six miles south of Phnom Penh.

The fighting for Takhmau left scores of civilians killed or wounded, according to the reports. They added that Phnom Penh remained calm despite the fighting in the outskirts.

Associated Press communications between Phnom Penh and Hong Kong went down at 5:45 A.M. CDT Tuesday but they were restored about 9:45 p.m. CDT. There are periodic breakdowns in the Phnom Penh-Hong Kong circuit, and the number has increased with the rebel pressure on the Cabodian capital.

AP dispatches before the communications breakdown said government troops told newsmen the insurgents were at the northern outskirts of the city. Six rebel rockets fell on a textile mill inside the western sector, they said, wounding two workers.

Khmer Rouge broadcasts monitored in Thailand said rebels had seized half a village less than two miles west of the heart of Phnom Pehn and controlled two-thirds of suburban Tuol Kauk, a mile northwest of the city's center.

Khmer Rouge commander Khieu Samphan called on "the officers and men of the Phnom Penh puppet troops to immediately lay down their arms and cross over to the national united front of Cambodia," a Peking broadcast monitored in Tokyo said. The Chinese news agency Hsinhua broadcast the appeal Tuesday but said it had been issued Sunday.

Government radio said nothing about the fighting but ordered shops and restaurants in Phnom Penh to close at 4 p.m. to prepare for a 5 p.m. curfew.

In South Vietnam, government forces ran into strong resistance when they attacked North Vietnamese positions outside Xuan Loc, the provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon where fighting has raged for a week.

Last reports before nightfall indicated the Xuan Loc battle was a standoff. Xuan Loc is the first significant place government troops have shown willingness to fight after giving up the northern three-fourths of the country without a fight.

Banners praising the stand of government forces at Xuan Loc and in Mekong Delta regions fluttered in the wind in edgy Saigon. But tension heightened in the capital after an attack on Bien Hoa air base 15 miles north of Saigon that set off a series of explosions at an ammunition dump early Tuesday.

Viet Cong sappers were reported to have made their way into the base after about 20 rounds of artillery fire struck the sprawling air facility. Some accounts said the barrage was from 130mm guns.

In Stockholm, Foreign Minister Sven Andersson said Sweden is advising Prince Norodom Sihanouk, titular leader of the Khmer Rouge, that it wants to open official relations with his Royal Cambodian Government of Unity. France has already recognized Sihanouk's government.

Sihanouk, in an interview with radio station Europe No. 1, said he is "counting on returning" after the Khmer Rouge defeat the Phnom Penh government that overthrew him five years ago. The prince, who is living in exile in Peking, said he is neither a Khmer Rouge nor Communist, "but it happens that the Khmer Rouge still recognize me as chief of state of Cambodia."

He added he did not want to get involved in disputes "with people whose ideology I do not share" and "if I'm independent, I run the risk one lovely day of having problems."

A Pentagon analyst, Erich von Marbod, told an interviewer that about $780 million worth of U.S.-supplied arms, ammunition and equipment was lost or destroyed in the retreat of government forces from the northern three-quarters of South Vietnam.

NAY . . . is what county clerk said to Howard, horse.

You Can't Marry A Nag

BOULDER, Colo.(AP)—Ros Howard rented a horse Tuesday and took it to the County Clerk's Office here.

He said he wanted a marriage license so he could marry the nag.

Howard said he was protesting record marriage licenses issued to homosexuals in this university town, but admitted it was more of a prank than a serious protest.

"If a boy can marry a boy and a girl can marry a girl, then why can't an old cowboy marry his favorite mare?" Howard asked.

But County Clerk Clela Rorex refused to issue the license because the couple had no blood test and the horse was only 8 years old, making parental consent necessary.

Besides, Miss Rorex said the district attorney advised her that marriage laws apply only to people not animals.

Earlier interpretations have held that Colorado laws do not require that persons be of the opposite sex to be married.

Howard said he was trying to make a point.

"I wanted to show these people something and ask where we are going. That seems to be a reasonable question," he said.

Discrepancy Found In Truckers' Taxes

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Trucking firms may be hauling a light load in terms of state fees and taxes, according to data in a state audit released Tuesday

A sampling of fees and property taxes paid by ten trucking firms for one year showed collectively they paid $54,979 less than they might have

The discrepancy arose when mileage figures truckers filed with the State Motor Vehicles Department as part of their proration application were compared with mileages reported to the State Department of Revenue for fuel taxes

Records Different

State auditors found that in 91% of the cases examined, mileage records filed with the two agencies did not correspond

In the ten cases where fees and property taxes were computed using both sets of mileage figures, the auditors said seven of the firms would have paid $69,340 more using the Revenue Department's figures, while three would have paid $14,361 less

The mileage reported to the State Department of Motor Vehicles is used to compute the percentage of registration fees and property taxes paid to Nebraska by trucking firms which haul freight interstate.

The percentage of total miles travelled in Nebraska is applied against the average mill levy for the state and the valuation of the truck fleet to compute taxes for interstate shippers. Consequently, the fewer miles travelled in Nebraska the lower the taxes.

Not Cross-Checked

Auditors said the Revenue Department's data has been available to the Motor Vehicles Department but has not been crosschecked. They said more employes are needed to do the job

State Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan and Vern Janssen, administrator of the proration program, disputed whether Nebraska was losing any fees and taxes

There could have been a loss, they acknowledged, but they said the Revenue Department's motor fuel mileage figures included intrastate truck operations. Property taxes on intrastate operations are paid at the county level and hence would not be reflected in the proration program's mileage figures.

Janssen said, "We've been trying to get this across to the auditors."

Findings Questioned

James Preston, executive director of the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association, said he was unaware of the audit report but questioned the findings.

"No carrier would be dumb enough to give one set of figures to one governmental agency and another set to some other agency," Preston said. "If they did, they would have been caught long ago

The auditors also found an 18% error rate, "significant" in their words in computing prorationed registration fees Incorrect valuations, proration percentages and fee totals were found in 35 of 187 registrations sampled

Auditors recommended Motor Vehicles either use computers for handling registrations or add some checks to uncover errors

More People Wanted

Again they said more staff is needed to tighten up the computations despite the fact the present staff is doing a "remarkable" job

Sullivan said he found the audit "helpful" in terms of pointing out the department's need for additional personnel

An added $75,000 has been requested for the coming fiscal year to give the agency the ability to audit firms

"Our biggest loss probably occurs because if a guy's cheating, he knows we're not checking," Sullivan said

Nebraska has a nine-member staff to deal with 280,000 buses and trucks, he said, while South Dakota has 12 full-time people to check 100,000

The proration program is expected to raise $9 million in 1975, he said

Drivers License Office At 47th, Baldwin Likely

Despite a neighborhood petition and protests from County Commissioner Robert Colin, the Lancaster County Board moved a step closer Tuesday to selecting a building at 47th and Baldwin Sts. as the new driver licensing office.

The board voted 2-1 to proceed with negotiations for the newly constructed building on the northeast corner of 47th and Baldwin Sts.

"The first time I tried to find the place I had to stop for gas; the second day I packed a sack lunch," said Colin, complaining that the proposed site was too far away.

Pushing for a more central location, Colin had suggested a building at 45th and O Sts.

But the O St. site would cost the county $4,000 more a year in rent, $15,000 more in initial remodeling costs and did not have enough parking spaces, according to Board Chairman Jan Gauger.

The 47th and Baldwin location also received a more favorable rating from City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

Richard E. Bowers presented the board with a petition containing signatures of more than 25 residents opposed to the 47th and Baldwin location.

Homeowners and residents in the neighborhood are afraid that the 200 cars per day coming to the office will saturate nearby on-street parking, Bowers said.

Selection of the proposed site, owned by Don Levey, is tied to the city's paving a nearby city-owned parking lot. The county would contract for about half the lot or 45 spaces, Mrs. Gauger said.

The more than year-long search for a new driver licensing office is linked to the fourth municipal courtroom. Moving the licensing office now housed in the County-City Building, will open up space to build the city's much needed fourth courtroom.

A. Escamilla Found Guilty In Pen Death

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Alvaro Escamilla, charged with the stabbing death of a Nebraska Penal Complex inmate, was found guilty of second degree murder by a Lancaster County District Court jury Tuesday evening

Escamilla, 30, of Scottsbluff, was charged with the killing of Luther W Wilson during an Oct 13, 1974 incident at the penitentiary in Lincoln.

Escamilla and Wilson were a homosexual couple, according to testimony during the week-long trial.

During closing statements, prosecution attorneys contended that the stabbing was done maliciously and was more than just a quarrel between the two men

The defense attorneys contended that the two eye witnesses were unreliable, lied to the jury and presented conflicting testimony.

The two witnesses, both inmates, were promised transfers to the Men's Reformatory, and the prosecution promised to write letters to one inmate's parole board if he testified, defense attorneys pointed out during the closing arguments

Sentencing on the second degree murder charge, which carries a penalty of at least 10 years, was deferred pending an investigation by the Adult Probation Department

Escamilla is currently serving a 50-year sentence for robbery in connection with the 1967 holdup of the Scottsbluff Ward-man Hotel

The sentence was stiff because a hotel clerk had her eyes gouged out during the robbery.

Farm Bill Agreed On, But It Faces Ford Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee agreed Tuesday on a $210 million emergency farm bill raising cotton, wheat and corn target prices and dairy price supports.

A presidential veto was a question. And the cost to consumers of the increase in supports for dairy prices remained in dispute.

Republican members of the conference committee who met with President Ford on Monday said he had agreed to look at their cost estimates for the total bill and had not decided whether to veto it. An aide to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Tuesday that Butz' previous position that he would recommend a veto remains unchanged.

The compromise measure must be passed by the House and Senate before it goes to Ford. The Senate is expected to consider it this week; the House, next week.

The compromise bill embodies the measure passed by the House, with some minor changes. The Senate had passed a bill that committee staff experts had estimated would cost $950 million.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the compromise bill was moderate and he did not think the inevitability of a veto is a correct assumption.

The bill would set 1975-crop target prices at 45 cents a pound for cotton, $2.25 a bushel for corn and $3.10 a bushel for wheat.

The government directly pays farmers for the difference, when the market falls, between the target price and the market price.

Cotton already is near its present target of 38 cents in some places, and the bill's bipartisan supporters say grain farmers, being urged to produce at full capacity, need assurance that the lower prices of the anticipated bumper crops will not bankrupt them.

Production loan rates under the measure would be set at $1.87 a bushel for corn, 38 cents a pound for cotton and $2.50 a bushel for wheat. Loan rates are the effective market floor, economists say.

Dairy price supports through March 31, 1976, would be set at 80 per cent of parity and adjusted every three months.

Although lower feed prices could reduce them, estimates by the staff show that support-price boosts would initially raise retail milk prices by half a cent a gallon, cheese by three-fifths a cent a pound and butter by seven-tenths a cent a pound. Administration estimates are double that.

By next March, that support level will have meant a 1.92-cent a gallon hike in retail milk prices, the staff said.

Current target prices are 38 cents for cotton, $1.38 for corn and $2.05 for wheat.

Most Industry Nationalized

Lisbon (UPI) — Portugal's leftwing rulers turned the country into Western Europe's most socialized nation Tuesday by nationalizing most basic industries and ordering the start of a fundamental land reform program.

"We believe we are on the road to the future, on our country's road to economic, political and social progress, on the road to liberty," Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves said.

The far-reaching nationalizations appeared to be primarily aimed at pacifying the country's rising labor unrest and disruptions that has seriously hampered Portugal's declining economy.

Government spokesmen said wage and price controls would be announced soon.

Goncalves said the state takeovers would include all transportation lines, electricity companies and firms involved in the petroleum and chemical industries.

The nationalization moves were decided on in the first working session of Portugal's new Communist-influenced cabinet, but were earlier approved by the military's powerful Revolutionary Council.

Discrepancy Found In Truckers' Taxes

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Trucking firms may be hauling a light load in terms of state fees and taxes, according to data in a state audit released Tuesday.

A sampling of fees and property taxes paid by ten trucking firms for one year showed collectively they paid $54,979 less than they might have.

The discrepancy arose when mileage figures truckers filed with the State Motor Vehicles Department as part of their proration application were compared with mileages reported to the State Department of Revenue for fuel taxes.

Records Different

State auditors found that in 91% of the cases examined, mileage records filed with the two agencies did not correspond.

In the ten cases where fees and property taxes were computed using both sets of mileage figures, the auditors said seven of the firms would have paid $69,340 more using the Revenue Department's figures, while three would have paid $14,361 less.

The mileage reported to the State Department of Motor Vehicles is used to compute the percentage of registration fees and property taxes paid to Nebraska by trucking firms which haul freight interstate.

The percentage of total miles travelled in Nebraska is applied against the average mill levy for the state and the valuation of the truck fleet to compute taxes for interstate shippers. Consequently, the fewer miles travelled in Nebraska the lower the taxes.

Not Cross-Checked

Auditors said the Revenue Department's data has been available to the Motor Vehicles Department but has not been crosschecked. They said more employes are needed to do the job.

State Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan and Vern Janssen, administrator of the proration program, disputed whether Nebraska was losing any fees and taxes.

There could have been a loss, they acknowledged, but they said the Revenue Department's motor fuel mileage figures included intrastate truck operations. Property taxes on intrastate operations are paid at the county level and hence would not be reflected in the proration program's mileage figures.

Janssen said, "We've been trying to get this across to the auditors."

Findings Questioned

James Preston, executive director of the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association, said he was unaware of the audit report but questioned the findings.

"No carrier would be dumb enough to give one set of figures to one governmental agency and another set to some other agency," Preston said. "If they did, they would have been caught long ago."

The auditors also found an 18% error rate, "significant" in their words, in computing prorationed registration fees. Incorrect valuations, proration percentages and fee totals were found in 35 of 187 registrations sampled.

Auditors recommended Motor Vehicles either use computers for handling registrations or add some checks to uncover errors.

More People Wanted

Again they said more staff is needed to tighten up the computations, despite the fact the present staff is doing a "remarkable" job.

Sullivan said he found the audit "helpful" in terms of pointing out the department's need for additional personnel.

An added $75,000 has been requested for the coming fiscal year to give the agency the ability to audit firms.

"Our biggest loss probably occurs because if a guy's cheating, he knows we're not checking," Sullivan said.

Nebraska has a nine-member staff to deal with 280,000 buses and trucks, he said, while South Dakota has 12 full-time people to check 100,000.

The proration program is expected to raise $9 million in 1975, he said.

Drivers License Office At 47th, Baldwin Likely

Despite a neighborhood petition and protests from County Commissioner Robert Colin, the Lancaster County Board moved a step closer Tuesday to selecting a building at 47th and Baldwin Sts. as the new driver licensing office.

The board voted 2-1 to proceed with negotiations for the newly constructed building on the northeast corner of 47th and Baldwin Sts.

"The first time I tried to find the place I had to stop for gas; the second day I packed a sack lunch," said Colin, complaining that the proposed site was too far away.

Pushing for a more central location, Colin had suggested a building at 45th and O Sts.

But the O St. site would cost the county $4,000 more a year in rent, $15,000 more in initial remodeling costs and did not have enough parking spaces, according to Board Chairman Jan Gauger.

The 47th and Baldwin location also received a more favorable rating from City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

Richard E. Bowers presented the board with a petition containing signatures of more than 25 residents opposed to the 47th and Baldwin location.

Homeowners and residents in the neighborhood are afraid that the 200 cars per day coming to the office will saturate nearby on-street parking, Bowers said.

Selection of the proposed site, owned by Don Levey, is tied to the city's paving a nearby city-owned parking lot. The county would contract for about half the lot or 45 spaces, Mrs. Gauger said.

The more than year-long search for a new driver licensing office is linked to the fourth municipal courtroom. Moving the licensing office now housed in the County-City Building, will open up space to build the city's much needed fourth courtroom.

A. Escamilla Found Guilty In Pen Death

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Alvaro Escamilla, charged with the stabbing death of a Nebraska Penal Complex inmate, was found guilty of second degree murder by a Lancaster County District Court jury Tuesday evening.

Escamilla, 30, of Scottsbluff, was charged with the killing of Luther W. Wilson during an Oct. 13, 1974, incident at the penitentiary in Lincoln.

Escamilla and Wilson were a homosexual couple, according to testimony during the week-long trial.

During closing statements, prosecution attorneys contended that the stabbing was done maliciously and was more than just a quarrel between the two men.

The defense attorneys contended that the two eye witnesses were unreliable, lied to the jury and presented conflicting testimony.

The two witnesses, both inmates, were promised transfers to the Men's Reformatory, and the prosecution promised to write letters to one inmate's parole board if he testified, defense attorneys pointed out during the closing arguments.

Sentencing on the second degree murder charge, which carries a penalty of at least 10 years, was deferred pending an investigation by the Adult Probation Department.

Escamilla is currently serving a 50-year sentence for robbery in connection with the 1967 holdup of the Scottsbluff Wardman Hotel.

The sentence was stiff because a hotel clerk had her eyes gouged out during the robbery.

Farm Bill Agreed On, But It Faces Ford Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee agreed Tuesday on a $210 million emergency farm bill raising cotton, wheat and corn target prices and dairy price supports.

A presidential veto was a question. And the cost to consumers of the increase in supports for dairy prices remained in dispute.

Republican members of the conference committee who met with President Ford on Monday said he had agreed to look at their cost estimates for the total bill and had not decided whether to veto it. An aide to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Tuesday that Butz' previous position that he would recommend a veto remains unchanged.

The compromise measure must be passed by the House and Senate before it goes to Ford. The Senate is expected to consider it this week; the House, next week.

The compromise bill embodies the measure passed by the House, with some minor changes. The Senate had passed a bill that committee staff experts had estimated would cost $950 million.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the compromise bill was moderate and he did not think the inevitability of a veto is a correct assumption.

The bill would set 1975-crop target prices at 45 cents a pound for cotton, $2.25 a bushel for corn and $3.10 a bushel for wheat.

The government directly pays farmers for the difference, when the market falls, between the target price and the market price.

Cotton already is near its present target of 38 cents in some places, and the bill's bipartisan supporters say grain farmers, being urged to produce at full capacity, need assurance that the lower prices of the anticipated bumper crops will not bankrupt them.

Production loan rates under the measure would be set at $1.87 a bushel for corn, 38 cents a pound for cotton and $2.50 a bushel for wheat. Loan rates are the effective market floor, economists say.

Dairy price supports through March 31, 1976, would be set at 80 per cent of parity and adjusted every three months.

Although lower feed prices could reduce them, estimates by the staff show that support-price boosts would initially raise retail milk prices by half a cent a gallon, cheese by three-fifths a cent a pound and butter by seven-tenths a cent a pound. Administration estimates are double that.

By next March, that support level will have meant a 1.92-cent a gallon hike in retail milk prices, the staff said.

Current target prices are 38 cents for cotton, $1.38 for corn and $2.05 for wheat.

Most Industry Nationalized

Lisbon (UPI) — Portugal's leftwing rulers turned the country into Western Europe's most socialized nation Tuesday by nationalizing most basic industries and ordering the start of a fundamental land reform program.

"We believe we are on the road to the future, on our country's road to economic, political and social progress, on the road to liberty," Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves said.

The far-reaching nationalizations appeared to be primarily aimed at pacifying the country's rising labor unrest and disruptions that has seriously hampered Portugal's declining economy.

Government spokesmen said wage and price controls would be announced soon.

Goncalves said the state takeovers would include all transportation lines, electricity companies and firms involved in the petroleum and chemical industries.

The nationalization moves were decided on in the first working session of Portugal's new Communist-influenced cabinet, but were earlier approved by the military's powerful Revolutionary Council.

According To Secretary Of Defense:

U.S. Power Essential To Freedom

New York (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Tuesday night that the United States will continue to play its role in supporting its allies despite setbacks in South Asia.

He warned that an attack by either East or West will bring "the full weight of American military power."

"The role of American military power in the preservation of freedom, not only in the western but in the eastern hemisphere, is indispensable," Schlesinger said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Overseas Press Club annual awards dinner.

"The current configuration of world power makes the United States the indispensable ingredient for the preservation of freedom. In the past, the United States has been described as 'the last, best hope of earth.' Indeed, many recognize, it is the only hope."

Readjustments had to be made, Schlesinger said, after "the tragic events in Southeast Asia — the prospective fall of all Cambodian cities . . . and the attempt by the Republic of Vietnam to stabilize its position . . . after the collapse of its forces and position in the northern two-thirds of the country."

Schlesinger said he could not predict how successful the Saigon attempt would be "but the Vietnamese deserve not only our hope for their success but our continued support."

"Though there is some fashionable tendency to find virtue in American weakness, let me underscore as sharply as I can: though virtue may be its own reward, it can never be its own defense."

Paraphrasing the late President John F. Kennedy's rallying call to Americans in another year, the defense secretary said:

"Tell them in other lands, not that the United States is prepared to go anywhere or to pay any price in supporting others, but that the United States will continue to play its proper role in the support of other nations, when those other countries effectively demonstrate both a will and a capacity for self-help."

He urged Americans not to infer too much from developments in Southeast Asia.

Only in Southeast Asia, Schlesinger said, hitting at congressional restrictions, is the United States "expressly prohibited by law from employing its military power."

"Elsewhere, by contrast, our treaty obligations, whether embodied in the mutual defense agreements with Japan and the Republic of Korea or in the North Atlantic Treaty, remain the highest law of the land. Our forces are deployed notably in Germany in support of our NATO allies.

"It will be understood in all nations, East and West, that an attack on our forces supporting the alliances will immediately bring to bear the full weight of American military power."

American society, Schlesinger said, "Now is clearly passing through a bad patch. Nonetheless make no mistake about it: this is a highly resilient society, perhaps pre-eminently so among the nations of the world."

According To President Of The U.S.:

U.S. To Emerge Stronger And Wiser

Washington (UPI) — President Ford said Tuesday America will emerge from its Indochinese ordeal stronger and wiser.

"We should not fall into the trap of blind nostalgia —of persuading ourselves that America's best years are behind us. There is a lot of negative talk like that going around," Ford told some 3,600 delegates to the 84th Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"I think it can be answered in one word: nonsense."

"Our experience in Indochina has been one of heroic sacrifices and great disappointments — I am convinced that we can and will emerge from this ordeal stronger and wiser as a nation . . ."

The delegates cheered Ford eight times. Loudest applause in Constitution Hall came when Ford said the price of security is keeping America militarily strong.

Ford said only by military might can America possess the strength to engage in detente with Russia and East-West talks on limiting nuclear arms.

He did not mention Israel by name. But he referred to it when he said: "If we are to sustain our ability to react appropriately to threats to our interest far from our shores, we may need to increase our already considerable ability to airlift troops and supplies long distances."

The speech contained one gesture of peace toward Congress. His prepared text blamed "some" congressmen for advocating military cuts that would give America "a weak posture." In delivering the speech, he omitted any mention of Congressmen doing any such thing.

The speech reflected Ford's announced concern that America must, beyond Vietnam, be strong to survive. "I promise you that no defense budget I submit to the Congress will ever sell us short nor shift that (East-West strategic arms) balance against America . . . Our pledge of allegiance is to one nation indivisible — not one nation, indefensible."

Britain To Borrow Much

LONDON (AP) — Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey announced Tuesday that Britain will have to borrow unprecedented sums of money abroad to stave off official bankruptcy. He ordered reduced spending and higher taxes on incomes and items ranging from beer to cars.

Healey told a tense House of Commons the deficit for the fiscal year that began April 5 will be $21.6 billion while the higher taxes and spending cuts will total $4.2 billion. The budget is $132 billion.

Britain, whose balance of payments deficit ran $9.1 billion last year after oil prices were quadrupled, now has only $7.1 billion in official reserves in the Bank of England.

The expected borrowing amounts to about 20 per cent of the $108 billion gross national product. The U.S. deficit of $70 billion is less than 7 per cent of a GNP of more than $1 trillion.

Healey called his budget with its higher taxes "a hard one for all of us" and said it was necessitated by the "harsh reality that Britain has been living beyond her means."

Committee Tentatively Agrees On $200 Million In Aid

Washington (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee tentatively agreed Tuesday on a $200-million humanitarian aid authorization for South Vietnam.

Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said the money could be used also for military assistance if required to protect withdrawal of Americans in an emergency.

Sparkman said the committee will consult with administration officials on the tentative draft and meet again late Wednesday to take formal action.

The committee agreement followed acknowledgement by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that the U.S. embassy in Saigon has been instructed to reduce the number of Americans in South Vietnam to an essential minimum.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said the withdrawal of Americans is going "very well" but the committee wants to see assurance that the plan is working before taking final action.

Sparkman said there was nothing in the draft bill that would prevent military protection for the evacuation of some South Vietnamese, but no large-scale evacuation is contemplated.

He said food, medicine and other services are among items in the humanitarian aid package.

Although the President would be given discretion as to how the money is used, committee members said weapons assistance to South Vietnamese government forces is not contemplated.

A separate administration request for $722 million in military aid to South Vietnam is under consideration by the Senate Armed Services Committee, with decision promised by Wednesday night by Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

U.S. officials said privately the number of Americans in South Vietnam would be cut to about 1,000 within a week or two. Kissinger told the Senate Appropriations Committee there are "well below 5,000" currently in the beleagured country.

Kissinger said there had been no threats from the South Vietnamese government to deny Americans the right to depart from the country if additional military aid is not forthcoming.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger told the Armed Services Committee, "They are not being held hostage by the South Vietnamese government. There is concern about the possible decay of the situation in Saigon and the reaction of the populace."

Schlesinger said American citizens have been "trickling out" of Saigon for the last week and that Americans remaining in South Vietnam have been reduced to 3,850 persons.

He said this includes 750 U.S. government employes and about 1,000 women and children "who are American in origin."

Schlesinger said that under the best of circumstances, the $722-million military aid request can sustain South Vietnam only through July 1, the end of the fiscal year.

Same Age Must Apply In Child Support Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that state laws treating women as adults at an earlier age than men in child support cases are unconstitutional.

The court's 8-1 decision specifically stopped short, however, of ruling that all legal classifications based on sex are "inherently suspect."

Such a ruling, long sought by women's rights advocates, would put sex discrimination on the same legal basis as race discrimination. It would ease the way for attacks on a wide range of laws making distinctions between the sexes.

The court, ruling on narrower grounds, struck down a Utah law under which a divorced father was required to continue support payments to a son until age 21 but to a daughter only until 18.

The sex discrimination case was sent back to Utah courts to determine whether 18 or 21 should be the age of majority for the support payments for both sexes.

Arkansas is believed to be the only other state with such a law, but the decision could affect statutes in a number of states making different kinds of distinction on a basis of sex as well as age.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun spoke for the court.

"We find it unnecessary in this case to decide whether a classification based on sex is inherently suspect," he said.

"A child, male or female, is still a child. No longer is the female destined solely for the home and the rearing of the family, and only the male for the marketplace and the world of ideas.

"If the female is not to be supported so long as the male, she hardly can be expected to attend school as long as he does, and bring her education to an end earlier concides with the role-typing society has long imposed."

Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented on procedural grounds, saying the constitutional issue had not been properly framed for decision.

Justice William O. Douglas participated in the ruling although he missed hearing arguments on the case because he was hospitalized for a stroke.

Shipments By Rock Island May Go On After May 15

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rock Island Lines, undergoing financial reorganization, may continue its freight service beyond a court-established May 15 embargo date, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

Judge Frank J. McGarr of U. S. District Court lifted the embargo he imposed last month at the request of William M. Gibbons, who was appointed by McGarr as trustee in charge of reorganizing the railroad.

Gibbons' attorney said the judge's action means there is now no time limit on the railroad's operations.

The attorney, Nicholas G. Manos, said many shippers had believed the railroad would stop freight service May 15.

McGarr said the May 15 date was tentatively set "to see where we stood" and not necessarily to cease operations.

The Rock Island operates freight and commuter service in 13 Midwestern and Southern states.

Industrial Output, Car Sales Decline

By United Press International

Depressing figures on the state of the economy came Tuesday from the government and the auto industry.

The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production in March — the output of factories, mines and utilities — showed a decline for the sixth consecutive month. The nation's automakers said new car sales for the first 10 days of April were the poorest for the period in 14 years.

The Fed said, however, the March drop was less than the 2 6% decline reported in February as well as the decreases in the preceding three months.

In another leavening note, the Fed added that the output of consumer goods during the month showed a rise for the first time since last summer, sparked by a rise in automobile assemblies of 24%.

General Motors and Ford said car sales for the first third of April followed the downward trend of March with the end of the industry rebate program

GM delivered 86,188 new domestic cars, Ford 48,670 and Chrysler 19,803 American Motors said it sold 8,529 cars, a drop of 22% from a year ago

Catcalls greeted Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend and President John A. Riccardo at the company's annual meeting and many stockholders called for their resignations, saying the company's performance was "the poorest" of any U.S auto producers

Chrysler had a record $73 5 million loss in the final 1974 quarter and its loss for the first quarter of this year is expected to be even greater.

Townsend, however, told stockholders he expected the company to show a profit by the end of the year

Jim Casbar, head of a United Auto Workers local and a Chrysler stockholder, said: "How long can Chrysler stay in business showing these deficits?"

In Washington, UAW President Leonard Woodcock called for fast government action to create jobs for the unemployed.

Woodcock testified before a House public works subcommittee in support of a proposal to provide $5 billion for new jobs. He said one of every eight Americans has serious job and earnings problems and that government aid must be provided speedily. Approval of such a program also would give a lift to the economy, he said

N.Y. Times Summary

Energy Meeting Breaks Down

Paris — A preparatory meeting in Paris for an international energy conference this summer broke down in disagreement on the agenda and other terms The United States, the European Economic Community and Japan insisted that it focus on energy and related economic problems, while four oil producers — Algeria, Saudi Arabia, Venezuela and Iran — and three developing countries — Zaire, Brazil and India — demanded addressing the whole range of demands of developing countries for a new international economic order

Beirut Violence Claims Nearly 100

Beirut — Gunfire, rockets and bombs in the Beirut area took an unofficial toll of close to 100 lives in the third day of fighting between Palestinian guerrillas and the armed militia of Lebanon's Phalangist Party. The survival of Lebanon's coalition government was uncertain The Phalangist leader has opposed Palestinian raids which have brought Israeli retaliation.

House OKs Jobless Benefits Bill

Washington — The House approved a catchall $12 billion supplemental appropriations bill, which includes $5 billion in benefits for jobless workers receiving federal and state unemployment compensation. The funds would be available for use until October, 1976, rather than October, 1977, as the Ford administration had requested so as to accelerate jobless aid

Defense Rests In Connally Case

Washington — The defense rested its case in the bribery trial of John B Connally after the former secretary of the treasury conceded that his memory was flawed, but insisted that he had never accepted a $10,000 payoff He maintained he had been ill-prepared when he gave some "mistaken" testimony in 1973 and 1974 investigations.

Sikkim Votes For India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Citizens of the Himalayan kingdom of Sikkim voted overwhelmingly Tuesday in favor of merger with India and abolition of their 300-year-old monarchy.

While India and China clashed verbally over the country, the Sikkimese voted 59,637 to 1,496 for Indian statehood and the ouster of their chogyal, or ruler, Palden Thondup Namgyal, who was under Indian army guard in his Gangtok Palace.

The 51-year-old chogyal, whose wife is the American socialite Hope Cooke now living in New York with her children, declared the special election "illegal and unconstitutional"

The results showed that more than 60 per cent of the total electorate of 97,000 had voted in the hastily arranged referendum

Kazi Lhendup Dorji, the pro-Indian chief minister of the 2,745-square-mile nation bordering Tibet, cabled the results of Monday's balloting to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and asked her "to make an immediate response and accept this decision."

As the ballots were being counted, Peking accused India of trying to annex Sikkim by force.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi replied by reminding the Chinese of their takeover of Tibet and stating that India was only responding to the popular wishes of the Sikkimese.

Toward A Broad Appeal

President Ford paddled upstream against the deep conservative current which winds through his party once again this week when he took a strong stand in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Ford, like others before him, is finding out that it is easier to be ideologically pure in the Congress than in the White House.

In a speech to the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year, Ford reminded his audience that his support for the ERA remained constant. He further remarked that the constitutional amendment wasn't getting its due, that what should be serious consideration has "degenerated into frivolous non-issues." (We always had that feeling whenever the Nebraska Legislature debated the ERA, especially when ex-Speaker Proud addressed the subject).

But Ford's consistency with regard to the ERA is only of peripheral significance if the main subject is politics.

And in this regard, we find a conservative congressman becoming a moderate president despite his prior overall record.

The name of the game Ford is playing is "broaden the base." This is a game which strict conservative GOP theoreticians despise. It is their contention that the party can (and has) capitalized on the inherent conservatism of Americans by remaining true to conservative principles and attitudes.

Ford is of the persuasion that the Republican Party needs to broaden its appeal to include diverse elements of Americana if it is to regain strength.

Thus we find a black, a woman and a moderate, professional Democrat in the Cabinet. And Ford strongly supporting ERA as President, when a prudent conservative course would have him standing silent on the subject.

It is courageous of him to try to broaden the appeal of what has always been a rather narrow-interest party. Whether he can create that new American majority which Richard Nixon was in easy reach of before he fell is entirely a different matter and most uncertain.

Nebraska's Last Stand?

Speaker Jules Burbach's trip to Washington to negotiate notwithstanding, we think it is futile in the long run to make a Custer-style last stand against the feds.

Especially over the issue of motorcycle helmets.

The bill was killed earlier by the Legislature and revived again Tuesday for further action on a 28-14 vote. In this instance, cooler heads prevailed.

If the senators decide to again kill the bill requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets, and the federal government makes good its promise to withhold federal highway construction and safety money, a fat lot of good it will have done to be so independent.

After all, it would be our own money we would be losing. And not for a matter of very great importance.

And should the state show its independence on this issue would we be any better off in the future? Probably not. The next time the state of Nebraska probably would lose more money which originally came from its citizens.

The remedy, as we see it, has to be applied at the federal level. Congress has to quit writing strings-attached programs.

As for LB328, the motorcycle helmet bill, it should pass on its merits as a safety measure. Standing independent of the federal-state argument, it has merit.

Advice Not To Be Heeded

One part of the Bruckner report on Lincoln police procedures which should be disregarded by one and all is the rather curious and unnecessary assertion by Bruckner and his assistant that a person can drink more alcohol than he thinks to have, in Bruckner's words, "a pretty good time" and still not become legally drunk.

The assistant, Bill Blake, states in the report that he drank six ounces of vodka in 45 minutes and 20 minutes after his last drink tested at .081 — under the legal limit. Blake said he believes he was too drunk to drive, but still he was legal. Bruckner said he tested .003 on the gas chromatograph after taking two vodka martinis (four ounces) and a small steak sandwich in a one-hour period. Bruckner was well below the .10 legal limit for intoxication, obviously.

But what kind of showing is this? Is it an invitation to challenge fate and the Lincoln police after six ounces of vodka and maybe "just one more" within an hour's time. Can you really drink "a lot" and not get legally drunk?

Alcohol affects different folks differently. It appears as if Bruckner and Blake can handle it, but we think that there are probably many people who ought not to be behind the wheel after six ounces of vodka in 45 minutes.

It is a disservice to suggest that people can drink more, have fun, and not risk accidents or arrest.

TOM WICKER

Simply More Of The Same

NEW YORK — The most dismaying thing about President Ford's foreign policy speech was not his call for $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam, since there is little chance Congress will provide anything like that sum. Rather, it was what the entire speech suggested about the man himself, his view of the world, his brand of national leadership.

In the first place, the speech was clearly the basic work of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. It resounded with Kissinger's long-held views and included all his standard positions — for example, his opposition to the restrictions Congress wrote into the Soviet trade bill and imposed on aid to Turkey. Even the doubled demand for military aid to South Vietnam is reported to reflect the Kissinger view rather than that of some of Ford's White House advisers.

This is not to suggest that Kissinger's ideas are necessarily bad, but that in the Ford administration they seem to be virtually unchallenged. Competent accounts tell us, by contrast, that the interplay of ideas and knowledge between Kissinger and Richard Nixon, whose great interest was in foreign affairs, greatly benefitted their policy making — at least in pre-Watergate days.

In this administration, however, Kissinger seems to have no such sharpening and refreshing contact with a knowledgeable chief, or even with his cabinet peers. That is bad for him, since it not only leaves him unchallenged intellectually but allows him to remain fixed in outmoded or unrealistic positions. It is worse for Gerald Ford, because it leaves him not really in charge of his own administration, and dependent on one fallible man.

The foreign policy speech derived from this relationship certainly lacked the least spark of originality. Searching its arid paragraphs from beginning to end, one will not find a new idea, a fresh insight, a novel position — not even a new way of stating a familiar case. But restatements of the established cliches of an inflexible American policy were hardly what the nation was looking for in what Ford himself called "a time of testing and a time of change."

Nixon and Kissinger, in more creative days, put an end to the Cold War era. Events in recent weeks have finally brought near to a close what might be called the Vietnam era of American policy. Some new chapter in the old Middle East story is about to open. The related questions of energy and economics may be interacting to change the very nature of the 20th-Century world. Much of that world already holds the United States in distrust, not for its power but for its uses of power.

But to hear Ford, speaking for Kissinger, talk of the world in this foreign policy speech, a listener would scarcely have known any of that. Instead, he was given the old preoccupation with Southeast Asia, the old concern with military force, the established view of the world as a place to be arranged on the American plan, the familiar fixation on "national security" as narrowly defined by the CIA and the defense budget.

In a time of abject starvation in many nations, for example, Ford did not even mention the so-called Third World, and offered one short and generalized paragraph about food questions, in which this country plays such a major part. Thus was missed a major opportunity to present a new initiative, one that for once would have shown the United States to the world in a humanitarian rather than an enforcer's role.

This example may be particularly apt, because it focuses on the question of what part the nation should play in a rapidly changing world rather than on whether it should play a part. Isolationism and interventionism are not two necessary and exclusive alternatives; between them there is a vast area for creative involvement in the relationships of men and nations.

How the President of the United States sees that opportunity, the direction in which his leadership would take us in the last quarter of this century of unceasing change — nothing like that appeared in the Ford-Kissinger speech, which instead was devoted essentially to more of the same.

Nor did the speech evidence much understanding of one of the essential lessons of the Vietnam experience — that a president cannot long sustain a failing policy merely by proclaiming a need for national unity in its support. The task of a president is to justify his policy and persuade people to believe in it. If he can do neither, the fault is more with him, or his policy, or both, than with a people who have seldom failed to support policies that made sense to them.

WASHINGTON — Around the world, there are many, many political parties with highly misleading names. Australia's Liberal Party is actually conservative; France's Radicals are quite sedate; Scandinavian Centre Party voters are pretty far left, and so forth.

Now, alas, the U.S. Democratic Party is bucking hard to be admitted to that dubious list. The name "Democratic," you will remember, is a creature of Andrew Jackson's era. Until then, the party name was "Democratic-Republican" or sometimes just "Republican."

ANDY JACKSON

But Andrew Jackson believed in the American people, and he wanted a name that would demonstrate that faith. Unfortunately, the circa 1975 Democratic Party is doing its level (or should we say "elitist") best to make that honorable name into a political lie.

☆ ☆ ☆

No sooner was the ink dry on national polls showing rank-and-file Democratic preference for the wrong presidential candidate than party leaders decided the people cannot be trusted. The 1976 presidential primaries must be weeded out, aborted, or stultified so that the "Democratic" Convention can be kept in trustworthy hands.

And so it goes. I have accumulated various reports of this inglorious task. They would bring tears to the eyes of Democrats like Andrew Jackson, William Jennings Bryan, Al Smith and Harry Truman.

In Michigan, party leaders are mulling a primary repealer to block another George Wallace victory. In New Mexico, the legislature has voted to abolish the primary and revert to the old system of giving party conventions control of delegate selection. The North Carolina legislature is considering a similar proposal, and the Democratic Party's liberal state leadership is urging a like course in Tennessee.

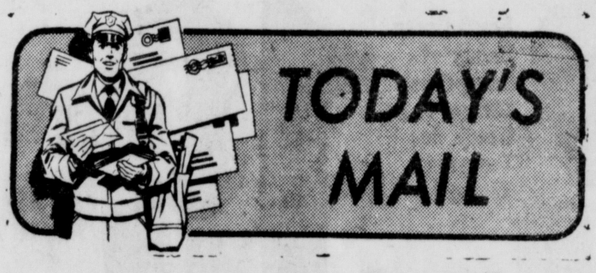

Some Maryland Democrats are also contemplating a primary repealer — for the second time. Back in 1968, Maryland Democrats scotched their primary because Wallace had done so well in 1964 (45%). They scheduled a primary again in 1972, but Wallace won it in a landslide.

In New Hampshire, where the primary is sacrosanct, Democratic leaders have taken still another tack. They have circulated a proposal for an "issueless" primary in which specific or divisive subjects would be avoided. Issues would be put forward only in broad, general terms. All of the Democratic presidential hopefuls have reportedly agreed, save for George Wallace.

But it would be incorrect to give the idea that primary repealer tactics are aimed solely at George Wallace. They are not. They are also aimed at the stirring political ambitions of Southern and big-city black communities. This June, black Georgia State Senator Julian Bond is expected to announce a presidential candidacy designed to give black voters a rallying point in various primaries so that they may make their weight felt in the 1976 convention. However, if many state primary laws are repealed, then party establishment-controlled conventions may be counted on to select a much less assertive breed of black delegate.

Perhaps the Democratic legislatures in Lansing, Annapolis, Nashville, Raleigh and Tallahassee can be persuaded to keep their presidential primaries intact. If not, they ought to have the decency to simultaneously cancel their Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners.

It Is Our Shame

Lincoln, Neb.

Your editorial, "Not Our Shame", in the Thursday, April 3, Star is the most calloused reiteration of the doves' philosophy of "Let Cambodia and South Vietnam go down the drain; it is not our responsibility and there is no justification for the domino theory as far as these countries are concerned, anyway."

You state that innocent people are being abandoned and slaughtered, as they have been for 40 years. Probably true, but because it has been going on for 40 years, does that justify its continuation?

You state it is not our shame that Thieu's troops collapsed, scattered and ran. Are you sure it is not our shame? Had we attempted to defeat communism rather than contain it, would South Vietnam and Cambodia be in the condition they are today? Would Thieu's troops have disintegrated if they thought there was some support for their resistance against any enemy whose political intent is to rule the world?

You state that the first hawk should be asked about another $500 million. What about asking the doves who wanted peace at any price and were willing to abandon Indochina to a communist takeover what they see in the mirror?

The blame for the collapse of the South Vietnamese army is not President Ford's or Congress' or even former President Nixon's. It is the blame of the American people, a people who would not exist today if it had not been for foreign intervention in our Revolutionary War, a people who have become so self-centered and indifferent to the others that they will stand by when a fellow citizen is being attacked and murdered and will not lend a helping hand.

You speak of the guilt of the hawks. Is it possible that those who labeled themselves doves feel no guilt when they see and read of the death and destruction that exist in South Vietnam today and will continue as long as an unmerciful invader absorbs more of their country?

You accept communism for the agrarian peasants of southeast Asia and state we are foolish to continue to resist it. Do we abandon resistance to communism when it becomes a major factor in the U.S.?

Yes, we are out; perhaps we should stay out; yes, we will feel sorry for the innocents, but sorrow does not spare the lives of those caught up in the throes of conflict and feeling sorry neither justifies our disregard for the plight of this nation or our failure to honor our commitment.

It was my first impulse to question much of your editorial and say nothing. But this attitude of no commitment has become so prevalent in America today that it has contributed to a low point in this nation's almost 200 years of existence.

What about the 921 U.S. servicemen still classified as missing in Vietnam as well as the over 1,100 known dead whose remains have not been recovered because North Vietnam did not honor their commitment in the Paris peace agreement? Does the abandonment of Vietnam meet this nation's obligation to the bereaved survivors of these men?

Too Few Are Concerned

Omaha, Neb.

I was favorably impressed with the editorial in The Star of April 7 concerning the trial of John Connolly and the accusation of his accepting a bribe. How true that avarice has no compunctions.

All this is relatively compared to the hundreds of millions of dollars profits of the several oil industries around the first of the year, while the price of petroleum products continues to increase to the detriment of the citizenry. It appears that too few Americans are concerned by the shenanigans of men in high places or of vast wealth.

MAX MARSHALL

JACK ANDERSON

She Hated The Apron

WASHINGTON — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, twice a widow, won't inherit the millions that the press has been writing about. But she has been quietly laying aside a little cash for the future by selling her wardrobe and auctioning off other possessions as she tires of them.

Associates of the late Aristotle Onassis say he was superstitious about wills. At this writing, they have found none. His Byzantine, billion-dollar empire has been left in a corporate tangle that Greek and American lawyers are trying to straighten out.

But almost certainly, the associates say, Jackie will wind up with little more than the $3 million she received under a written, premarital agreement. Sources close to the shipping tycoon's financial affairs say the money was delivered to her in tax-free bonds after the marriage.

The fabulous wealth which has been attributed to Jackie has always eluded her, say close friends. Her swashbuckling father, "Black Jack" Bouvier, left her no inheritance worth mentioning.

After President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas, the young widow collected about $200,000 a year for five years from a trust fund, a family member told us. On October 20, 1968, the day she was married to Onassis, the trust fund reverted to her two children and her own payments stopped.

The following week, she asked the Treasury Department also to discontinue the $10,000 annual pension she had been collecting as the widow of a former president. "I hope you will consider this as a personal request, made for personal reasons," she wrote. Under the law, she would have lost the pension, anyway, after her remarriage.

The loss of all personal income, according to friends, was one reason she pressed Onassis for a prenuptial contract. She simply had to have some money of her own, she reportedly pleaded. Ari also gave her a $20,000 monthly allowance, picked up most of her bills and showered her with gifts.

"Jackie had a charming little rule," confided one friend, "that Ari had to bring back a present from every part of the world he visited. Once, all he brought her was a simple apron from Africa. She was livid."

JACKIE
. . . always in blue jeans . . .

He was also generous to her children, giving Caroline a sailboat and John a jukebox among other presents. Once, John's pet rabbit was flown across the Atlantic to him in the care of an Olympic Airways pilot, who kept the bunny in the cockpit with him.

Intimates claim Onassis also flew hot-dogs for the children all the way from New York City to his Greek island. Since he had a weakness for New York red-hots himself, say our source, he also indulged in this extravagance.

Speaking through aide Nancy Tuckerman, Jackie refused to discuss her financial affairs, but, curiously, denied the hot dog story.

As we have reported earlier, Ari became irritated over his wife's heavy spending and cracked down on her budget. "He put her on a short leash," explained a friend.

Associates recall hearing Onassis gripe about a $9,000 bill for gowns from Valentino's of Rome. "What does she do with all the clothes," he exploded. "I never see her in anything but blue jeans."

We have found out. After wearing her costly garments once or twice, sometimes not at all, Jackie would resell them and squirrel away the cash. Her favorite resell house, Encore of New York City, did a steady business in Jackie's slightly used and sometimes new clothing.

She peddled everything from coats, suits and gowns to pocketbooks, blouses and slacks. The labels, according to our sources, were the best: Yves St. Laurent, Valentino's of Rome, Halston.

Generally, she would demand a fixed price; other times she would accept whatever the market would bear. Once, it took Encore six months to sell a white coat, with a Valentino's label, at the price Jackie demanded.

Apparently, nothing was too trivial for her to auction off. She sold everything from worn leather picture frames to exquisite furniture, according to witnesses, at such fashionable auction houses as New York City's William Doyle Galleries and Sotheby Parke Bernet's 84th Street branch.

Only last January, William Doyle Galleries sold a couple dozen items belonging to Jackie, including her son John's old nursery furniture. An old chair with a Choate School emblem, worth no more than $25, went for $300 when the auctioneer mentioned that it had once belonged to President Kennedy.

Jackie had been selling her used clothing, it turns out, ever since she opened her first charge account as Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Mary Gallagher, who used to keep their books, reports that Jackie's clothing was "resold under my name and home address. As the various items were sold, Encore's check would come to me and I would deposit it in my personal account. At the same time, I would write out a check for the same amount to be deposited in Jackie's account."

Once, Ms. Gallagher took a fancy to a blue coat, which Jackie hoped to sell for $65. Jackie gave her the coat, and Ms. Gallagher wrote out a $65 check. "She told me to deposit it in her bank account," relates Ms. Gallagher. But on other occasions, she says, Jackie would be in a "generous mood" and give her old clothes. One example was a red maternity dress, which the bookkeeper couldn't use but which the resell houses wouldn't accept.

For the beautiful Jackie, although she spent her husband's money recklessly, was parsimonious with her own.

In New Mexico, the legislature has voted to abolish the primary and revert to the old system of giving party conventions control of delegate selection. The North Carolina legislature is considering a similar proposal, and the Democratic Party's liberal state leadership is urging a like course in Tennessee.

Some Maryland Democrats are also contemplating a primary repealer — for the second time. Back in 1968, Maryland Democrats scotched their primary because Wallace had done so well in 1964 (45%). They scheduled a primary again in 1972, but Wallace won it in a landslide.

In New Hampshire, where the primary is sacrosanct, Democratic leaders have taken still another tack. They have circulated a proposal for an "issueless" primary in which specific or divisive subjects would be avoided. Issues would be put forward only in broad, general terms. All of the Democratic presidential hopefuls have reportedly agreed, save for George Wallace.

But it would be incorrect to give the idea that primary repealer tactics are aimed solely at George Wallace. They are not. They are also aimed at the stirring political ambitions of Southern and big-city black communities. This June, black Georgia State Senator Julian Bond is expected to announce a presidential candidacy designed to give black voters a rallying point in various primaries so that they may make their weight felt in the 1976 convention. However, if many state primary laws are repealed, then party establishment-controlled conventions may be counted on to select a much less assertive breed of black delegate.

Perhaps the Democratic legislatures in Lansing, Annapolis, Nashville, Raleigh and Tallahassee can be persuaded to keep their presidential primaries intact. If not, they ought to have the decency to simultaneously cancel their Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners.

Simply More Of The Same

NEW YORK — The most dismaying thing about President Ford's foreign policy speech was not his call for $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam, since there is little chance Congress will provide anything like that sum. Rather, it was what the entire speech suggested about the man himself, his view of the world, his brand of national leadership.

In the first place, the speech was clearly the basic work of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. It resounded with Kissinger's long-held views and included all his standard positions — for example, his opposition to the restrictions Congress wrote into the Soviet trade bill and imposed on aid to Turkey. Even the doubled demand for military aid to South Vietnam is reported to reflect the Kissinger view rather than that of some of Ford's White House advisers.

This is not to suggest that Kissinger's ideas are necessarily bad, but that in the Ford administration they seem to be virtually unchallenged. Competent accounts tell us, by contrast, that the interplay of ideas and knowledge between Kissinger and Richard Nixon, whose great interest was in foreign affairs, greatly benefitted their policy making — at least in pre-Watergate days.

In this administration, however, Kissinger seems to have no such sharpening and refreshing contact with a knowledgeable chief, or even with his cabinet peers. That is bad for him, since it not only leaves him unchallenged intellectually but allows him to remain fixed in outmoded or unrealistic positions. It is worse for Gerald Ford, because it leaves him not really in charge of his own administration, and dependent on one fallible man.

The foreign policy speech derived from this relationship certainly lacked the least spark of originality. Searching its arid paragraphs from beginning to end, one will not find a new idea, a fresh insight, a novel position — not even a new way of stating a familiar case. But restatements of the established cliches of an inflexible American policy were hardly what the nation was looking for in what Ford himself called "a time of testing and a time of change."

☆ ☆ ☆

Nixon and Kissinger, in more creative days, put an end to the Cold War era. Events in recent weeks have finally brought near to a close what might be called the Vietnam era of American policy. Some new chapter in the old Middle East story is about to open. The related questions of energy and economics may be interacting to change the very nature of the 20th-Century world. Much of that world already holds the United States in distrust, not for its power but for its uses of power.

But to hear Ford, speaking for Kissinger, talk of the world in this foreign policy speech, a listener would scarcely have known any of that. Instead, he was given the old preoccupation with Southeast Asia, the old concern with military force, the established view of the world as a place to be arranged on the American plan, the familiar fixation on "national security" as narrowly defined by the CIA and the defense budget.

In a time of abject starvation in many nations, for example, Ford did not even mention the so-called Third World, and offered one short and generalized paragraph about food questions, in which this country plays such a major part.

Thus was missed a major opportunity to present a new initiative, one that for once would have shown the United States to the world in a humanitarian rather than an enforcer's role.

This example may be particularly apt, because it focuses on the question of what part the nation should play in a rapidly changing world rather than on whether it should play a part. Isolationism and interventionism are not two necessary and exclusive alternatives; between them there is a vast area for creative involvement in the relationships of men and nations.

How the President of the United States sees that opportunity, the direction in which his leadership would take us in the last quarter of this century of unceasing change — nothing like that appeared in the Ford-Kissinger speech, which instead was devoted essentially to more of the same.

Nor did the speech evidence much understanding of one of the essential lessons of the Vietnam experience — that a president cannot long sustain a failing policy merely by proclaiming a need for national unity in its support. The task of a president is to justify his policy and persuade people to believe in it. If he can do neither, the fault is more with him, or his policy, or both, than with a people who have seldom failed to support policies that made sense to them.

It Is Our Shame

Lincoln, Neb.

Your editorial, "Not Our Shame", in the Thursday, April 3, Star is the most calloused reiteration of the doves' philosophy of "Let Cambodia and South Vietnam go down the drain; it is not our responsibility and there is no justification for the domino theory as far as these countries are concerned, anyway."

You state that innocent people are being abandoned and slaughtered, as they have been for 40 years. Probably true, but because it has been going on for 40 years, does that justify its continuation?

You state it is not our shame that Thieu's troops collapsed, scattered and ran. Are you sure it is not our shame? Had we attempted to defeat communism rather than contain it, would South Vietnam and Cambodia be in the condition they are today? Would Thieu's troops have disintegrated if they thought there was some support for their resistance against any enemy whose political intent is to rule the world?

You state that the first hawk should be asked about another $500 million. What about asking the doves who wanted peace at any price and were willing to abandon Indochina to a communist takeover what they see in the mirror?

The blame for the collapse of the South Vietnamese army is not President Ford's or Congress' or even former President Nixon's. It is the blame of the American people, a people who would not exist today if it had not been for foreign intervention in our Revolutionary War, a people who have become so self-centered and indifferent to the others that they will stand by when a fellow citizen is being attacked and murdered and will not lend a helping hand.

You speak of the guilt of the hawks. Is it possible that those who labeled themselves doves feel no guilt when they see and read of the death and destruction that exist in South Vietnam today and will continue as long as an unmerciful invader absorbs more of their country?

You accept communism for the agrarian peasants of southeast Asia and state we are foolish to continue to resist it. Do we abandon resistance to communism when it becomes a major factor in the U.S.?

Yes, we are out; perhaps we should stay out; yes, we will feel sorry for the innocents, but sorrow does not spare the lives of those caught up in the throes of conflict and feeling sorry neither justifies our disregard for the plight of this nation or our failure to honor our commitment.

It was my first impulse to question much of your editorial and say nothing. But this attitude of no commitment has become so prevalent in America today that it has contributed to a low point in this nation's almost 200 years of existence.

What about the 921 U.S. servicemen still classified as missing in Vietnam as well as the over 1,100 known dead whose remains have not been recovered because North Vietnam did not honor their commitment in the Paris peace agreement? Does the abandonment of Vietnam meet this nation's obligation to the bereaved survivors of these men?

Too Few Are Concerned

Omaha, Neb.

I was favorably impressed with the editorial in The Star of April 7 concerning the trial of John Connolly and the accusation of his accepting a bribe. How true that avarice has no compunctions.

All this is relatively compared to the hundreds of millions of dollars profits of the several oil industries around the first of the year, while the price of petroleum products continues to increase to the detriment of the citizenry. It appears that too few Americans are concerned by the shenanigans of men in high places or of vast wealth.

MAX MARSHALL

JACK ANDERSON

She Hated The Apron

WASHINGTON — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, twice a widow, won't inherit the millions that the press has been writing about. But she has been quietly laying aside a little cash for the future by selling her wardrobe and auctioning off other possessions as she tires of them.

Associates of the late Aristotle Onassis say he was superstitious about wills. At this writing, they have found none. His Byzantine, billion-dollar empire has been left in a corporate tangle that Greek and American lawyers are trying to straighten out.

But almost certainly, the associates say, Jackie will wind up with little more than the $3 million she received under a written, premarital agreement. Sources close to the shipping tycoon's financial affairs say the money was delivered to her in tax-free bonds after the marriage.

The fabulous wealth which has been attributed to Jackie has always eluded her, say close friends. Her swashbuckling father, "Black Jack" Bouvier, left her no inheritance worth mentioning.

After President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas, the young widow collected about $200,000 a year for five years from a trust fund, a family member told us. On October 20, 1968, the day she was married to Onassis, the trust fund reverted to her two children and her own payments stopped.

The following week, she asked the Treasury Department also to discontinue the $10,000 annual pension she had been collecting as the widow of a former president. "I hope you will consider this as a personal request, made for personal reasons," she wrote. Under the law, she would have lost the pension, anyway, after her remarriage.

☆ ☆ ☆

The loss of all personal income, according to friends, was one reason she pressed Onassis for a prenuptial contract. She simply had to have some money of her own, she reportedly pleaded. Ari also gave her a $20,000 monthly allowance, picked up most of her bills and showered her with gifts.

"Jackie had a charming little rule," confided one friend, "that Ari had to bring back a present from every part of the world he visited. Once, all he brought her was a simple apron from Africa. She was livid."

JACKIE

He was also generous to her children, giving Caroline a sailboat and John a jukebox among other presents. Once, John's pet rabbit was flown across the Atlantic to him in the care of an Olympic Airways pilot, who kept the bunny in the cockpit with him.

Intimates claim Onassis also flew hot-dogs for the children all the way from New York City to his Greek island. Since he had a weakness for New York red-hots himself, say our source, he also indulged in this extravagance.

Speaking through aide Nancy Tuckerman, Jackie refused to discuss her financial affairs, but, curiously, denied the hot dog story.

☆ ☆ ☆

As we have reported earlier, Ari became irritated over his wife's heavy spending and cracked down on her budget. "He put her on a short leash," explained a friend.

Associates recall hearing Onassis gripe about a $9,000 bill for gowns from Valentino's of Rome. "What does she do with all the clothes," he exploded. "I never see her in anything but blue jeans."

We have found out. After wearing her costly garments once or twice, sometimes not at all, Jackie would resell them and squirrel away the cash. Her favorite resell house, Encore of New York City, did a steady business in Jackie's slightly used and sometimes new clothing.

She peddled everything from coats, suits and gowns to pocketbooks, blouses and slacks. The labels, according to our sources, were the best: Yves St Laurent, Valentino's of Rome, Halston.

Generally, she would demand a fixed price; other times she would accept whatever the market would bear. Once, it took Encore six months to sell a white coat, with a Valentino's label, at the price Jackie demanded.

Apparently, nothing was too trivial for her to auction off. She sold everything from worn leather picture frames to exquisite furniture, according to witnesses, at such fashionable auction houses as New York City's William Doyle Galleries and Sotheby Parke Bernet's 84th Street branch.

Only last January, William Doyle Galleries sold a couple dozen items belonging to Jackie, including her son John's old nursery furniture. An old chair with a Choate School emblem, worth no more than $25, went for $300 when the auctioneer mentioned that it had once belonged to President Kennedy.

Jackie had been selling her used clothing, it turns out, ever since she opened her first charge account as Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Mary Gallagher, who used to keep their books, reports that Jackie's clothing was "resold under my name and home address. As the various items were sold, Encore's check would come to me and I would deposit it in my personal account. At the same time, I would write out a check for the same amount to be deposited in Jackie's account."

Once, Ms. Gallagher took a fancy to a blue coat, which Jackie hoped to sell for $65. Jackie gave her the coat, and Ms. Gallagher wrote out a $65 check. "She told me to deposit it in her bank account," relates Ms. Gallagher. But on other occasions, she says, Jackie would be in a "generous mood" and give her old clothes. One example was a red maternity dress, which the bookkeeper couldn't use but which the resell houses wouldn't accept.

For the beautiful Jackie, although she spent her husband's money recklessly, was parsimonious with her own.

Scherer Will Quit Position With City

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Community Development Director Leo Scherer is quitting his city job on May 16 to enter a family business, The Star learned Tuesday.

Scherer has submitted his resignation to Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, both the mayor and Scherer confirmed Tuesday night.

Scherer said his resignation had nothing to do with criticisms directed at his department by some City Council members, including mayoral candidate Helen Boosalis.

Scherer emphasized he is leaving City Hall for family reasons and reiterated his strong support for Schwartzkopf, who is running against Mrs. Boosalis for mayor.

Scherer said he believes the mayor will run strong in the race, although he didn't discount the possibility that Mrs. Boosalis would pull an upset victory.

The Community Development Department has come under increasing council scrutiny during the past months from several lawmakers who are dissatisfied with the agency's performance.

Council members said the department, created two years ago, has neglected to look at the city's total development needs — mainly concentrating on neighborhoods and overlooking downtown rejuvenation efforts.

In February the council agreed the department needed revamping and eyed the possibility of bringing in a "high-powered" magician to help give downtown a new look.

Scherer said the criticism of his department is unfounded. The agency can "Stand on its record" and will continue to play an "outstanding role" in the future of Lincoln, he stated.

Schwartzkopf said he has "nobody in mind" to replace Scherer.

However, Scherer wants the mayor and council to search nation-wide for a successor, since he said he doesn't think anyone within his department is qualified to take on the job.

Leo Scherer

Scherer will take over his father-in-law's business, which is Arnold's Tavern, 61st and Havelock Ave.

Scherer took over the city directorship on Sept, 1, 1973. He also served as Schwartzkopf's assistant for five years, acted as Gov. J. James Exon's assistant for one year and is a former Lincoln newspaperman.

Even though he is leaving city government, Scherer predicted he will remain involved in community redevelopment projects and in politics.

5 Governors Give Support To Hathaway

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — President Ford's nomination of former Wyoming Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway as Interior secretary was endorsed Tuesday by the five governors of the Old West Regional Commission.

The five, all Democrats, adopted a resolution expressing "special confidence in the fairness and ability" of Hathaway and urging the Senate to confirm the nomination.

The statement said Hathaway, a Republican, would represent "a balanced approach toward both the utilization and conservation of our natural resources."

The statement is to be sent to Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee.

Attending the session were Govs. Thomas L. Judge of Montana, Arthur A. Link of North Dakota, J. James Exon of Nebraska, Richard F. Kneip of South Dakota and Ed Herschler of Wyoming.

Regents To Eye Tuition Refund Schedule

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will consider on Saturday revising the tuition refund schedule for the Lincoln and Omaha campuses, and approving bids for medical equipment at the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

The board will meet at 9 a.m. in Regents Hall, 3835 Holdrege.

In a weekend of business sessions, regents will hold two public hearings Friday at 2 p.m. One is on the Medical Center All Campus Student Senate constitution and bylaws; the other on rules and regulations for faculty in the College of Medicine's School of Allied Health Professions.

At 3 p.m. Friday, also at Regents Hall, board committees will meet to discuss new NU Fieldhouse operations and formal agenda items. The Academic Affairs Committee will act on a request to approve UNL bylaws, and regulations governing the Colleges of Medicine, Nursing and Pharmacy, the Meyers Children Rehabilitation Institute, Nebraska Psychiatric Institute and medical staff of the NU Hospital and clinics in Omaha.

Regents at the formal Saturday session will be asked to approve a 12.2% increase in room rates at University Hospital, effective May 1. The last rate increase was in April 1974.

The new rates, with current charges in parentheses, are: 4-bed room, $62 ($56); semi-private, $67 ($61); private, $80 ($70); intensive care, $170 ($140), and bassinets, $40 ($37).

Regents will consider accepting low bids totalling approximately $213,000 for four pieces of medical equipment for the Medical Center. Two are for the Eppley Institute for Research in Cancer and Allied Diseases and two for the College of Medicine radiology department.

Regents will be asked to approve these UNL business items:

— An agreement with the Central Platte Natural Resources District for a year-long groundwater quality program to provide an additional $66,100.

— An additional $330,877 for a research project on improving nutritional value of wheat through March 31, 1976.

— A $50,782 proposal by Baldwin Carpets to furnish and install carpeting in Harper-Schramm-Smith Residence Halls.

— A $25,888 bid by O'Keefe Elevator Co. for an elevator in the Foods and Nutrition Building.

— Bids of $34,217 by FMC Corp. and $24,432 by R.S. Stover Co. for a centrifugal chiller in the city campus power plant.

— Acceptance of all bids recommended for the East Campus Student Center.

Regents will hear a report on preliminary architectural drawings for a "Basic Science Facility — Animal Health Research Center" at UNL.

In NU System business, regents will consider authorizing research of a dental health plan for NU personnel, and approving an agreement between NU and the Nebraska Educational Television Commission for a two-way closed circuit TV line between the Colleges of Nursing at UNL and UNMC.

The board will discuss a request by the American Association of University Professors to allow a "dues checkoff," or payroll deduction.

The academic affairs committee will also consider recommending that the full board approve a consultantship for Dr. Ronald L. Smith, dean of the UNL College of Business Administration, to accept a nomination to the First Greatwest Corp. board of directors in Lincoln.

Teachers Cut Request To Pay Raise Of 8.5%

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Negotiators for 1975-76 Lincoln teacher contracts agreed Tuesday on a forced staff reduction policy and narrowed the gap in proposals for salary increases.

Under the shadow of a contract settlement granting Omaha Public Schools teachers a 10.8% overall salary increase, the Lincoln Education Association (LEA) cut its request for increased salary dollars to 12.5%, down almost one full point.

The teacher association traditionally has been awarded pay increases just under Omaha's, which are the highest in Nebraska. The LEA originally asked the Lincoln Board of Education for a 14.14% increase in the salary budget.

Up To $8,438

The new LEA counter-proposal would increase the base pay for a beginning teacher from the current $7,825 to $8,438, or 8.5%. The association requested another 1.4% increase in fringe benefits.

Terry Workman, chief board negotiator, told the LEA team the longevity pay step and index set-up of the salary schedule are "unacceptable." The board last offered an 8.1% overall pay increase.

But Workman indicated the teams are close to a settlement, saying if the LEA decreases further its salary requests and concedes some contested demands, "You might be in line where we should be" at the next bargaining talks April 23.

With final language yet to be worked out, procedures were accepted to reduce the teaching staff in case of enrollment decreases, budget limitations or program changes. No such problem is expected next school year, but the board and the LEA decided to set up the framework now to preclude a fight over terminations when they would be required.

Seniority Main Point

The staff reduction provision establishes seniority as the basis for retention and protects a teacher who transfers within the district to another building. It also directs a joint board-LEA review during 1975-76 to determine if staff performance rather than seniority should be the basis for retention.

Teachers who would be terminated because of staff reduction needs would be placed on a recall list and in leave of absence status, with all benefits at their termination date restored upon re-employment. The re-employment rights would be revoked if a teacher declined the recall.

The negotiating teams also agreed on an amended grievance procedure, allowing a teacher to have an LEA representative present at all — including the informal — levels of handling a complaint.

The LEA made what Executive Director Robert F. Peterson called a "major alteration" in an emergency leave demand, to allow five days personal leave for business relating to a teacher's professional assignment and to require the teacher to pay the cost of a substitute, if required.

'Can Of Worms'

Workman said that "would not be acceptable," because it is not an "emergency leave" and opens a "can of worms" in determining whether the district or the teacher should decide what qualifies. Moreover, he said, the district pays about $50,000 annually for free teacher professional development programs; thus, "It would appear to us the district already provides these kinds of (personal leave) benefits" with indirect pay.

No agreement was reached after discussing a retirement incentive pay provision for teachers age 62 beginning July 1, 1976. The date could possibly be moved up, the teams noted, but still at issue are dollar amounts of the incentive and how persons on leave status would qualify for the benefit.

Also discussed but left on the bargaining table were two proposals for insurance benefits. The LEA asked the board to pay 50% of the dependent premium for the medical program for teachers with five consecutive years service (as in Omaha), and proposed that the district pay $5.62 a month to enroll each teacher automatically in a disability income protection program.

Peterson acknowledged the board and the LEA agree both want to "provide the best protection you can for all teachers at the cheapest cost" to taxpayers. He suggested possibly blending insurance benefits and a sick leave bank — which could cost $90,000 less — as a compromise.

Jeambey Sees Lack Of Trust

City Council candidate Bob Jeambey said Tuesday the community is suffering from a serious lack of trust.

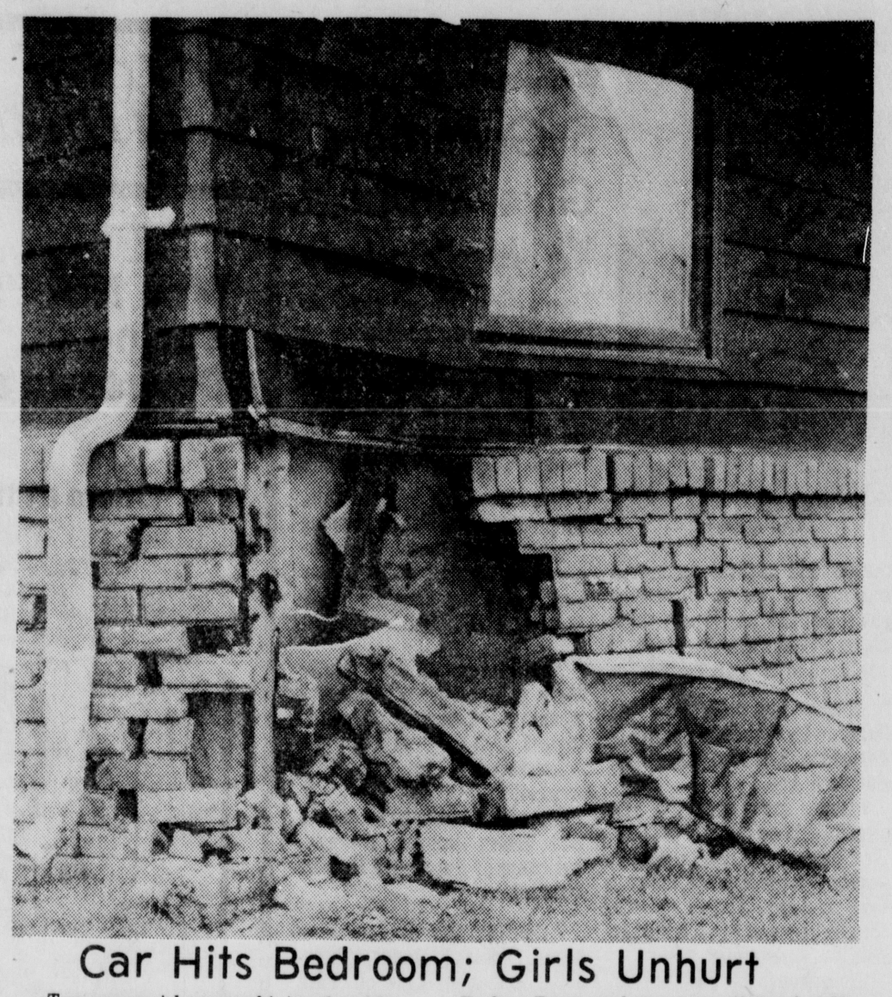

Jeambey said the council will have the opportunity to restore trust in the decisions it makes in rewriting the Comprehensive Plan and selecting a new police chief.

Admitting that trust is hard to define, he said "it is nonetheless real because when it goes, the relationship turns sour fast."

As one member of the council Jeambey said he doubted if he could restore trust by himself, but if elected he would commit himself to rebuilding trust among business, citizens groups, and branches of government.

Car Hits Bedroom; Girls Unhurt

Two young girls escaped injury late Monday night when a car smashed into their bedroom, knocking their beds about three feet and throwing bricks into the room. Some of the bricks landed on their beds. Police reports said Tracy Borgman, 8, and sister Audra, 7, of 1510 Manchester Dr. were sleeping when the car hit the home at about 11:25. Damage to the Rodney Borgman home was estimated at $2,000. Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000. The driver and a passenger were not injured seriously. The driver pleaded innocent in Municipal Court to driving while intoxicated in connection with the incident. (Star Staff Photo.)

N.Y.-Omaha-Lincoln United Flight Planned

A new United flight from New York to Omaha to Lincoln will begin May 13, the Airport Authority Board was told Tuesday.

The same flight will leave Lincoln for a nonstop flight to Los Angeles the next morning, Paul Freuhauf, a vice president of United Airlines, said in an appearance before the board that is rare for high airline brass.

In making the announcement, Freuhauf noted that the number of United flights leaving Lincoln has doubled since 1971.

Freuhauf also noted that across the country the airline industry is carrying fewer passengers.

Because of this business downturn, he said, consumers can take advantage of promotional campaigns the industry is mounting.

On another matter, the board agreed to advertise for about $320,000 to $360,000 worth of snow removal equipment.

That amount of cash will purchase four snowplows and one snowblower. Floyd Wilkinson, authority operations manager, said that the National Guard will share in use of the equipment and will pay for its use.

In the past National Guard equipment has been used at the airport.

The board also agreed not to authorize other airlines to provide service to Minneapolis-St. Paul as long as Air Wisconsin maintains that service, which it announced recently.

The board approved spending up to $6,000 to learn what is needed to resurface roads in Air Park West and approved spending $5,000 to $7,000 for patching now.

Geis Criticizes 'Promotion Fund'

The Lincoln Airport Authority has a "promotion fund" from taxes that last year totaled $85,000, Airport Authority Board candidate Don Geis claimed Tuesday.

Geis said the board is taxing Lincolnites at the rate of one-tenth of a mill for the fund. Last year he said, $43,416.48 was deposited in the fund.

Disbursements were made to two law firms, Geis said. Barney and Carter of Lincoln received $2,799.80 and Ginsburg, Feldman and Bress of Washington received $3,093.61, Geis said.

"I believe that if the Lincoln Airport Authority doesn't need promotional funds of $43,000 yearly — and I don't think it does — it should release overburdened taxpayers from this additional mill levy," Geis said.

County Approves Voc Rehab Lease

A more than three-year search for a Vocational Rehabilitation Center ended Tuesday as the Lancaster County Board voted approval of a lease agreement.

"We'll be moving in this afternoon," said Bob Smith, Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) director, soon after the county board voted 2-0 to lease space at 2210 S. 7th St. for vocational rehabilitiation services.

It was the second lease approval in four months for a vocational rehab site.

Choice Rejected

A board decision in late January to lease a building on South 48th St. was rejected by the State Office of Mental Retardation (OMR). The space, which was to be built to LOMR specifications, would have served 100 clients and solved the long-range needs of the county.

But the more than $300,000 pricetag for 10 years was too high in light of uncertain federal and state funds, and OMR asked the LOMR staff to look for something less expensive.

Smith called the South 7th St. facility, which can handle about 40 clients, an "interim or stopgap measure." The space will rent for about $741 a month and has been tentatively approved by the state OMR office.

Clients now served in a workshop at 1047 South St. will be moved to the new location immediately. The South St. facility will be closed because of costly renovations necessary to meet fire codes, Smith said.

Commissioner Robert Colin abstained from voting on the lease, saying he wanted another week to check out the property involved and to look at the lease agreement.

A special easement request allowing Lincoln Electric System to put an anchor and two guy wires into Wilderness Park along Pioneers Blvd. was sent on to the Omaha Housing and Urban Development office.

The special easement specifies that work in the park must be done by hand and that trees and underbrush will not be trimmed.

An answer from the HUD office is expected within two weeks, Deputy County Atty. Mike Heavican told the board.

In other action, the county board approved a final version of the county personnel rules and regulations, a document which spells out employe hiring and firing practices and working conditions.

After a public hearing several weeks ago, the board incorporated employee suggestions into the final draft, including a provision that employes older than 68 years could continue working with the recommendation of their department head.

The board did not change a section specifying that county employes and equipment could not be used for work other than government or community service projects.

An attorney from the public defender's office had asked that the section be changed so that county-employed attorneys could continue having county secretaries do work on their private cases.

County Tabs Clark To Be Human Services Director

Frank L. Clark of Omaha will take over the new city-county human services director's position in early May, the Lancaster County Board announced Tuesday.

A former Lincolnite, Clark is currently assistant director of human services in charge of special projects for the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency in Omaha.

Clark, 36, will be responsible for city and county human service planning and coordination, and will make recommendations to both governments on the spending of revenue sharing funds. His salary will be $20,404.

The naming of Clark, one of 100 applicants, concludes more than a year of work by the City Council and County Board, including negotiations for the joint position and screening of candidates.

Clark, who has a masters degree in psychology, has served as the director of the Douglas County Department of Mental Health Resources and executive dirctor of the Greater Omaha Association of Retarded Citizens.

Bulldozer Falls Through Floor In Robbery Try

INDEPENDENCE, Ky. (AP) — Robert Dickey got quite a surprise when he was called back to his office at 1 a.m. Tuesday.

There, sitting in the Covington Trust & Banking Co., was a 10-ton bulldozer. Parked outside the bank was a dump truck.

FBI agents said the bulldozer and dump truck had been stolen and the bulldozer crashed through the front of the bank in an attempt to get to the bank safe.

The bulldozer never reached the safe and fell through the floor instead, causing about $40,000 damage. Dickey said he hoped to have the bank open again next week.

County Approves Voc Rehab Lease

A more than three-year search for a Vocational Rehabilitation Center ended Tuesday as the Lancaster County Board voted approval of a lease agreement.

"We'll be moving in this afternoon," said Bob Smith, Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) director, soon after the county board voted 2-0 to lease space at 2210 S. 7th St. for vocational rehabilitiation services.

It was the second lease approval in four months for a vocational rehab site.

Choice Rejected

A board decision in late January to lease a building on South 48th St. was rejected by the State Office of Mental Retardation (OMR). The space, which was to be built to LOMR specifications, would have served 100 clients and solved the long-range needs of the county.

But the more than $300,000 pricetag for 10 years was too high in light of uncertain federal and state funds, and OMR asked the LOMR staff to look for something less expensive.

Smith called the South 7th St. facility, which can handle about 40 clients, an "interim or stopgap measure." The space will rent for about $741 a month and has been tentatively approved by the state OMR office.

Clients now served in a workshop at 1047 South St. will be moved to the new location immediately. The South St. facility will be closed because of costly renovations necessary to meet fire codes, Smith said.

Commissioner Robert Colin abstained from voting on the lease, saying he wanted another week to check out the property involved and to look at the lease agreement.

A special easement request allowing Lincoln Electric System to put an anchor and two guy wires into Wilderness Park along Pioneers Blvd. was sent on to the Omaha Housing and Urban Development office.

The special easement specifies that work in the park must be done by hand and that trees and underbrush will not be trimmed.

An answer from the HUD office is expected within two weeks, Deputy County Atty. Mike Heavican told the board.

In other action, the county board approved a final version of the county personnel rules and regulations, a document which spells out employe hiring and firing practices and working conditions.

After a public hearing several weeks ago, the board incorporated employee suggestions into the final draft, including a provision that employes older than 68 years could continue working with the recommendation of their department head.

The board did not change a section specifying that county employes and equipment could not be used for work other than government or community service projects.

An attorney from the public defender's office had asked that the section be changed so that county-employed attorneys could continue having county secretaries do work on their private cases.

County Tabs Clark To Be Human Services Director

Frank L. Clark of Omaha will take over the new city-county human services director's position in early May, the Lancaster County Board announced Tuesday.

A former Lincolnite, Clark is currently assistant director of human services in charge of special projects for the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency in Omaha.

Clark, 36, will be responsible for city and county human service planning and coordination, and will make recommendations to both governments on the spending of revenue sharing funds. His salary will be $20,404.

The naming of Clark, one of 100 applicants, concludes more than a year of work by the City Council and County Board, including negotiations for the joint position and screening of candidates.

Clark, who has a masters degree in psychology, has served as the director of the Douglas County Department of Mental Health Resources and executive dirctor of the Greater Omaha Association of Retarded Citizens.

Bulldozer Falls Through Floor In Robbery Try

INDEPENDENCE, Ky. (AP) — Robert Dickey got quite a surprise when he was called back to his office at 1 a.m. Tuesday.

There, sitting in the Covington Trust & Banking Co., was a 10-ton bulldozer. Parked outside the bank was a dump truck.

FBI agents said the bulldozer and dump truck had been stolen and the bulldozer crashed through the front of the bank in an attempt to get to the bank safe.

The bulldozer never reached the safe and fell through the floor instead, causing about $40,000 damage. Dickey said he hoped to have the bank open again next week.

'Crucible' Production Dedicated To Johnson

Nebraska Wesleyan University's April production of "The Crucible" will be dedicated to longtime Wesleyan theatergoer and supporter Ethel Johnson, former dean of women at the university.

In connection with the dedication, the Wesleyan theater department will host a tea of faculty and friends in honor of Miss Johnson at 3 p.m. Friday in the Wesleyan Enid Miller Theater.

Actor Richard Conte Dies

Hollywood (UPI) — Richard Conte, who starred on Broadway and in movies for more than 30 years, died Tuesday from the effects of a massive heart attack and a paralyzing stroke. He was 65.

Conte's most recent major film role was that of Don Barzini in "The Godfather" two years ago.

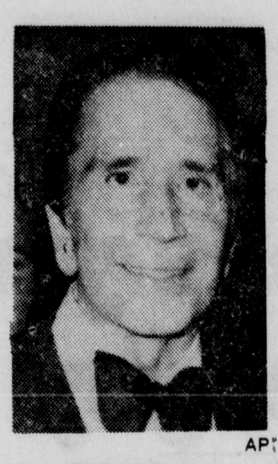

A quiet, introspective man, Conte made more than 50 films and for a time was a close friend of Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. when they all appeared in "Oceans 11."

His movies included "I'll Cry Tomorrow," "Purple Heart," "A Walk in the Sun," "13 Rue Madeleine," "New York Confidential" and "House of Strangers."

In recent years, he turned to television, making guest appearances on dramatic and comedy shows, among them "The Gambler" and "The Untouchables."

He was born Nicholas Peter Conte March 24, 1916, in Jersey City, N.J., where he attended school. He became interested in acting at a summer theater in Connecticut in 1935 and for two years studied drama at New York's Group Theater.

Conte played the lead role in the road company of "Golden Boy," followed by a succession of Broadway plays.

Yeutter To Be Deputy Trade Delegate

Washington (AP) — President Ford announced Tuesday his choices to fill top-level vacancies in the State and Justice Departments and the Office of Special Trade Representative.

To be deputy special trade representatives, new jobs created by Congress last year, Ford is nominating William N. Walker, now director of the White House personnel office, and Clayton Yeutter, an assistant secretary of agriculture since 1973.

(Yeutter, a Nebraska agricultural economist and rancher, was executive assistant to former Gov. Norbert Tiemann, who is now federal highway administrator).

To be deputy undersecretary of state, succeeding the resigned L. Dean Brown, Ford is nominating Lawrence S. Eagleburger, now executive assistant to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Rex E. Lee of Provo, Utah, dean of the College of Law at Brigham Young University, is Ford's nominee to succeed Carla A. Hills as assistant attorney general in charge of the civil division at the Justice Department. Mrs. Hills became secretary of housing and urban development last month.

Ford also announced he is appointing James N. Cannon, his assistant for domestic affairs, to the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

U.S. Intervention In Trial Urged

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Three members of Congress called for U.S. Justice Department intervention in the murder prosecution of Joanne Little as a pretrial hearing on the case continued in Superior Court Tuesday.

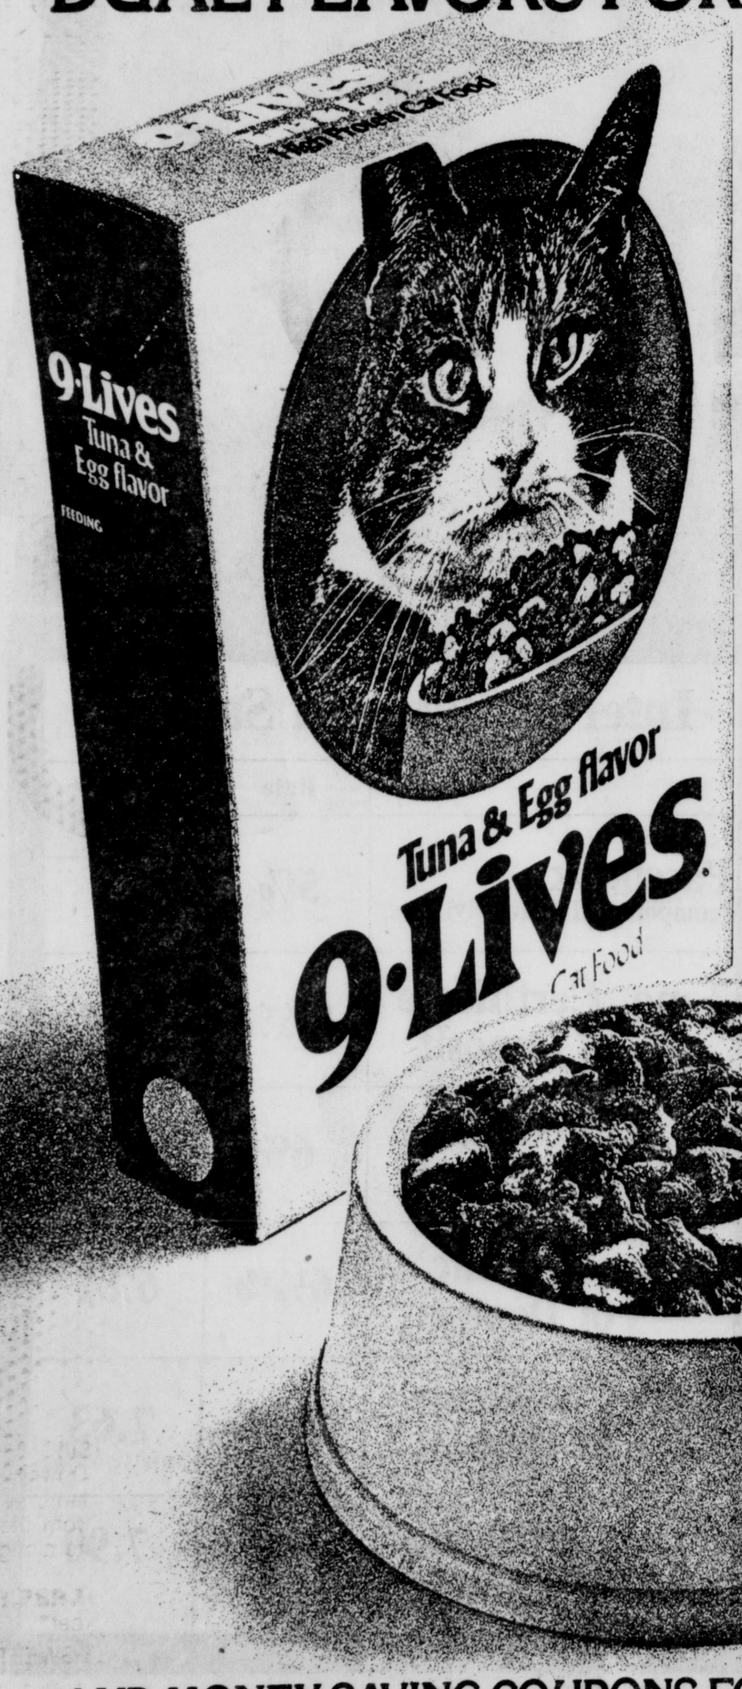

Miss Little, 20, a black inmate at the Beaufort County Jail, is accused of the fatal ice pick stabbing of white jailer Clarence Alligood, 62, last Aug. 27. She has maintained that she killed Alligood in self-defense when he tried to rape her.

Miss Little, who was awaiting trial on a charge of breaking and entering, fled the jail after the slaying but voluntarily surrendered to authorities eight days later. She is currently free on bond.

On Tuesday, two black congresswomen, Yvonne B. Burke, D-Calif., and Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., called the prosecution of Miss Little a blatant miscarriage of justice. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., a black member of the House Judiciary Committee and chairman of the subcommittee on crime, said the Little case represents "an issue of black survival as well as one demonstrating the disgusting manner in which the judicial system addresses cases involving rape."

Horse People Blast Game Commission

Crawford (AP) — The chairman of the Ft. Robinson Centennial Commission has criticized the State Game Commission because of the cancellation of the Ft. Robinson Hunter-Jumper Show.

Larry Norgard, who headed the successful campaign last year to celebrate the 100th birthday of Ft. Robinson, three miles west of here, said, "If I were to run my business like the Game Commission operates Ft. Robinson, I would be out of business tomorrow."

Norgard was quoted earlier as charging the commission is no longer responsive to the people, but is answering only to political interests. However, he denies making such a charge and denies a report that he said he has asked Gov. J. James Exon to investigate alleged political pressures within the Game and Parks Commission.

Show Cancelled

The Hunter-Jumper show had been scheduled for June 5-8 this year, but was cancelled. Mrs. Jo Stafford of Scottsbluff, secretary of the show, said Ft. Robinson State Park Supt. Vince Rotherham "was most uncooperative and very negative about the show and the committee decided they did not want to expose visiting participants to this type of hospitality."

Mrs. Stafford said that despite all the criticism the horse people received last year from being at Ft. Robinson "everyone was looking forward to coming back again this year. What was the purpose of the centennial anyway? I thought it was to expose people to this fine facility and certainly Ft. Robinson heritage deeply involves horses."

'Cannot Understand'

Mrs. Stafford said, "I cannot understand why administrative personnel at Ft. Robinson were not prepared. It was just impossible to hold another show under these conditions at Ft. Robinson."

She said after last year's show she visited with Rotherham and was told "these horse people will never be back here again."

She said she has written a three-page letter to Exon explaining her view of the situation. She said it has been impossible to work with Rotherham in attempting to schedule the show at Ft. Robinson again this year.

Mrs. Stafford said the show brought nearly 250 persons from several states to the fort last year. She said those people spent $8,000 for trophies and prizes, and spent additional money for living costs.

Dates Too Early

The Hunter-Jumper Show dates are set by a national committee and the June dates were accepted with reluctance because they were too early for area participants. The commission had asked for July or August dates, but administrators at Ft. Robinson refused to bend, she said.

"We decided to cancel the show at Ft. Robinson, but I think that's what he (Rotherham) had in mind when he refused the later date," she said.

Damage By Salt To Omaha I-480 Said $2 Million

Omaha (AP) — It has been less than five years since the elevated portion of Interstate 480 through downtown Omaha was completed, but highway crews are on the job this spring trying to fix an estimated $2 million in damage.

D. J. Erington, Omaha district engineer for the Nebraska Department of Roads, says salt used during the winter is the main culprit, and that before it's all over, much more money will have to be spent in repairing the interstate system in the Omaha area.

In an effort to prevent future problems workers are in the process of applying a latex-concrete sealer, Erington said.

Erington noted that when the elevated was built, the method currently being used to prevent the salt corrosion of the structural steel was still in the experimental system.

The work on the elevated interstate is expected to be completed by this fall.

Erington also said that if sand alone could be used during the winter months, no problems would exist. But, he added, drivers in the metropolitan area want roads clear and dry in the winter, which requires the use of salt.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

HUD Rejects McCook Application For Grant

McCook (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development says McCook doesn't have any slums, so its application for $185,000 in loans and grants to refurbish substandard housing, purchase and clear dilapidated homes and buy more land for Barnett Park facilities was rejected.

HUD area director Guy Birch said the city also has too few families with incomes below the poverty level to receive the funds. Birch said according to 1970 census figures, McCook had only 1,011 persons with incomes less than the poverty level.

HUD received 124 pre-applications from Nebraska communities requesting $32,820,000. A total of $2.4 million was available to the state in fiscal year 1975.

Towns and cities whose pre-applications were accepted included Alliance, Atkinson, Cedar Rapids, Crawford, Crofton, Elgin, Fairbury, Falls City, Franklin, Hartington, Hastings, Kearney, Loup City, Norfolk, Scottsbluff, Talmage, Verdigre and Wilber.

Ak-Sar-Ben Lists 89 Good Neighbor Awards

Omaha (AP) — The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben announced Tuesday that 14 groups and 75 individuals have been selected for 1975 Good Neighbor Awards.

The competition, now in its 32nd year, recognizes the neighborly acts and deeds of individuals and groups who were nominated by friends and neighbors through Ak-Sar-Ben ambassadors.

The Nebraska group recipients are:

—The L and O Bridge Club, Creighton, which turned a vacant lot into a park.

—Fairview Manor Auxiliary, Fairmont, for personal service in behalf of the residents.

—Fremont Cosmopolitan Club, Fremont, for civic work including blood testing for diabetes, establishment of a Big Brothers program and work on behalf of the Salvation Army Tree of Lights and the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

—The Pushers, Genoa, for community action as a deterrent to drug use among the community's residents.

—Future Promise Development, Hartington, which organized as a center for development of handicapped preschool children.

—Community Concern, Norfolk, which works with 52 other community organizations as an "umbrella" organization, provides assistance to troubled children and adults, the disadvantaged, the elderly and handicapped, and provides a 24-hour telephone crisis service.

—Palisade High School Student Council, Palisade, which recruited blood donors and raised funds in a vain effort to save the life of the 10-year-old daughter of the high school principal in her battle against leukemia. The group's efforts raised $5,400 toward $8,300 worth of medical and hospital bills.

—Red Cloud Lions Club, Red Cloud, which recruited a new doctor for the town.

—Happy Hour Club, Scotia, whose environmental activities in the Keep Nebraska Beautiful campaign and other promotional endeavors resulted in a cleaner community.

—July 4 Youth Committee, Seward, which enlisted the cooperation and support of all community organizations and annually assumes responsibility for the traditional July 4 celebration.

—Stratton Community Improvement Council, Stratton, which is composed of the presidents of all the organizations in Stratton, annually undertakes a project for community betterment.

—Tekamah Lions Club, Tekamah, whose support of the Golden Age Center, contribution of a new electronic scoreboard for the high school athletic field and a new public address system for the swimming pool demonstrate its concern for the elderly and youth of the community.

The individual Nebraska award winners are:

Dodge County Charges Against Kuhlman Lifted

Fremont (AP) — Charges filed last October against then Dodge County attorney candidate Richard Kuhlman alleging state election law violations have been dismissed.

Kuhlman was accused of seeking office and voting in Dodge County while maintaining his legal residence in Hall County.

Charges against Kuhlman's wife, Kathleen, also were dropped. She was charged with the same voting violation.

Kuhlman declined to comment on what effect, if any, the charges might have had on the fall election, which he lost.

The charges were filed by then County Atty. Gordon Gobel, less than one week before the election. Kuhlman said then the charges were politically motivated.

The charges were dismissed in Dodge County District Court on a recommendation from the state attorney general's office to County Atty. Ted Vrana.

SeTech Board Moves Lightbody

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — Dr. James Lightbody, long associated with adult education and currently Lincoln campus director of Southeast Community Technical College, was shifted Tuesday to an area administrative position on a unanimous vote of the college board.

He was named director of community services, a post involving the Milford and Fairbury campuses as well as Lincoln's. He will replace Lonnie Johnson, who will assume a newly created position as director of in-services and curriculum.

The changes will be effective July 1. The search for a new Lincoln campus director will start immediately.

No Open Discussion

There was no open discussion of the action, which came following a half-hour executive session partially centering on the change. However, President Robert S. Eicher told reporters that the move was by "mutual agreement."

Lightbody was absent from the meeting because of his attendance of an educators' conference in Oregon.

"We feel that Jim can function more effectively for the area in the new capacity," said the president. "He will be working exclusively in adult education, a field in which we hope to grow and expand."

Discussed Earlier

Although Eicher declined further comment, it is known that the board had previously been concerned about some of Lightbody's administrative decisions, particularly on budget matters. His continuance in the director's post has been discussed in at least one prior executive session.

Lightbody had been in charge of the Lincoln technical college for several years, then took on the campus director's title when the program became part of the Southeast Technical College System.

On another matter, the board ordered the razing or "elimination by the most advantageous method" of the old hospital building and three temporary barracks on the Fairbury campus. The decision was part of a general updating of facilities also aimed at bailing the school's dormitory out of financial difficulties.

Subject to approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which financed the dormitory, is a plan to convert part of the building to faculty offices and classrooms, then pay rent on the space to help offset indebtedness. The revamping would still leave dormitory space for 100 students, while the present occupancy is only 48.

Interest Payment

The proposal also calls for immediately making a semi-annual interest payment of $8,145, which is in arrears, then a double payment next October. It is anticipated that the school will be in position by October 1976 to make an interest and principle payment of $16,000.

The motion called for the shifting of facilities to be completed by next fall. It also orders the sale and removal of a house formerly used by the college administration and the revamping of the Science-Library Building to accommodate four additional classrooms.

Also approved following the executive session was a request that the Southeast Faculty Association be recognized as a bargaining agent to negotiate salaries and other conditions of employment. There was no open discussion on the matter.

Program For Pen

The board approved a one-year program of vocational instruction for Nebraska Penal Complex inmates, starting July 1. The State Department of Administrative Services had asked the agency to allow the teaching in place of Northern Systems, a private venture which has handled the program.

Southeast will largely depend upon financing of the program under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Also briefly outlined for later consideration was the possible development on the various campuses of several new programs. Among the courses being studied are vocational-agribusiness, veterinarian's assistants work, respiratory therapy and medical laboratory work.

Robert Glenn, coordinator of instruction for the Lincoln class, noted that guards and other personnel at the Nebraska Penal Complex are being taught several subjects under a federal mini-grant. He suggested that the program might be further developed.

Two-Headed Calf Born Alive

Two heads are not necessarily better than one. This calf was born alive but died shortly after birth on the Don Nelson farm near Bennet. "They are very rare. I would have to dig into the statistics to tell you how often but it might be a tenth of one percent or less . . . it is an attempt to be a twin that proved to be abnormal. They are very seldom born alive," said Dr. Jim Gosey, at the University of Nebraska Animal Science Department. (Star Photo.)

N. Platte 'Crime Wave' Studied

North Platte (UPI) — Law enforcement officials indicated here Tuesday that a manpower shortage hampers their effectiveness in stemming what one businessman described as a North Platte "crime wave."

A weekend of robbery, breakins and vandalism led a North Platte group to form a concerned citizens committee aimed at improving law enforcement in Lincoln County and in North Platte.

The committee was formed Monday night, and North Platte businessman Dick Holland said members would "investigate to the best of our ability what we as citizens in North Platte can do to stop the crime wave, and it seems to be mounting every day."

Sheriff Gordon Gilster said he has six deputies out in the county and two to three men in the North Platte area. At night, he said, there were seven to eight men on duty at all times in the North Platte area, but, he said, "you can just cover so much."

Police reported an armed robbery, vandalism that caused an estimated $10,000 to $20,000 in damages and a rash of breakins last weekend.

Capt. William Palmer, commander of Troop D of the Nebraska State Patrol, said his 43 men cover 22,000 miles of roads in an area north from the east edge of Harlan County to Loup County and west to Grant County south to Dundee county to the state line.

"You take the 43 personnel that I have and divide that in half for vacations, days off and so on and there are 21 officers for 22,000 miles or just over a thousand miles per man to patrol," Palmer said.

During the Monday night meeting, which Police Chief Bernard Colligan and two councilmen attended, one businessman suggested a "vigilance committee" might be formed to deal with arrests and harsh measures. "The sooner it happens the better we'll be," he said.

SeTech Board Moves Lightbody

By DEAN TERRILL
• Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — Dr. James Lightbody, long associated with adult education and currently Lincoln campus director of Southeast Community Technical College, was shifted Tuesday to an area administrative position on a unanimous vote of the college board.

He was named director of community services, a post involving the Milford and Fairbury campuses as well as Lincoln's. He will replace Lonnie Johnson, who will assume a newly created position as director of in-services and curriculum.

The changes will be effective July 1. The search for a new Lincoln campus director will start immediately.

No Open Discussion

There was no open discussion of the action, which came following a half-hour executive session partially centering on the change. However, President Robert S. Eicher told reporters that the move was by "mutual agreement."

Lightbody was absent from the meeting because of his attendance of an educators' conference in Oregon.

"We feel that Jim can function more effectively for the area in the new capacity," said the president. "He will be working exclusively in adult education, a field in which we hope to grow and expand."

Discussed Earlier

Although Eicher declined further comment, it is known that the board had previously been concerned about some of Lightbody's administrative decisions, particularly on budget matters. His continuance in the director's post has been discussed in at least one prior executive session.

Lightbody had been in charge of the Lincoln technical college for several years, then took on the campus director's title when the program became part of the Southeast Technical College System.

On another matter, the board ordered the razing or "elimination by the most advantageous method" of the old hospital building and three temporary barracks on the Fairbury campus. The decision was part of a general updating of facilities also aimed at bailing the school's dormitory out of financial difficulties.

Subject to approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which financed the dormitory, is a plan to convert part of the building to faculty offices and classrooms, then pay rent on the space to help offset indebtedness. The revamping would still leave dormitory space for 100 students, while the present occupancy is only 48.

Interest Payment

The proposal also calls for immediately making a semi-annual interest payment of $8,145, which is in arrears, then a double payment next October. It is anticipated that the school will be in position by October 1976 to make an interest and principle payment of $16,000.

The motion called for the shifting of facilities to be completed by next fall. It also orders the sale and removal of a house formerly used by the college administration and the revamping of the Science-Library Building to accommodate four additional classrooms.

Also approved following the executive session was a request that the Southeast Faculty Association be recognized as a bargaining agent to negotiate salaries and other conditions of employment. There was no open discussion on the matter.

Program For Pen

The board approved a one-year program of vocational instruction for Nebraska Penal Complex inmates, starting July 1. The State Department of Administrative Services had asked the agency to allow the teaching in place of Northern Systems, a private venture which has handled the program.

Southeast will largely depend upon financing of the program under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Also briefly outlined for later consideration was the possible development on the various campuses of several new programs. Among the courses being studied are vocational-agribusiness, veterinarian's assistants work, respiratory therapy and medical laboratory work.

Robert Glenn, coordinator of instruction for the Lincoln class, noted that guards and other personnel at the Nebraska Penal Complex are being taught several subjects under a federal mini-grant. He suggested that the program might be further developed.

They are very seldom born alive," said Dr. Jim Gosey, at the University of Nebraska Animal Science Department. (Star Photo.)

Beef Grading Changes Held Up For 45 Days

Omaha (AP) — The beef grading standards used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for more than three decades will remain in effect for at least another 45 days, or until the outcome of a trial involving a group of Omaha meat packers.

Citing nationwide consumer interest and possible "irreparable harm" to packers and consumers, a three-judge U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals panel Tuesday rejected a government request to stay an injunction that forced the delay of the USDA's new grading guidelines.

The new standards, opposed by many consumer groups and packers, were to have gone into effect Monday, but on a request by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha, U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha issued a preliminary injunction last Friday enjoining the USDA from implementing the proposed standards.

Judge Denney said he did not feel the USDA had provided the necessary economic impact statement required by executive order.

The USDA claims the new standards will not mean a significant change in meat quality or cost to the consumer, and that they will in fact lower costs at the retail level because livestock producers will not be required to feed as much grain to get an animal up to a "choice grading."

Opponents contend consumers will be paying the same price for lower quality meat, while many packers say the new standards will cause increased grading and transportation costs that must be passed on to the consumer. The packers further claim that the USDA never held public hearings on the new standards, but took only written testimony before announcing that the new standards would be implemented April 14.

The Circuit Court panel was composed of Judges Donald P. Lay of Omaha; Myron H. Bright, Fargo, N.D., and Roy L. Stephenson, Des Moines, Iowa. All three are from cattleproducing states.

Speaking for the panel, Judge Lay stressed that Tuesday's ruling was not made on the merits of the case itself, and meant only that the issue should be remanded to the District Court level for trial and opinion.

Lay said the panel agreed with Judge Denney in that there is a "serious question" as to whether the USDA complied with the orders requiring the filing of an economic impact statment.

Economic impact studies were ordered last year by President Ford. They are to be filed when a government department or agency decides to make a change in operations in an effort to determine if the changes will have an inflationary effect on the economy or will raise consumer prices.

In addition to upholding the preliminary injunction, Judge Lay also ordered that a bond hearing be held within five days to determine if the $5,000 bond filed by the meat packers group is adequate.

Local Groups Will Decide Ag Conservation Funding

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The agriculture conservation practices to be funded this year by the federal government will be decided by local county committees, a federal agriculture official said Tuesday.

Kenneth Frick, administrator of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) was in Lincoln and said:

"Local county committees will have the responsibility of deciding what conservation practices are to be funded within the U.S. Department of Agriculture conservation program in 1975."

Frick, attending the state conference of ASCS committeemen here, said Nebraska would have $4.7 million for conservation practices in Nebraska. Of the total, some $816,000 has already been committed to long term agreement (LTA) conservation problems, which involve lengthy planning by conservation officials and the farmer involved, he said.

Under Fire Recently

Frick, who has been under fire recently for statements that seemed to suggest that some farmers ought to go broke every year for the economic health of agriculture as a whole, was questioned at length on the meaning of his statement by newsmen and by committee members attending the conference.

"It is never a good thing for a farmer to go broke, but we had 7 million farmers when farm programs begun. Today we have about 2.5 million with about 1 million who really contribute to the nation's food supply in an important way. There is no way we can keep everyone on the farm as some people would like to do," he said.

"Some farmers have bad luck. Some are inefficient and some just do a lousy job of farming. When they go broke it gives another farmer a chance to expand," he added.

Loan Rate Hike

Frick told the farmer committeemen that if President Ford vetoes the farm bill it would be possible for Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to administratively increase the loan rate for some grain crops, but added that Butz has no authority to increase the so-called target prices for farmers under existing farm legislation.

Frick suggested that farmers arrange to market a part of their grain crop through an advance contract with their local elevators as tomato farmers do when they sell their crop to canneries.

He also strongly suggested that farmers need to educate the general public about the need to export farm products. "We've got to get the politicians to keep their cotton pickin' hands off the export program or we won't have a market. We should never halt the export of any food unless we actually have people starving in this country," he said.

"We can't sit here fat while people in Africa or Bangladesh are starving to death," he added.

Insurance Program

Frick called for the establishment of an insurance program that would take the risk out of farming due to weather-related disasters to replace the present disaster aid program, which is tied to the crop allotment history of a farm.

"We had some farmers lose their entire corn crop, but couldn't get much help under the disaster program because of the allotment history of the farm," he said.

"A farmer shouldn't be restricted to the kind of crop his grandfather grew nor should the value of his farm be tied to a permit to grow peanuts, rice, tobacco or wheat. That is an artificial factor in land values that must be ended," he said.

Fowl Cholera Said Not Alarming So Far

The extensive waterfowl die-off in south central Nebraska, diagnosed as fowl cholera, does not appear to be cause for undue alarm among poultry producers, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension specialist said this week.

Dr. Phil Gipson, Extension wildlife specialist, said the disease, which killed approximately 5,000 geese and 10,000 ducks, is communicable to domestic fowl, but is apparently confined to wild birds at present.

Waterfowl losses occurred mostly in the rainwater basin area in the Sacramento Game Management Area near Wilcox.

Prevention of the disease in domestic flocks is largely a matter of sanitation, Gipson said.

Persons who have been in contact with dead ducks, geese or other birds that have died from unknown causes should wash carefully and scrub their clothing, including boots, in hot, soapy water before handling domestic fowl or feed.

Waterfowl or other birds that have died on private property should be burned, Gipson advised.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Denver Research Laboratory are involved in an effort to locate all infected waterfowl and cleanup the wetlands area, he said.

"Weather will play an important part as to whether the disease spreads through the wild fowl population," Gipson said.

Wyoming Man Killed In Crash

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)— Clive Williams, 44, Cheyenne, has died in the collision of his car and a semi-trailer rig two miles south of here on U. S. 85.

The Highway Patrol said Williams pulled his car from the driveway of a trailer park into the path of the southbound semi Monday night. He was killed instantly.

The driver of the truck, 39-year-old Dale Scrivems of Scottsbluff, Neb., escaped injury.

Bus Mishap Injures 7 Near Peru

Peru (AP) — Six students and the driver of a Peru school bus were injured, but only one required hospitalization, after an accident in Nemaha County Tuesday morning.

Nemaha County Sheriff Gary Daffer said the bus apparently missed a curve and hit an embankment on a county road, about four miles west and a half mile south of Peru.

A spokesman for the Nemaha County Hospital in Auburn said Joel Gray, 7, of Peru was transferred to University Hospital in Omaha for treatment. He said the boy suffered a broken nose and facial cuts.

Treated and released from the hospital were the driver, Randy McIntosh, 29; Deb Heidzig, 11; Robin McIntosh, 6, daughter of the bus driver; Jody and Jeff Allgood, both 8, and Jeff Vickers, 7, all of Peru.

Ramirez Gets Two-Year Term In Road Deaths

Omaha (AP) — A South Omaha automobile accident last July 28 in which two persons died has resulted in a two-year prison term for Javier Ramirez, 21, driver of one of the two cars involved.

Leonar Franklin, 25, Bellevue, and Susan K. Hile, 25, Lowell, Ind., died when the car they were riding in was struck by the one driven by Ramirez.

A subsequent blood test showed Ramirez was legally drunk at the time. He was charged with two counts of felony motor vehicle homicide and pleaded no contest to both Feb. 10.

District Court Judge John E. Clark sentenced him to two years in the Nebraska Penal Complex on each count, but stipulated that the terms be served at the same time.

Cemeteries Get 4-H Care

Efforts to clean up and maintain abandoned cemeteries around the state have received stimulus from several 4-H clubs.

Many small rural cemeteries will be spruced up by Memorial Day through the muscle and hustle of 4-H clubs, according to Elaine Skucius, associate state 4-H leader.

Cemetery clean-up projects mesh well with efforts already underway to beautify surroundings of a community and snowballing Bicentennial activity which emphasizes nostalgia, she said.

Roger Welsch, native Nebraska folklorist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been working with 4-H leaders on ways they can encourage youth to become interested in local heritage.

One of the activities clubs are encouraged to take on, Miss Skucius said, is making a plat of abandoned cemeteries. A club awakens the interest and concern of the entire community by identifying the location of gravesites that are marked, and securing help in identifying areas that are unmarked. This adds to the recorded history of the community, she pointed out.

She cited the B.C. Adventures 4-H Club in Madison County as an example of a club's enterprise in cemetery rejuvenation. The club has established a tradition of cleaning up a small rural cemetery, and since 1970 has accomplished its goal before Memorial Day.

The small cemetery contains just 10 graves, dating from 1874 to 1925.

Another club, the Teens Royal of Papillion, is planning to clean up a rural cemetery, which is over 100 years old. One of the objectives of the club, in addition to physical clean up, is to spur historical interest in the cemetery. Key individuals who settled the area are buried in the cemetery.

Sarpy Sheriff, Teens' Parents Will Have Talk

Papillion (AP) — Take it from Sarpy County Sheriff Pat Thomas: prom night can be an ordeal.

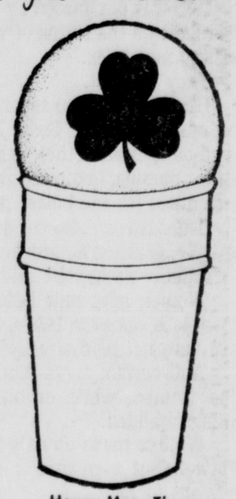

Acting on a tip, Thomas and deputies interrupted an outing of 12 boys and girls, ages 16 and 17, at a motel over the weekend. No one was booked because Thomas recalled he was young once.

The officers said they found barbiturate pills, several "lids" of marijuana, two cases of beer and some birth control pills. Thomas said several of the young people were unclothed.

He said those involved were from the South Omaha and north Sarpy County region.

The sheriff added, though, that county officials will have all of the students' parents in for conferences this week.

Beef Grading Changes Held Up For 45 Days

Omaha (AP) — The beef grading standards used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for more than three decades will remain in effect for at least another 45 days, or until the outcome of a trial involving a group of Omaha meat packers.

Citing nationwide consumer interest and possible "irreparable harm" to packers and consumers, a three-judge U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals panel Tuesday rejected a government request to stay an injunction that forced the delay of the USDA's new grading guidelines.

The new standards, opposed by many consumer groups and packers, were to have gone into effect Monday, but on a request by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha, U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha issued a preliminary injunction last Friday enjoining the USDA from implementing the proposed standards.

Judge Denney said he did not feel the USDA had provided the necessary economic impact statement required by executive order.

The USDA claims the new standards will not mean a significant change in meat quality or cost to the consumer, and that they will in fact lower costs at the retail level because livestock producers will not be required to feed as much grain to get an animal up to a "choice grading."

Opponents contend consumers will be paying the same price for lower quality meat, while many packers say the new standards will cause increased grading and transportation costs that must be passed on to the consumer. The packers further claim that the USDA never held public hearings on the new standards, but took only written testimony before announcing that the new standards would be implemented April 14.

The Circuit Court panel was composed of Judges Donald P. Lay of Omaha; Myron H. Bright, Fargo, N.D., and Roy L. Stephenson, Des Moines, Iowa. All three are from cattleproducing states.

Speaking for the panel, Judge Lay stressed that Tuesday's ruling was not made on the merits of the case itself, and meant only that the issue should be remanded to the District Court level for trial and opinion.

Lay said the panel agreed with Judge Denney in that there is a "serious question" as to whether the USDA complied with the orders requiring the filing of an economic impact statment.

Economic impact studies were ordered last year by President Ford. They are to be filed when a government department or agency decides to make a change in operations in an effort to determine if the changes will have an inflationary effect on the economy or will raise consumer prices.

In addition to upholding the preliminary injunction, Judge Lay also ordered that a bond hearing be held within five days to determine if the $5,000 bond filed by the meat packers group is adequate.

Local Groups Will Decide Ag Conservation Funding

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The agriculture conservation practices to be funded this year by the federal government will be decided by local county committees, a federal agriculture official said Tuesday.

Kenneth Frick, administrator of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) was in Lincoln and said:

"Local county committees will have the responsibility of deciding what conservation practices are to be funded within the U.S. Department of Agriculture conservation program in 1975."

Frick, attending the state conference of ASCS committeemen here, said Nebraska would have $4.7 million for conservation practices in Nebraska. Of the total, some $816,000 has already been committed to long term agreement (LTA) conservation problems, which involve lengthy planning by conservation officials and the farmer involved, he said.

Under Fire Recently

Frick, who has been under fire recently for statements that seemed to suggest that some farmers ought to go broke every year for the economic health of agriculture as a whole, was questioned at length on the meaning of his statement by newsmen and by committee members attending the conference.

"It is never a good thing for a farmer to go broke, but we had 7 million farmers when farm programs begun. Today we have about 2.5 million with about 1 million who really contribute to the nation's food supply in an important way. There is no way we can keep everyone on the farm as some people would like to do," he said.

"Some farmers have bad luck. Some are inefficient and some just do a lousy job of farming. When they go broke it gives another farmer a chance to expand," he added.

Loan Rate Hike

Frick told the farmer committeemen that if President Ford vetoes the farm bill it would be possible for Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to administratively increase the loan rate for some grain crops, but added that Butz has no authority to increase the so-called target prices for farmers under existing farm legislation.

Frick suggested that farmers arrange to market a part of their grain crop through an advance contract with their local elevators as tomato farmers do when they sell their crop to canneries.

He also strongly suggested that farmers need to educate the general public about the need to export farm products. "We've got to get the politicians to keep their cotton pickin' hands off the export program or we won't have a market. We should never halt the export of any food unless we actually have people starving in this country," he said.

"We can't sit here fat while people in Africa or Bangladesh are starving to death," he added.

Insurance Program

Frick called for the establishment of an insurance program that would take the risk out of farming due to weather-related disasters to replace the present disaster aid program, which is tied to the crop allotment history of a farm.

"We had some farmers lose their entire corn crop, but couldn't get much help under the disaster program because of the allotment history of the farm," he said.

"A farmer shouldn't be restricted to the kind of crop his grandfather grew nor should the value of his farm be tied to a permit to grow peanuts, rice, tobacco or wheat. That is an artificial factor in land values that must be ended," he said.

Fowl Cholera Said Not Alarming So Far

The extensive waterfowl die-off in south central Nebraska, diagnosed as fowl cholera, does not appear to be cause for undue alarm among poultry producers, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension specialist said this week.

Dr. Phil Gipson, Extension wildlife specialist, said the disease, which killed approximately 5,000 geese and 10,000 ducks, is communicable to domestic fowl, but is apparently confined to wild birds at present.

Waterfowl losses occurred mostly in the rainwater basin area in the Sacramento Game Management Area near Wilcox.

Prevention of the disease in domestic flocks is largely a matter of sanitation, Gipson said.

Persons who have been in contact with dead ducks, geese or other birds that have died from unknown causes should wash carefully and scrub their clothing, including boots, in hot, soapy water before handling domestic fowl or feed.

Waterfowl or other birds that have died on private property should be burned, Gipson advised.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Denver Research Laboratory are involved in an effort to locate all infected waterfowl and cleanup the wetlands area, he said.

"Weather will play an important part as to whether the disease spreads through the wild fowl population," Gipson said.

Wyoming Man Killed In Crash

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)— Clive Williams, 44, Cheyenne, has died in the collision of his car and a semi-trailer rig two miles south of here on U. S. 85.

The Highway Patrol said Williams pulled his car from the driveway of a trailer park into the path of the southbound semi Monday night. He was killed instantly.

The driver of the truck, 39-year-old Dale Scrivems of Scottsbluff, Neb., escaped injury.

Bus Mishap Injures 7 Near Peru

Peru (AP) — Six students and the driver of a Peru school bus were injured, but only one required hospitalization, after an accident in Nemaha County Tuesday morning.

Nemaha County Sheriff Gary Daffer said the bus apparently missed a curve and hit an embankment on a county road, about four miles west and a half mile south of Peru.

A spokesman for the Nemaha County Hospital in Auburn said Joel Gray, 7, of Peru was transferred to University Hospital in Omaha for treatment. He said the boy suffered a broken nose and facial cuts.

Treated and released from the hospital were the driver, Randy McIntosh, 29; Deb Heidzig, 11; Robin McIntosh, 6, daughter of the bus driver; Jody and Jeff Allgood, both 8, and Jeff Vickers, 7, all of Peru.

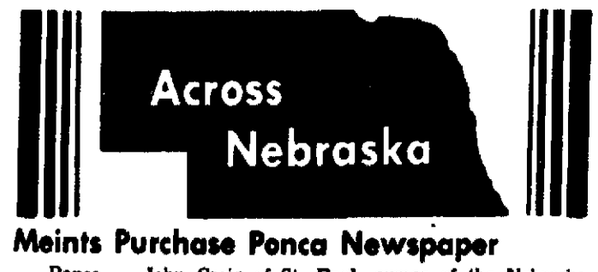

Ramirez Gets Two-Year Term In Road Deaths

Omaha (AP) — A South Omaha automobile accident last July 28 in which two persons died has resulted in a two-year prison term for Javier Ramirez, 21, driver of one of the two cars involved.

Leonar Franklin, 25, Bellevue, and Susan K. Hile, 25, Lowell, Ind., died when the car they were riding in was struck by the one driven by Ramirez.

A subsequent blood test showed Ramirez was legally drunk at the time. He was charged with two counts of felony motor vehicle homicide and pleaded no contest to both Feb. 10.

District Court Judge John E. Clark sentenced him to two years in the Nebraska Penal Complex on each count, but stipulated that the terms be served at the same time.

Cemeteries Get 4-H Care

Efforts to clean up and maintain abandoned cemeteries around the state have received stimulus from several 4-H clubs.

Many small rural cemeteries will be spruced up by Memorial Day through the muscle and hustle of 4-H clubs, according to Elaine Skucius, associate state 4-H leader.

Cemetery clean-up projects mesh well with efforts already underway to beautify surroundings of a community and snowballing Bicentennial activity which emphasizes nostalgia, she said.

Roger Welsch, native Nebraska folklorist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been working with 4-H leaders on ways they can encourage youth to become interested in local heritage.

One of the activities clubs are encouraged to take on, Miss Skucius said, is making a plat of abandoned cemeteries. A club awakens the interest and concern of the entire community by identifying the location of gravesites that are marked, and securing help in identifying areas that are unmarked. This adds to the recorded history of the community, she pointed out.

She cited the B.C. Adventures 4-H Club in Madison County as an example of a club's enterprise in cemetery rejuvenation. The club has established a tradition of cleaning up a small rural cemetery, and since 1970 has accomplished its goal before Memorial Day.

The small cemetery contains just 10 graves, dating from 1874 to 1925.

Another club, the Teens Royal of Papillion, is planning to clean up a rural cemetery, which is over 100 years old. One of the objectives of the club, in addition to physical clean up, is to spur historical interest in the cemetery. Key individuals who settled the area are buried in the cemetery.

Sarpy Sheriff, Teens' Parents Will Have Talk

Papillion (AP) — Take it from Sarpy County Sheriff Pat Thomas: prom night can be an ordeal.

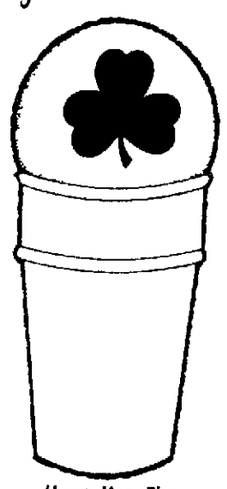

Acting on a tip, Thomas and deputies interrupted an outing of 12 boys and girls, ages 16 and 17, at a motel over the weekend. No one was booked because Thomas recalled he was young once.

The officers said they found barbiturate pills, several "lids" of marijuana, two cases of beer and some birth control pills. Thomas said several of the young people were unclothed.

He said those involved were from the South Omaha and north Sarpy County region.

The sheriff added, though, that county officials will have all of the students' parents in for conferences this week.

Women's Rights Differ Markedly

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Women from foreign lands say:

- Iraqi women no longer hide behind veils; they have entered the working world with equal rights and pay.
- Two Nobel Peace prizes for literature have gone to Chileans, one to a woman — and that in 1945.
- South Vietnamese women played an active role in liberating their nation from the Chinese, then literally ran the country for three years — from 43 to 47 A.D.
- Parents no longer arrange their children's marriages in Rhodesia — but the divorce rate has skyrocketed.

During an International Women's Year (IWY) program Tuesday, natives of those nations told the YWCA World Forum that the status of women varies from land to land.

Situations Vary

In some ways, foreign women have more rights than do their American counterparts; but, in other ways, they have far to go before they catch up.

1975 was designated by the United Nations as IWY, a time to shed light on the status of women the world over and to improve existing inequities.

They do exist.

Rhodesia has two separate education systems — one for boys, the other for girls, Della Mungazi said. Students take separate examinations after their second year of junior high. The girls test out for nursing, home economics and teaching, while boys have opportunities for the better paying trades.

The African nation's one university has a maximum enrollment of 1,200, creating a hardship not only for women but for its nearly six million blacks, she said.

Women have only been allowed to leave the home and hold down jobs since the 1930's, Mrs. Mungazi said. Those who do today still "are not paid equally to men."

And certain areas remain closed to women. The country has "no women, white or black, in parliament" or the law, Mrs. Mungazi added.

Women make up only 20% of the Iraqi work force, said Haifa Thijeel. But even that is an improvement over the mere 5% on payrolls in 1970.

Increase Considerable

And, while women represent 49% of the Middle Eastern nation's population, only 10% of them attended primary school 20 years ago, she pointed out. That now has risen to 45%.

Mrs. Thijeel has the same educational background as her husband. Before coming here so he could attend the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the couple held the same jobs in the same firm. Sometimes she took home more money than he did, she confessed.

Vietnamese women "are of secondary importance" in the country's "economic and social life," said Diem Nguyent, a UNL student. By Oriental custom, women still are submissive to first their fathers, then their husbands, then their eldest sons.

Today, women of the Indochinese land "are assuming many social activities," in the army, in politics, in science, in the arts, she said. South Vietnamese law "recognizes women's equal rights."

Legal Progress

That is but one example of legal progress that is being made around the world to improve women's status, the speakers said.

While American women encounter red tape when they choose to retain their maiden names in marriage, that has long been a customary practice for both Chilean and Iraqi women. In Chile, children also go by both parents' names, said Angela Apalblaza, a Santiago native.

Chilean law allows for separation of property rights in marriage, she said. Whatever a woman earns is hers alone; whatever a man earns belongs to both him and his wife.

The law carries over to estates, as well, Mrs. Apalblaza said. "A woman can leave things to anyone; when the husband dies, half his possessions go to his wife, the other half to his children."

Women have long been entering the professions in Chile, she said. Early this century, Mrs. Apalblaza's female ancestors took up dentistry and the law.

A woman has even been a candidate for president of the South American country. She ran and lost in 1952, she said.

But some professions such as civil engineering, construction and agriculture continue to exclude women, she said.

Scottsbluff (AP) — About 300 students at the Bryant Elementary school here got an unexpected half-day vacation Tuesday when officials discovered a gas leak near the building.

Meanwhile, across the North Platte River in neighboring Gering, an estimated 550 students at the Gering Junior High School had their studies interrupted by a bomb scare.

The elementary students were dismissed late Tuesday morning when a kindergarten teacher, whose classroom is on the east side of the building, detected a strong odor of gas.

Although the odor was not detected in other parts of the building, the students were sent home as a precautionary measure, according to principal Darrell Hunt.

Hunt said a Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co., crew was dispatched to the scene, and found a ruptured gas line leading into the school.

Hunt said the line was slightly nicked last summer during the installation of a nearby sewer line, but was later checked and reinforced to assure that the pipe had not been broken.

Officials theorized that settling earth or road traffic nearby may have contributed to the break.

Hunt said afternoon classes could have been resumed, but he could not locate all of the teachers. Classes will return to normal Wednesday.

In Gering, students were dismissed after an anonymous caller telephoned the school office, saying a bomb had been planted in the school.

The school was evacuated, and firemen searched the building. No explosive devices were found, and students returned to their classrooms about two hours later.

Buffalo Bill Switch Eyed

North Platte (UPI) — A musical production based on the career of Buffalo Bill Cody may replace the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show at North Platte this summer in the Wild West Arena.

Jim McWilliams, president of Visit North Platte, Inc., a nonprofit community tourism development corporation, says the group has adopted a marketing plan that called for the musical production in place of the Wild West Show revival which has been the main summer attraction in the arena for the past four years.

He said the marketing plan was designed to produce paying customers for the show from tourists who travel through the area during the summer season. McWilliams said the tourism group hoped to return a profit on the musical production to make the show self-supporting and to further additional tourism development.

He said the marketing plan outlines the possibilities of developing North Platte's natural tourism advantages into economic benedits for tourism-related businesses and the community.

2½-Year Coma Ends In Death

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled here Wednesday for an Omaha man who died Monday of injuries he suffered in a motorcycle accident more than 2½ years ago.

Steven Paustian, 19, died Monday in a local hospital after remaining in a coma since the accident occurred, Sept. 2, 1972.

Paustian's motorcycle collided with a car at a northside intersection, police records show.

Consumers May Get Federal Funds To Help Air Their Views

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Now that consumers have gained a larger voice in the way their lives are affected , attention is moving to providing them with funds to implement their opinions. Daniel B. Moskowitz covers legal affairs in the Washington bureau of McGraw-Hill World News.)

By DANIEL B. MOSKOWITZ

Washington — Consumers who want to help the federal Trade Commission (FTC) write new regulations will be able to bill the agency for the costs of hiring lawyers and rounding up exert witnesses. It is part of a new package of FTC procedures aimed at making sure that all points of view get out in the open before new rules go into effect.

The first subjects affected by the new approach will be:

— Information that food packagers must put in their ads about the nutritional values of their products.

— The way automobile manufacturers arrive at the mileage claims they make for their cars.

— Safety labeling necessary for cellular plastic home insulation.

— Recruiting promises made by vocational and correspondence schools when they round up students.

The FTC can bring cases against particular companies it feels are using unfair or deceptive tactics on the public. But is has increasingly leaned on a second way of bringing firms in line; Trade regulation rules. These spell out, for a particular industry, just what is proper and what is not: If a firm then gets out of line, it is quicker and easier to bring charges against it, since companies know in advance what is expected to them.

A law signed early this year confirms the Commission's right to issue the rules, but sets up new requirements for all sides to be heard before they become final. The new procedures translate those general instructions from Congress into specific steps.

From here on out, trade regulation rules will be handled in two stages. First, the Commission will ask for written comments about who the interested parties are in any given case, and what the "disputed issues of material fact are." Then there will be open hearings on the rules themselves, in which some representative of each point of view will get to cross-examine each witness. The hearing officer will have the final word on who can ask what questions, for there are to be no appeals from his rulings, But "the presiding officer better be right, 'cause the Court of Appeals is looking right down his throat," says Commission veteran William Dixon, now special assistant for rulemaking.

FTC lawyers think that the new procedures themselves cannot be challenged in court, but that the first rules issued under them are sure to be the subject of litigation, simply because the approach is new.

That same presiding officer will be the person who decides if the commission should pick up the expenses of some group to take part in the hearings. The three key considerations: Is the group's point-of-view different from that of all others taking part? Is it a view that really has to be heard in order for the rule to be a fair one? And is the group unable to pay its own way? Payments will be a somewhat lower scale than the fees charged companies by top-name Washington lawyers, but they are not exactly stingy: Up to $50 an hour for attorney time, and, for consultants and expert witnesses, the same rate that the FTC itself pays such outsiders.

I heard that there was an architectural convention held at the Lincoln Hilton that was sponsored by a state department and paid with taxpayers' money. Is this true?

—Mary Higgins, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It is true that there was an architectural convention during the week of March 23-27 at the Hilton. It was a meeting of the national association of the Collegiate Schools of Architecture, of which the University of Nebraska-Lincoln is a member. UNL hosted the annual conference this year. Money for the convention came from various national architectural associations and included some funds from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Nebraska Arts Council.

I bought a motorcycle which registered zero miles on it. I was told the bike had been used as a demonstrator and had the odometer disconnected. What is the law concerning odometers on new vehicles?

—Jon Shay, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Bill West, Deputy County Attorney, said the state odometer a law, effective since 1974, states "it is unlawful to knowingly tamper with a motor vehicle's odometer except if it is being repaired." Disconnecting the meter for any other purpose is a misdemeanor, he said. The odometer statement, to be filled out by the buyer and filed with the county clerk's office for vehicles made after 1968 should "state actual mileage."

On Feb. 10 I shipped two pups from Wichita, Kan. to Louisville, Ky. C.O.D. by R.E.A. Air Express. The pups were valued at $330 but I have not received the money. I was told by R.E.A. to write to a New York law firm about the situation, so I did, but still no money. Can you help?

—Glenda Minnig, Chester

ACTION LINE: Mrs. Jasmine Melzer, administrative manager for the Arthur Wisehart law firm had no record of your letter. Their firm is handling R.E.A. funds that were frozen after Feb. 18 because of reorganization of the express company. All C.O.D. orders will be honored she said. A copy of the express order on file was sufficient proof for them to send you the check, pronto.

I purchased an afghan kit from Ben Franklin's in Meadow Lane. The kit was to contain white, orange and brown yarn. I have run out of brown and have too much white. A letter to the company, Needlecraft Corp. of America in Chicago, brought no results. How can I finish the afghan?

—Mrs. Alice DeVries, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Your letter was received by Needlecraft Corp., according to customer service manager, Eve Sullivan. Two ounces of brown yarn were mailed to you March 21 to finish the afghan she said. The package should be arriving any day.

We have a problem with our gas bill. The bill jumped $27 from one month to the next. We called Cengas for a meter reading and they sent a man out. Now they say they have no record of this. Can you clear the situation up?

—Kim Brown, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We contacted Dick Sievers, commercial manager for Cengas, about the problem. He promised to get in touch with you, but refused further comment. If the results are unsatisfactory, contact Action line.

We received a questionnaire from Baby Health Research Institute in Illinois on our baby food purchasing habits. I noted that Food Club, Hinky Dink's house brand was listed as a possible answer along with three national brands. Does Hinky Dinky have any connection with this research?

—Duane E. Polzien, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Alan Noodle, of Omaha, vice president of sales and merchandising for Hinky Dinky, said the food chain had no knowledge of the survey. "We are a member of Topco, the organization responsible for the Food Club label, along with 31 other chains across the nation," he said. "Because of the wide range of the distributors they rank in the national market with other well-known brands." He said that may be the reason the label was listed as a choice.

January 5 I ordered the album "Country Guys and Gals" from KETV station in Omaha. My check was cashed Jan. 16 and I have since sent a letter to the station, but have received no album or an explanation as to where it is. Can you help?

D. M. Schleiger, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The promotional representative from the station that has been handling orders for the albums said no other problems had occured involving the company, but said she would contact the firm to find what happened to your order. She will write directly to you as soon as she has a satisfactory answer.

Ex-GM Official Favors Air Bags

Bloomfield Hills, Mich. (AP) — Highway fatalities will increase as auto fuel economy improves in the next decade unless air bags are made mandatory for cars, a former General Motors executive said.

John Z. De Lorean, a former GM vice president, said a proposed Department of Transportation rule requiring front-seat air bags on new model cars should be implemented "as soon as possible."

Long, Cold Winter Over—In Hawaii?

HONOLULU (AP) — At last spring is here, and people are talking about the long, hard winter just past.

An informal survey turned up these representative comments:

"I've been freezing all winter."

"This is the coldest I've ever been here."

"I have to wear a jogging suit around the house to keep warm at night."

The headline over a newspaper weather report complains: "Brrr!"

A TV weather reporter tells his viewers: "Let's hope we don't get frozen out of bed again tomorrow."

Some students are seen walking to early classes in parkas and boots.

What are the people talking and shivering about? An average low temperature of about 65 degrees.

Honolulu's winter weather forecast could almost be written in stone: "Mostly fair, trade winds, 5 to 15 miles per hour. Low tonight 65, high tomorrow 82." In spring it's about the same. In summer, add about six degrees.

Significant departures from these average are infrequent. But Hawaii has weather, Hawaii has season, just like Colorado or Connecticut.

"You have to be here a couple of years before you notice," says one resident. "Your blood gets thinner, and you feel little changes. You can tell it's spring when it's a little warmer and drier and the plants give a different scent to the air."

Adaptive metabolism and high humidity make warm temperatures seem colder. And since houses are unheated and well ventilated a 65-degree night outside could be almost a 65-degree night inside.

Thus during the winter months stores do a business in electric blankets and furry slippers that is a good deal more brisk than the climate.

In January the average low was 64.6, 1.3 degrees lower than the long-term average. The lowest minimum was 56, three degrees warmer than the coldest temperature ever recorded by the Weather Service in Honolulu.

The subtle delights of changing temperatures and seasons are only for systems adapted to the semitropical climate. For tourists it's always shirt-sleeve weather.

Now we can tell three million more people that you're a good guy. (If you are)

With your help we can tell millions more next year.

There's new energy at your Better Business Bureau. Our recently-formed national Council is helping local Bureaus pool their strength. Businessmen everywhere are helping. We're increasing our service. We're doing more now than ever to encourage good relations between you and consumers.

Our capacity to handle phone calls has increased by over three million a year. That means we can tell three million more consumers about a company's reputation or help them when they call with complaints.

That's three million more consumers who will have a better chance of getting their money's worth. And a better opinion of business. Because business itself is the force behind the Better Business Bureau.

If we can keep growing like this, we'll be able to increase our service to three million more people next year. But our growth is more than telephone calls.

We've expanded our consumer education programs, through radio announcements and printed materials, to reach ten million shoppers with good buying advice. We'd like to reach even more.

We've established fifty arbitration panels across the country where consumers and businessmen can iron out problems together. Hopefully, fifty is just the beginning.

We've started to computerize so Bureaus can have up-to-date information on consumer attitudes and marketplace developments. We intend to finish.

And we've just begun a public service advertising campaign with the help of The Advertising Council. It will tell millions of Americans that the Better Business Bureau is their place to "speak up" to get their money's worth.

The more we grow, the more we can let consumers know that we—and you—care about them.

Would you like to help? To learn how, write the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 845 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022.

Legislature Revives Helmet Bill

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Confronting the possible loss of $7 million in annual federal highway funds, the Legislature Tuesday changed its mind and revived a bill which would require motorcycle riders to wear helmets.

The measure, LB328, killed on a 23-20 vote eight days ago, was restored to life on a 28-14 vote. It now awaits first stage floor consideration.

Speaker Jules Burbach of Crofton promised senators he will meet with federal highway officials in Washington April 25 to negotiate the minimal standards which will be required in state law to head off any loss of federal funds.

In Burbach's words, he will determine "what legislation this body could get by with."

Coercion Objected To

Opponents of the bill object to the coercion involved in the threat to withhold federal funds and challenge the contention that helmets, which may diminish vision and hearing ability, are a positive safety factor.

At stake are $5 million in annual highway construction funds, and $2 million in annual federal highway safety funds.

"It is very fine to be independent if you can afford it," Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff noted in offering his motion to revive the bill.

Taking note of previous legislative complaints about federal "blackmail," Nichol suggested, "what is blackmail to one man is minimum (safety) standards to another."

'Jump Through Hoop'

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue said the federal government is asking the Nebraska Legislature to "jump through the hoop and crawl on your belly."

Such coercion, based on payment of money, makes the Legislature "a street walker," Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said.

The next thing the federal government will demand is helmets for horse riders, Lewis said.

Gov. J. James Exon's request that the Legislature reconsider its previous action killing the bill is typical of his treatment of the Unicameral as "the governor's clown . . . a bunch of dummies," Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said.

Retaliation Eyed

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island wondered how the federal government would react if Nebraska withheld $7 million in funding from Washington "in retaliation."

This state cannot "independently defy the federal government," Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica said. The states need to construct "a uniform front" if they hope to wipe out future federal action shutting off highway construction funds, he said.

Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney said he supports LB328 because "I believe it will save lives."

Medical authorities have told him that between 70% and 80% of the lives lost in motorcycle accidents might have been saved if the riders were wearing headgear, Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston said.

'Wants To Help'

Burbach said he arranged his meeting with federal officials through Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann, Nebraska's former governor. Tiemann, Burbach said, assured him on the telephone Tuesday that he "wants to help" prevent loss of funds for the state.

Federal highway safety legislation provides for the withholding of 10% of a state's highway construction money if it fails to comply with federal highway safety mandates.

Lewis has introduced a legislative resolution asking Nebraska's congressional delegation to launch an investigation into federal coercion practices directed at the states.

Here is the vote to revive the bill:

For: Anderson, Bereuter, Burbach, Carsten, Cavanaugh, Cope, Fowler, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Johnson, Kennedy, Keyes, Kime, Koch, Kremer, Luedtke, Maresh, Marsh, Marvel, Moylan, Murphy, Nichol, Skarda, Stull, Swigart, Syas, Warner, Wiltse.

Against: Barnett, Burrows, Chambers, DeCamp, Dickinson, Fitzgerald, Kelly, F. Lewis, Mills, Rasmussen, Rumery, Schmit, Simpson, Stoney.

Absent or Not Voting: Clark, Duis, Dworak, George, R. Lewis, Mahoney, Savage.

LAP To Ask Youths What They Want and Need

Lincoln Action Program (LAP) is sounding kids out on their wants and needs.

The agency serving the community's low-incomed is sponsoring a youth symposium at the YMCA, 11th and P Sts., from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday to get input from young people themselves.

Ideas from youths will be used for planning LAP's Youth Development Project for the summer months and the next school year.

For more information, contact the Youth Development office at 475-4961.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Penalty For Late Budget Said 'Difficult To Enforce'

State senators really know how to hurt a guy.

At least 16 state agency administrators would have been threatened with "fines" for late budget submissions if a legislative bill tightening budget preparation requirements were in effect last year.

Former State Institutions Director Jack Anderson might have been asked to forfeit $19,467 of his $37,500 salary for completing his agency's budget request 163 days after the Sept. 15 statutory deadline.

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner might have been asked to pay back $11,273 of his $44,400 salary for finishing the university's budget request 90 days after the deadline.

66,135 Workdays

The cost to Varner would have been $170.80 per day for 66 tardy workdays. Anderson would have been liable to $144.20 a day for 135 workdays.

Those figures were compiled Tuesday by Administrative Services Director Stan Matzke Jr.

But Matzke said the bill, already targeted for veto by Gov. J. James Exon, would be "difficult or impossible to enforce."

Matzke said he "shares the frustration of senators in getting agencies to respond" to budgetary requirements, including submission deadlines.

"But there must be a better way to hold them responsible."

Salary At Stake

The bill, LB473, would require state agency heads to forfeit their salary for each day their budget request is tardy.

But Matzke said he doubts that such a mandate could be enforced against the state's constitutional officers, including the attorney general and the secretary of state, both of whom missed the budget deadline last year.

"I would be in the position of asking an opinion from the attorney general on whether I could constitutionally dock him for part of his salary," Matzke noted. "I assume that I couldn't do it."

Former Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer handed in his budget request 22 days late last year; Secretary of State Allen Beermann beat him by one day.

Problems Noted

Matzke said the bill, already approved by the Legislature, presents other problems.

If the Public Institutions budget is late because the department had to wait for budget requests from one or more of its regional mental health directors, there is a question as to who should be fined, he noted.

Last year, for instance, Region VI (Omaha) did not submit its budget request until 163 days after the deadline.

In that case, Matzke wondered, would Anderson have been docked for the $19,467 or would the regional director have to turn over a portion of his $28,000 salary?

Responsibility Unclear

In the case of budgets submitted by boards or commissions, Matzke said, it would be difficult to determine whether the chairman of the board or its executive officer or secretary would be responsible for tardy submission.

At the university, Matzke wondered, would Varner be responsible or would each campus chancellor be responsible if the delay occurred at the campus level?

Privacy Rights Removed From New Rape Law

Members of the Legislature did some more revising Tuesday on LB23, which would make the first changes in the state's rape laws since 1877.

The lawmakers gave 25-1 approval to an amendment from Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, which would remove some of the bill's language dealing with privacy rights.

Luedtke said it would be much better to defer trying to specify laws of privacy until a comprehensive job could be done so the statutes would deal with all privacy rights, and not just those concerned with sexual activities.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, chief spokesman for the bill, asked that further action on it be postponed until Wednesday because Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha wants to propose other amendments.

When the measure was debated a week ago, Chambers said he could not agree with the penalty sections, arguing there was too much of a discrepancy in punishments that would be imposed for various offenses.

Plant Sciences Building Request Grows Considerably

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

With the nourishment of 40 farm and agri-business organizations, the proposed $6,750,000 plant sciences building at the University of Nebraska blossomed Tuesday into a complex whose cost was estimated between $11.6 million and $14 million.

The revised proposal was presented to the Legislature's Appropriations Committee by NU's Lincoln chancellor, James Zumberge, and John Klinker, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

A program statement outlining the new proposal will be presented to the Board of Regents at its May meeting, Zumberge said.

The university's formal request currently stands at $6,750,000, including $1,232,000 in requested funding for fiscal 1975-76.

Greenhouse, Headhouse

In addition to boosting the cost of the projected laboratory-office building, the revised plan includes funding for a greenhouse and headhouse at Lincoln's East Campus.

"This is fundamental to the health of Nebraska agriculture in terms of crop productivity," Zumberge said.

It would "speed up research, improve teaching" and expand extension activities, Klinker said, particularly aiming at "greater development in dryland farm areas" of the state.

Agriculture, "the principal provider of tax funds" in Nebraska, is willing to endure an increase in the state income tax to pay for the project, if that proves necessary, Klinker said.

Fund Source Suggested

Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings suggested another possible source of funding — either by reducing state aid to schools by $15 million or turning technical community colleges over to local areas for local tax support, without state aid.

Either alternative would place a heavier burden on property taxes, a source of revenue long opposed by agricultural interests.

The plant sciences project was included for a minor $20,000 planning grant in Gov. J. James Exon's budget recommendation. No immediate funding was recommended by the legislative fiscal office.

The facility is Number Three on the university's priority list of 37 capital construction projects.

Myriad Of Requests

At a marathon hearing Tuesday, the Appropriations Committee heard a myriad of requests for what seems destined to be a small 1975-76 capital construction budget.

NU Vice President William Erskine said the top priority on the university's three campuses is a $1.6 million request to meet fire and safety standards.

Number Two on the university's list is an $8 million ambulatorium at the Medical Center in Omaha.

Federal Funding

That project has won a $5.5 million federal funding grant if the state pledges the other $2.5 million by July 29, Tom Smith, executive director of business and finance at the Medical Center, told the committee.

NU wants $1.2 million in funding for 1975-76, and the remaining funds in the following year.

The structure is designed to expand outpatient teaching and care at the institution.

Exon has approved the $1.2 million request for 1975-76. No funding was recommended by the legislative fiscal staff.

Chancellor Ronald Roskens said the University of Nebraska at Omaha's top priority is construction of a $10 million continuing education center in downtown Omaha.

$5 Million Donations

If the state pledges funding this year, a $5 million donation is available from an anonymous source, Roskens said.

NU is requesting a $1.8 million appropriation for the coming year.

Exon proposed a $10,000 planning grant; the legislative fiscal office recommended no funding at this time.

Roskens said he has been informed tht the $10,000 would not be sufficient to hold the $5 million private pledge.

But $100,000 would, Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha said.

Perhaps the facility could be financed with bonds guaranteed by state cigarette tax revenue, he said.

Resolution Would Seek Prompt Meat Payments

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture and Environment Committee Tuesday introduced a resolution calling for the U.S. Department of Agriculture or Congress to take steps to insure prompt payment for meat by retailers.

The resolution, LR31, contends retail sellers of meat and meat products, in purchasing their products from packers and other wholesalers, almost universally delay payment from seven to 28 days.

"The delay in paying for said meat and meat products results in the receipt of interest income by said retailers of many million of dollars annually, at the expense of packers and other wholesalers," the resolution says.

The resolution calls the practice "inherently unfair" and says the practice places "an unacceptable burden on the cattle producing industry, which is already in the worst economic crisis in history."

The resolution calls for Congress to take action if the USDA fails to take regulatory steps to end the delay in payments.

Hotel Tax Proposal Tortured, But Alive

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Tuesday tortured, but refused to kill, a bill which would allow cities and counties to place a 3% sales tax on hotel accommodations to promote tourism.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said LB339 "would create a special slush fund to play with."

The bill was introduced by Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney.

Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh moved to amend the bill to strike the sales tax on lodging and place a $10 tax on people traveling through Kearney.

The Lincoln Sen. Jerome Warner moved to add Omaha to the list of towns where the $10 toll would apply. Warner's amendment was successfully added to Cavanaugh's, but they both went down 11-18 when Cavanaugh attempted to attach them to the bill.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' motion to kill the bill failed 20-23. The bill was set for further action May 1.

Women Sue State's Compensation Court

The Nebraska Workmen's Compensation Court discriminates against its women employes on the basis of sex, three women claimed in a suit filed in U.S. District Court.

When one of the women threatened to file a complaint against the alleged discrimination, the suit claims, the three women were fired.

The suit was filed against the court, Judge Ben Novicoff and John Thornton, personnel director of the court.

The list of alleged sex discriminations included:

— firing eight women for incompetence, with no rules and regulations of employe conduct or written warning of incompetence, while no men were fired for the same reason.

— letting men smoke at their desks, but not women.

— letting men have radios or stereos at their desks, but not women.

— letting male employes take coffee breaks in the State Capitol cafeteria, but forcing female employes to take theirs in a crowded room on the 13th floor.

— permitting only one woman to purchase coffee and rolls for all women, while allowing men to purchase theirs individually.

— prohibiting women from buying rolls in the afternoon but not men.

The suit asks U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom to order the court to stop the alleged discrimination.

It also seeks $30,000 apiece for the three women, back pay since they were fired, and asks the court to clear their employment records.

The women were fired on Aug. 20, 1973. They filed the suit after their earlier complaint filed with the Office of Equal Opportunity and the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission expired.

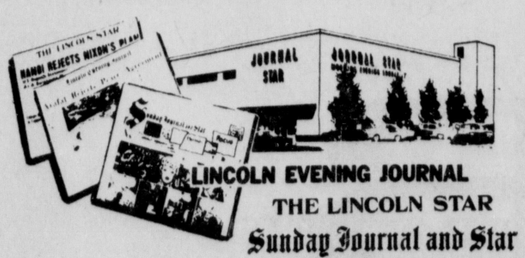

Ingram To Be RI President Under Trustee

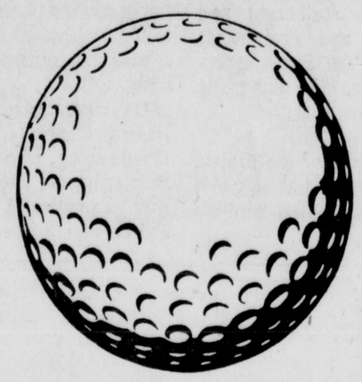

CHICAGO (AP) — John W. Ingram will continue as president and chief executive officer of the Rock Island Lines while it is being financially reorganized under a court-appointed trustee, the railroad announced.

The trustee, William M. Gibbons, said Ingram's ideas for rebuilding the railroad are valid but that he has not had the time to implement them. Ingram has been with the railroad since November after being administrator of the Federal Railroad Administration.

Plant Sciences Building Request Grows Considerably

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

With the nourishment of 40 farm and agri-business organizations, the proposed $6,750,000 plant sciences building at the University of Nebraska blossomed Tuesday into a complex whose cost was estimated between $11.6 million and $14 million.

The revised proposal was presented to the Legislature's Appropriations Committee by NU's Lincoln chancellor, James Zumberge, and John Klinker, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

A program statement outlining the new proposal will be presented to the Board of Regents at its May meeting, Zumberge said.

The university's formal request currently stands at $6,750,000, including $1,232,000 in requested funding for fiscal 1975-76.

Greenhouse, Headhouse

In addition to boosting the cost of the projected laboratory-office building, the revised plan includes funding for a greenhouse and headhouse at Lincoln's East Campus.

"This is fundamental to the health of Nebraska agriculture in terms of crop productivity," Zumberge said.

It would "speed up research, improve teaching" and expand extension activities, Klinker said, particularly aiming at "greater development in dryland farm areas" of the state.

Agriculture, "the principal provider of tax funds" in Nebraska, is willing to endure an increase in the state income tax to pay for the project, if that proves necessary, Klinker said.

Fund Source Suggested

Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings suggested another possible source of funding — either by reducing state aid to schools by $15 million or turning technical community colleges over to local areas for local tax support, without state aid.

Either alternative would place a heavier burden on property taxes, a source of revenue long opposed by agricultural interests.

The plant sciences project was included for a minor $20,000 planning grant in Gov. J. James Exon's budget recommendation. No immediate funding was recommended by the legislative fiscal office.

The facility is Number Three on the university's priority list of 37 capital construction projects.

Myriad Of Requests

At a marathon hearing Tuesday, the Appropriations Committee heard a myriad of requests for what seems destined to be a small 1975-76 capital construction budget.

NU Vice President William Erskine said the top priority on the university's three campuses is a $1.6 million request to meet fire and safety standards.

Number Two on the university's list is an $8 million ambulatorium at the Medical Center in Omaha.

Federal Funding

That project has won a $5.5 million federal funding grant if the state pledges the other $2.5 million by July 29, Tom Smith, executive director of business and finance at the Medical Center, told the committee.

NU wants $1.2 million in funding for 1975-76, and the remaining funds in the following year.

The structure is designed to expand outpatient teaching and care at the institution.

Exon has approved the $1.2 million request for 1975-76. No funding was recommended by the legislative fiscal staff.

Chancellor Ronald Roskens said the University of Nebraska at Omaha's top priority is construction of a $10 million continuing education center in downtown Omaha.

$5 Million Donations

If the state pledges funding this year, a $5 million donation is available from an anonymous source, Roskens said.

NU is requesting a $1.8 million appropriation for the coming year.

Exon proposed a $10,000 planning grant; the legislative fiscal office recommended no funding at this time.

Roskens said he has been informed tht the $10,000 would not be sufficient to hold the $5 million private pledge.

But $100,000 would, Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha said.

Perhaps the facility could be financed with bonds guaranteed by state cigarette tax revenue, he said.

Resolution Would Seek Prompt Meat Payments

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture and Environment Committee Tuesday introduced a resolution calling for the U.S. Department of Agriculture or Congress to take steps to insure prompt payment for meat by retailers.

The resolution, LR31, contends retail sellers of meat and meat products, in purchasing their products from packers and other wholesalers, almost universally delay payment from seven to 28 days.

"The delay in paying for said meat and meat products results in the receipt of interest income by said retailers of many million of dollars annually, at the expense of packers and other wholesalers," the resolution says.

The resolution calls the practice "inherently unfair" and says the practice places "an unacceptable burden on the cattle producing industry, which is already in the worst economic crisis in history."

The resolution calls for Congress to take action if the USDA fails to take regulatory steps to end the delay in payments.

Hotel Tax Proposal Tortured, But Alive

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Tuesday tortured, but refused to kill, a bill which would allow cities and counties to place a 3% sales tax on hotel accommodations to promote tourism.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said LB339 "would create a special slush fund to play with."

The bill was introduced by Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney.

Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh moved to amend the bill to strike the sales tax on lodging and place a $10 tax on people traveling through Kearney.

The Lincoln Sen. Jerome Warner moved to add Omaha to the list of towns where the $10 toll would apply. Warner's amendment was successfully added to Cavanaugh's, but they both went down 11-18 when Cavanaugh attempted to attach them to the bill.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' motion to kill the bill failed 20-23. The bill was set for further action May 1.

Women Sue State's Compensation Court

The Nebraska Workmen's Compensation Court discriminates against its women employes on the basis of sex, three women claimed in a suit filed in U.S. District Court.

When one of the women threatened to file a complaint against the alleged discrimination, the suit claims, the three women were fired.

The suit was filed against the court, Judge Ben Novicoff and John Thornton, personnel director of the court.

The list of alleged sex discriminations included:

— firing eight women for incompetence, with no rules and regulations of employe conduct or written warning of incompetence, while no men were fired for the same reason.

— letting men smoke at their desks, but not women.

— letting men have radios or stereos at their desks, but not women.

— letting male employes take coffee breaks in the State Capitol cafeteria, but forcing female employes to take theirs in a crowded room on the 13th floor.

— permitting only one woman to purchase coffee and rolls for all women, while allowing men to purchase theirs individually.

— prohibiting women from buying rolls in the afternoon but not men.

The suit asks U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom to order the court to stop the alleged discrimination.

It also seeks $30,000 apiece for the three women, back pay since they were fired, and asks the court to clear their employment records.

The women were fired on Aug. 20, 1973. They filed the suit after their earlier complaint filed with the Office of Equal Opportunity and the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission expired.

Term 'Feminist Historian' Viewed as 'Contradiction'

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Soapboxes and the study of history don't mix.

That creates something of a dilemma for women historians who consider themselves feminists, according to Jane Hood, University of Nebraska-Lincoln instructor of history.

"There's a contradiction in the term 'feminist historian,'" Ms. Hood said Tuesday, during a Student-Y sponsored Women/Speak.

'Feminism Is An Ism'

"Feminism is, after all, an ism," Ms. Hood continued. Of necessity, it implies a bias.

History, on the other hand, "is, or at least should be, a critical, objective analysis of the past.

"It's hard to say what is or was when you're advocating something," Ms. Hood said. As a result, she puts her feminist beliefs in a "temporary limbo" when it comes to historical analysis.

And, she said, many modern-day feminists would do well to follow suit.

'Shuttered Minds' Hit

Expressing concern that the feminist movement has come to be dominated by "true believers," Ms. Hood said that "shuttered Minds" are a peril to the cause.

What the movement needs is "an accurate, objective analysis" of womankind's past.

The attitudes of historical figugres like St. Paul, Martin Luther and John Calvin towards women may be hard to take, Ms. Hood said.

But it is a mistake to dismiss their ideas as outrageous; to persist in viewing historical woman as "always and simply" the victim of oppression.

'Pauline Attitude'

In order to be effective, "we have to consider the origins and effects of the Pauline attitude towards women," Ms. Hood said.

"How can you improve society if you are not accurately informed about it?"

In the realm of women's history per se, it's difficult to be well-informed, according to UNL assistant professor of history, Ann Kleimola, who also took part in the program.

Scholars have been negligent in their study of the historical woman, she said. Consequently, there is "very little we know about what women have been doing.

'Runs In Cycles'

"Interest in women's history runs in cycles," Ms. Kleimola explained.

During the 1940's and 1950's, when "motherhood mania" swept the country, the interest was at a low ebb.

The decade of the 1960's brought a reversal.

A revived interest in social history, the beginning of the new women's movement, and the influx of women into graduate schools of history brought women back into the historical limelight, Ms. Kleimola said.

Yet despite this newfound interest, a lot remains to be done, she continued.

'Time To Go Beyond'

"It's time to go beyond" the traditional historical emphasis on women's involvement in various social movements. Women's history should be integrated into the more general study of history, Ms. Kleimola said.

Historians should concern themselves with the way society has defined women anad their roles; the nature of the roles women in reality, have filled; and the feminine response to social, political and intellectual climates, she said.

Not all historians believe that women's history is a legitimate area of scholarly inquiry, Ms. Hood added.

But, hopefully, this "Arear guard" attitude is "a diminishing point view in our profession."

Climate To Get Ft. Omaha Said 'Favorable'

By United Press International

The climate for deeding Fort Omaha over to the Indians is "very favorable," said the Nebraska Indian Commission director.

However, Robert Mackey said in a Tuesday interview he was not voicing his opinion in his official capacity as director of the Indian Commission, but rather as a member of the Nebraska's Indian community.

He said a year ago the commission was asked by the Omaha Tribe not to get formally involved in the matter and "we've respected that request." As a result, Mackey said while he and others have been involved it has been solely as private citizens.

As of now, however, the matter is in the hands of the courts where an injunction is being sought by three different Indian groups to block turning over the fort to any other party. A hearing has been set for Friday in Omaha before U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney.

Metropolitan Technical Community College in Omaha is interested in getting the fort facilities, but extensions on any action have been granted through the efforts of Sen. Carl Curtis.

The Indian groups, in the petition filed in federal court, said they did not have sufficient time to research Indian rights to the land and to file formal applications.

Mackey, who said he was by no means trying to interfere with the litigation, said he felt that if treaty language exists on turning the fort over to the Indians, "there really is no recourse" but to turn it over.

The director also said from the plans he has been told about there is no intention of "putting up a fence" around the fort if acquired by the Indians and allow no one else to use any facilities. Instead, he said original plans would allow for sharing the facilities.

Cozad Center Contracts Get OK

Gov. J. James Exon announced Tuesday approval of the program statement and architectural and engineering contracts for the State Education Department's diagnostic resource center at Cozad.

The total cost of the project has been estimated at $600,000, which was appropriated by the Legislature last year.

Exon said the goal of the center is to develop programs for handicapped children which would be applied in the home, school and community environment.

The contracts given approval listed Clark & Enersen, Hamersky, Schlaebitz, Burroughs and Thomsen of Lincoln as vendors of architectural and engineering services.

Music, Art, Politics To Top Venezuela Festival At NU

Music, art and politics will come to the fore in the second week of the Venezuelan Festival at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Soprano Fedora Aleman will present a concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Kimball Hall. A student at conservatories in Caracas, Vienna and Paris, she won international attention as an opera singer in Bordeaux, France.

Venezuelan political development will be the topic of a talk by Dr. Marco Bruni-Celli at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Nebraska Union. As a diplomat and government delegate, he represented Venezuela at the United Nations Organization in Geneva with special reference to the International Labor Organization's activities.

The final events of the Venezuelan Festival include: a dance recital by Sonia Sanoja, 8 p.m. Sunday in the women's physical education building; folk dances by an international touring company, 8 p.m. next Wednesday in Kimball Hall; and a lecture on Venezuelan economic development by Jose Abreu, 3:30 p.m. next Thursday in the Nebraska Union.

The exhibition of Venezuelan sculpture, painting, graphics, tapestry and enamels will be on display at Sheldon through May 2.

Price Fixers Deliver Speeches, Avoid Jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Robert J. Rodgers it was make the speech or go to jail. He gripped the lectern tightly as he started.

"When I say I'm glad to be here, I really mean it," said the lean, gray-haired printing company president. "The options are rather horrendous."

His audience, about 75 members of the Printing Industry of Northern California, who had elected him their president, responded with friendly, hearty, room-filling laughter.

They knew, too, that instead of dining and talking with them he could have been behind prison bars for antitrust price fixing.

Rodgers is one of five convicted price fixers sentenced to a year of publicly preaching the doctrine of open marketplace competition.

By making 12 speeches describing their antitrust prosecution they will escape jail terms of up to six months. Rogers had been fined $10,000 and given a suspended six-month sentence.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles B. Renfrew made the unusual ruling, saying that his intent was to impress in the business community that price fixing, like unlawful political contributions, is a threat to American society.

He said corporation executives must recognize the public's post-Watergate mood demands prison terms for white-collar offenders.

"In inflationary times and with the increased public concern about a dual standard in criminal sentencing, I think an antitrust violator stands a real risk of going to prison," Renfrew said.

"I hope you listen, because I think the message from the court is loud and clear," Rodgers, president of H.S. Crocker Co., Inc., told fellow trade group members in his speech. "The government is moving rapidly and dramatically for stricter and stricter enforcement of the antitrust laws."

He reminded them of a new law increasing maximum antitrust fines from $50,000 to $1 million for corporations and $100,000 for individuals. Jail terms for individuals were boosted from one year to three years. The previous misdemeanor offense now is a felony.

The so-called Paper Label case came before Judge Renfrew on a 1974 federal grand jury indictment charging price fixing conspiracy against nine corporations and eight executives in the business of producing paper labels for canned, bottled and packaged goods.

The indictment charged that since 1966 the companies had kept prices artificially high and noncompetitive by exchanging price information and tacitly agreeing that none would offer a lower bid to a food company traditionally served by one of the group.

The nine companies were International Paper Co. of New York; Diamond International Co. of New York; Stecher-Traung-Schmidt Co. of Rochester, N.Y.; H.S. Crocker Co., Inc., of San Bruno, Calif.; Fort Dearborn Lithogragh Co. of Chicago; Piedmont Label Co. of Bedford, Va.; H.M. Smyth Co. of St. Paul, Minn., and Litton Business Systems and Michigan Lithographing Co. of Grand Rapids.

Renfrew imposed fines ranging from $10,000 to $50,000 last October.

The eight accused executives were given suspended jail terms of from three months to six months each with a year's probation. He also assessed fines ranging from $5,000 to $15,000.

Rodgers detailed in his trade group speech what it was like to be investigated and charged with an antitrust violation. The case began in 1971 and extended through 1974.

"I don't think there was a single day or night during that period when there was not some kind of nagging worry and concern about the involvement and the horrible potential of a maximum $50,000 fine and a maximum one-year jail sentence," said Rodgers. "My own children — all now grown — were concerned about whether their father was a criminal, because that's what they were reading in the papers."

"I thought that the things we did in and for our business were perfectly justifiable in terms of economics. It never occurred to me that we could possibly be guilty of crimes against the government or society.

"But that's what violations of the antitrust laws are in the eyes of the courts. They are crimes against society.

"Simply stated, any effort to restrict from open competition is against the law. So I say to all of you, and I can't say it often enough or loudly enough: Don't do anything in the price fixing field that would have any hint of illegality."

When a questioner asked if he could describe precisely the conduct that got him in trouble, Rodgers replied:

"No. I'm not going to try to be a legal eagle. You should ask your own lawyers."

Stanford Law School students put the same question to Alonzo R. Acosta, Stecher-Traug-Schmidt vice president, who was fined $5,000 with a suspended three-month sentence.

Acosta said the typical price fixing episode would take place on a golf course or at a night club.

"The other guy would ask me if I was putting labor into my price and I'd say 'yes' and he'd say he would do the same."

Price Fixers Deliver Speeches, Avoid Jail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Robert J. Rodgers it was make the speech or go to jail. He gripped the lectern tightly as he started.

"When I say I'm glad to be here, I really mean it," said the lean, gray-haired printing company president. "The options are rather horrendous."

His audience, about 75 members of the Printing Industry of Northern California, who had elected him their president, responded with friendly, hearty, room-filling laughter.

They knew, too, that instead of dining and talking with them he could have been behind prison bars for antitrust price fixing.

Rodgers is one of five convicted price fixers sentenced to a year of publicly preaching the doctrine of open marketplace competition.

By making 12 speeches describing their antitrust prosecution they will escape jail terms of up to six months. Rogers had been fined $10,000 and given a suspended six-month sentence.

To Your Good Health:

Victims Of Injury Or Stroke Should Not Be Moved

Dear Dr. Thosteson: People have been warned not to move accident victims unnecessarily (I've seen a case, I believe, where they should have been told that). Doesn't the same apply in case of a stroke?

My husband had a stroke. I called the doctor and an ambulance ans reassured him but left him lying there for the ambulance men to handle.

Of course the fact that he weighs twice as much as I do had something to do with my good judgment. At any rate he was recovering and home in four days.

Isn't is a mistake to pick up the victim and seat him on a chair, as they did to someone I knew? Maybe she would have died anyway, but I don't think that moving her helped. People seem to think we "must do something." — L.S.S.

You are entirely right. True, it's human desire to want to "do something," but within certain limits the less you do the better. Doing something seldom helps, it can do substantial harm.

For either an injured or a stroke victim, the collar should be loosened, the head turned to one side to avoid "swallowing the tongue" and obstructing the airway, and possibly the head may be raised on a pillow.

But that's about all — except, of course, if the victim should fall against a hot pipe, a radiator, stove, or such hazard, move him gently.

Other than that, wait for the doctor to decide what to do. Because there is little to be done immediately for a stroke victim except exactly what you did. Getting him up on a chair is totally pointless. He's better off lying down and being kept calm.

In violent accidents, pressure ought to be applied to stop heavy bleeding and, if you know what you are doing, a tourniquet may be needed, but clumsy tourniquets can do more damage than good. And if there are bone fractures, by all means, the least movement possible!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 and have tried different advertised products to make my hair grow. Is there any special cream or medicine to make it grow long? I'm fed up with these advertisements. I've tried everything. You name it, I've tried it. — L.F.

Most of us have a "natural length" and when hairs reach that length, they break off and new ones start to grow. I'm sorry, but I just don't know of any way to change this. But the great number of patent "remedies" advertised would indicate that a lot of people keep hoping.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a check up and was found in excellent health except that he has a fast heart beat. He leads a quiet life — no anxieties.

He checked his own heart beat. It was 88. What is normal? — A.C.R.

A normal beat can be anywhere from 60 to 90 beats per minute.

His self check may not be the best way to find out. It is better to have someone else do the counting. The 88 is getting close to the upper limit of normal, but often apprehension about taking one's one pulse can raise it a few beats or more. Anxiety about the examination in the doctor's office may quicken the pulse. (Blood pressure readings also can be a bit higher under such circumstances.)

Anxiety is not the only cause of fast heart rates. Overweight, excessive coffee or cola drinking, and smoking are causes. Subtle overactivity of the thyroid gland is another.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a health advantage in drinking distilled water? — T.Y.

None that I know of unless the regular drinking supply is odorous or contaminated. If so, it can be purified with chemicals you can buy in the store.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Do you exercise at least once a week?

The Nebraska Medical Association says that if you exercise regularly once a week you have found the secret of success to physical fitness.

It does not matter whether it is walking or horseback riding — some form of exercise can help you keep healthy. Physical exercise should be started early in life and can be continued to advanced age, though sometimes slight modifications must be made.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Well-known fact that TV detective stories have sandwich spreads of beauty aids sold during the commercial.

We spent the other evening watching tube lawmen bend, punch, spike and otherwise mutilate criminals. So much you couldn't possibly feed them into an IBM machine.

At intervals a muffin comes on and rubs herself with Oozycreme. What is this secret formula that keeps the muffin young and tender?

"Oozycreme is supercharged with pure oils that search out those hidden pores," she says. She rubs the stuff on like she was stroking a panther.

This stuff is so enriched with hormones and other goodies, the Income Tax people are looking into it for hidden assets.

Back to the FBI which is baffled. But only temporarily.

☆ ☆ ☆

A fellow who writes for a national magazine was in town recently. "What is typical San Francisco?" he asked. "That's what I want to write."

I put him onto North Beach which seems to run on and on in the same way.

If there are any uplifting improvements — like Carol Doda? — they don't intrude on the red wine-and-French bread decor.

The writer said: "I tried to get on a tour of Alcatraz but they're booked up for a week in advance."

☆ ☆ ☆

Eureka! Everybody's wondering what can be done to make The Rock profitable. The answer is lease it out to a beauty cream company.

Thus we combine the TV dream: Crime and cream. All in one package.

"Cream as fresh as a writ of habeas corpus! Made in the same cell and as cool as Al Capone."

Well, it was just an idea.

☆ ☆ ☆

It's a problem what to do with our stoney lonesome. The State is phasing out San Quention. Once it held more prisoners than any jail in the country.

Soon only the bay fogs will roll over the Yard. Over the old cell block that held Death Row. Past the furniture factory where condemned men were hanged in a robin's egg blue room.

You don't recycle these places into hotels, condominiums or rest homes. Even though it's prime real estate. View property.

☆ ☆ ☆

I didn't know Alcatraz tours were that popular. The foggy city is the top setting for TV crime — that may add to the run of tourists.

The Eastern writer thought so. He said: "We see crime chases up and down the streets of San Francisco. What's more logical than going to see the place the Bad Guys ended in?"

☆ ☆ ☆

The last time I saw Alcatraz, Warden Johnston was telling what happened during a three-day jail break.

(The convicts sang out through the bars: "Hey, 'Saltwater' Johnston. Tell de trut', de whole trut' an' nuttin' but de trut'.")

It was a gloomy place. Steel bars holding caged men under bare electric light.

Three convicts dead. Guards shot. Two jailed men were going to the San Quentin gas chamber.

("I come from a good Christian family," 'Tex Thompson told me.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Lot of bad vibes in those prisons. Maybe they need some cleaning out. Even as unlikely a thing as making cold cream or ice cream.

Or not so unlikely. In the Big Band era, San Quentin produced a fine orchestra on radio. Their theme song was: "Time On My hands."

In violent accidents, pressure ought to be applied to stop heavy bleeding and, if you know what you are doing, a tourniquet may be needed, but clumsy tourniquets can do more damage than good And if there are bone fractures, by all means, the least movement possible!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 and have tried different advertised products to make my hair grow. Is there any special cream or medicine to make it grow long? I'm fed up with these advertisements. I've tried everything. You name it, I've tried it. — L.F.

Most of us have a "natural length" and when hairs reach that length, they break off and new ones start to grow. I'm sorry, but I just don't know of any way to change this But the great number of patent "remedies" advertised would indicate that a lot of people keep hoping.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a check up and was found in excellent health except that he has a fast heart beat. He leads a quiet life — no anxieties.

He checked his own heart beat. It was 88. What is normal? — A.C.R.

A normal beat can be anywhere from 60 to 90 beats per minute.

His self check may not be the best way to find out. It is better to have someone else do the counting. The 88 is getting close to the upper limit of normal, but often apprehension about taking one's one pulse can raise it a few beats or more Anxiety about the examination in the doctor's office may quicken the pulse. (Blood pressure readings also can be a bit higher under such circumstances)

Anxiety is not the only cause of fast heart rates Overweight, excessive coffee or cola drinking, and smoking are causes. Subtle overactivity of the thyroid gland is another

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a health advantage in drinking distilled water? — T.Y.

None that I know of unless the regular drinking supply is odorous or contaminated If so, it can be purified with chemicals you can buy in the store

HEALTH TIP
FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Do you exercise at least once a week?

The Nebraska Medical Association says that if you exercise regularly once a week you have found the secret of success to physical fitness

It does not matter whether it is walking or horseback riding — some form of exercise can help you keep healthy Physical exercise should be started early in life and can be continued to advanced age, though sometimes slight modifications must be made

San Francisco — Well-known fact that TV detective stories have sandwich spreads of beauty aids sold during the commercial

We spent the other evening watching tube lawmen bend, punch spike and otherwise mutilate criminals So much you couldn t possibly feed them into an IBM machine

At intervals a muffin comes on and rubs herself with Oozycreme What is this secret formula that keeps the muffin young and tender?

"Oozycreme is supercharged with pure oils that search out those hidden pores " she says She rubs the stuff on like she was stroking a panther

This stuff is so enriched with hormones and other goodies, the Income Tax people are looking into it for hidden assets

Back to the FBI which is baffled But only temporarily

A fellow who writes for a national magazine was in town recently 'What is typical San Francisco?" he asked 'That's what I want to write '

I put him onto North Beach which seems to run on and on in the same way

If there are any uplifting improvements — like Carol Doda? — they don't intrude on the red wine-and-French bread decor

The writer said 'I tried to get on a tour of Alcatraz but they re booked up for a week in advance '

Eureka! Everybody's wondering what can be done to make The Rock profitable The answer is lease it out to a beauty cream company

Thus we combine the TV dream Crime and cream All in one package

Food Day

Think Of Millions Who Are Starving

By ADELLA WACKER
Star Staff Writer

America, a nation of fatties, is being urged to take a day off from eating Thursday during nationwide Food Day.

But in Nebraska, where eating plays a major role in the economy (if people don't eat, farmers suffer) observances are going to be a bit different from the fasting, planting and study recommended by Food Day organizers.

The sponsoring organization, the Center for Science in the Public Interest of Washington, D.C., wants Americans to think about the starving millions all over the world during the day.

Officially designated

At least six state governors, including Nebraska's have proclaimed April 17 as Food Day. Nationally people are being urged to plant seeds, skip meals and study.

Organizers of Food Day at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln are trying to bring the issues home to Nebraskans, according to student John Gulick.

A panel discussion about the Nebraska farmer is set for 1:15 p.m. in the Centennial Room of the Nebraska Union. Included will be Floyd Herman, a Wilber farmer; Albert Ebers of Seward; Francis Ohmstede, Democratic national committeewoman from Guide Rock, and Bert Evans, associate professor of economics at NU.

Different Perspective

Nebraskans should see food differently from people in other states, Evans says. It's all right for New Yorkers to want cheap food, but Nebraska's city dwellers need to realize that agriculture supports their economy, he said.

Nebraska farmers "have sacrificed millions of dollars in this state while commercial firms have managed to make money — there's something wrong with this," Evans said.

Also on the Food Day agenda at the Union Centennial Room is a panel discussion on nutrition, a workshop on food cooperatives and a workshop on composting, along with several booths.

Nationally, students at Clark University in Worchester, Mass., are planning a rooftop garden on a campus building and are sponsoring groups to study food production. A fund-raising auction aboard a ferryboat off Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts will offer paintings donated by 50 painters.

"Plant a seed for change" is the campaign of Oxfam-America, which sponsored a fast in November. Many Americans skipped meals and sent money they would have spent to relief funds for starvation and to improve agricultural production in developing countries. This time, Oxfam is asking people to plant seeds and send an equivalent amount of money to anti-hunger programs.

In Los Angeles and Sacramento, Calif., $100-a-plate "non-dinners" feature a menu of speeches instead of food.

Part of the reason for the reluctance of NU organizers to identify strongly with the science center's campaign may be its controversial "Terrible Ten" list The center put out a list naming brand names of foods that allegedly "epitomize everything that is wrong with the American food supply."

It includes breakfast cereals, a soft drink and prime grade beef.

Counter-Campaign

As a result, Gulick said, some of the corporations with products on the list have launched their own campaign — against the "Nader-inspired people" and their Food Day. The list reportedly has been attacked also by nutritionists as "arbitrary."

Gulick suggested that Creighton University in Omaha postponed Food Day programs to a later date because of the bad publicity. Gulick said he sees NU's program as "not attacking people but showing alternatives," without admonitions on what to eat or not eat.

The nutrition panel Thursday will start at 10:30 a.m. A tentative list of members include Ruth Eshelman and Harriet Kohn, associate professors of food and nutrition from East Campus; Prof. James Kendrick, an agricultural economist, and Prof. McKendry from the nutrition department at Union College.

The food co-op workshop begins at 9:30 a.m. with representatives from Lincoln's two co-ops.

Compost Pile

A demonstration of building a compost pile is scheduled for 3 p.m. on the north side of the Union, weather permitting. Lancaster County Extension Agent Emery Nelson said he gets many requests each year for information about composting — using a mixture of dead leaves, food scraps and often manure to condition garden soil.

The extension office will have a booth at the Centennial Room during the day with garden and preserving information.

Other booths planned by local groups include a representative from the State Welfare Department's food stamp office, the Golden Carrot, CROP, the Open Door Health Clinic, the Center for Rural Affairs at Walthill, Zero Population Growth and Planned Parenthood, Citizens for Environmental improvement, Nebraskans for Peace, NUPIRG (Nebraska University Public Information Research Group) and possibly the National Farm Organization and NU Agronomy Club.

Books about food that have been donated by local bookstores will be on sale. Proceeds to CROP, the hunger relief program of the Church World Service.

"My company doesn't have a retirement plan... but I can build my personal plan —a 100% tax-deductible IRA— at Commercial Federal Savings!"

That's right! Now, any worker not participating in an existing retirement plan can put up to $1,500 or 15% of earned income—whichever is less—into a personal retirement plan, an IRA (Individual Retirement Account), at Commercial Federal. And every penny is tax-deductible! Even the earnings are tax-free until the funds are withdrawn, presumably at retirement, when your tax rate will probably be lower.

- Beginning any time between ages 59½ and 70½, you can have your money however you please—in a lump sum, in monthly installments, or annually—as you choose.
- If you leave a company in which you have a vested interest in a retirement plan, you can invest those funds in an IRA at Commercial Federal without paying any Federal income tax if you do it within 60 days.
- You can't lose! Growth is assured, with no market fluctuations to worry about!
- No salesman's commissions to pay, year after year.

Commercial Federal Savings pays higher interest on your IRA than any bank! ANY BANK! As soon as there's $1,000 in your IRA, the money can be put into a high-rate Savings Certificate and earn as much as 7¾% a year, compounded continuously, for an effective annual yield of 8.058%.

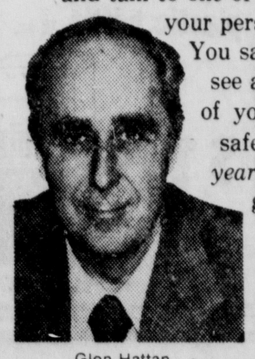

Figured on that basis, an annual contribution of $1,500 to an IRA—contributed either in a lump sum or in installments—would, in thirty years amount to a whopping $189,211.34!

"My company doesn't have a retirement plan... but I can build my personal plan —a 100% tax-deductible IRA— at Commercial Federal Savings!"

That's right! Now, any worker not participating in an existing retirement plan can put up to $1,500 or 15% of earned income—whichever is less—into a personal retirement plan an IRA (Individual Retirement Account), at Commercial Federal. And every penny is tax-deductible! Even the earnings are tax-free until the funds are withdrawn, presumably at retirement, when your tax rate will probably be lower

- Beginning any time between ages 59½ and 70½, you can have your money however you please—in a lump sum, in monthly installments or annually—as you choose
- If you leave a company in which you have a vested interest in a retirement plan, you can invest those funds in an IRA at Commercial Federal without paying any Federal income tax if you do it within 60 days.
- You can't lose! Growth is assured, with no market fluctuations to worry about!
- No salesman's commissions to pay, year after year

Commercial Federal Savings pays higher interest on your IRA than any bank! ANY BANK! As soon as there's $1,000 in your IRA, the money can be put into a high-rate Savings Certificate and earn as much as 7¾% a year, compounded continuously, for an effective annual yield of 8.058%.

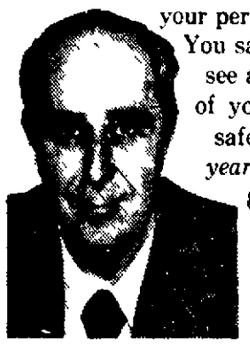

Figured on that basis, an annual contribution of $1,500 to an IRA—contributed either in a lump sum or in installments—would, in thirty years amount to a whopping $189,211.34!

Being On Jury Duty Is Mixed Bag

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Being a juror is serious business.

But being on jury duty is a mixed bag of education, boredom, new friendships and wise-cracking fun, according to three men who have spent the past week in and out of the Lancaster County District Courtrooms.

"It's like being a convict," joked Lyle Graham about sitting on a jury. "You can't talk or whisper. Your life is regulated by the judge," he said.

Though he may joke about his two-week jury job, Graham, a "filter man" at Bryan Hospital, is all seriousness about the responsibility involved in deciding a case.

'Can't Be Doubt'

"You have to be honest. I hate to say a man is guilty. I give that a lot of thought. There can't be any doubt in your mind when you make your decision. That's the hard part," said Graham, who spent a day and a half as a juror during a criminal trial last week. The jury found the man guilty of burglary.

The rest of the time he spent waiting — waiting for his name to be drawn from the hopper, waiting while attorneys questioned prospective jurors, waiting in courtrooms, in hallways and in the County-City building cafeteria.

While they wait, prospective jurors read books, magazines, knit, crochet, needlepoint, play cards and talk with new-found friends.

Acquaintances Made

Graham is one of the talkers. He didn't know any of the 100 other prospective jurors who came last Monday morning, but he soon made friends — people who have lived in the same towns he has, a brother of a man he used to work with, congenial conversation mates for his pre-duty coffee.

Smoke curling up from his cigar, W. O. "Alabama" Borden, sat with Graham for coffee and quips early Friday morning. Borden, retired from the City Park and Recreation Department, broke off a sunny retreat to Florida and returned home for jury duty.

Jurors, whose names are randomly selected from the list of registered voters in the county, are sent a subpoena two weeks in advance telling them to report for jury duty.

"My boy called and told me about the subpoena, the suntanned Borden said. He could have skipped the duty, since he never received the subpoena himself. But Borden, a veteran of five previous jury duties in both alabama and Lincoln, finds the two-week responsibility an interesting diversion.

Yet To Be Chosen

After five days, he had yet to be selected on a jury, but had spent his time listening to criminal trials in progress.

Between 120 and 150 names of voters from 21 to 70 years of age are pulled for each jury term (seven terms this school year) from a large ballot box containing about 8,000 names.

During the jury term jurors report at 9 a.m. to District Court No. 1 where names are drawn for jury trials scheduled to begin. Those whose names are not drawn are free until 2 p.m. when a second drawing is held.

An average of 8 to 11 cases went to juries during the fall and winter jury terms, according to records of the clerk of the District Court.

$20 A Day

Whether they are selected for a jury or allowed to go home, those people who attend the daily drawings are paid $20 a day.

For Borden, the money is "retirement pay." Walter Witt, a State Roads Department employe, gets the $20 in addition to his regular pay check. Graham's company pays the difference between his jury duty pay and his normal pay check.

Companies can handle pay however they want, but they must allow the employe time off for jury duty, according to Paul Beave, adult probation officer, who handles the jury selection process.

'Educational'

The time spent by jurors sitting in their black chairs listening to witnesses, attorneys or the judge is "educational," according to Graham. "You learn how the courts work."

What has impressed Graham most is "how they go to all extremes to guarantee this man his individual rights."

The jurors, thrown together for hours or days during a civil or criminal trial, often form new friendships.

Since they cannot discuss the case they learn about each other. "You just get to the point where you forget about it (the case) when you walk out the door," said Graham.

"You just start another subject — fishing or families or something . . . I've sure met a lot of wonderful people this week."

Selection Of Jury Is Nerve-Racking

Today's "Write On" contributor is 60 years old and the president of Quill, a local writing club. Despite her family duties (she has six children and 12 grandchildren), she is still working toward her high school diploma.

By INEZ DAVIS

The doorbell rang. A stamp-covered letter, registered and very official looking, was handed to me by the postman. I signed my name, turned it over several times, then opened it carefully.

It was a summons into a world very different from the work, eat, sleep daily routine I now had. A world of courts, laws and judges. I had been chosen for jury duty.

Just the thought of such responsibility made me nervous. The days to pass before my "serving" would begin were "lost days." Nothing constructive came of my daily labors, food was uninteresting and sleep elusive. Enough is enough I told myself, and decided then and there to halt.

"So what!" I told anyone listening. "It will just be two weeks, not a lifetime, I'm not going to be shot. I'll just relax and enjoy, enjoy."

Leaving home the first day took lots of courage, in spite of my self-acquired flippant attitude. Afraid I would arrive late and end up the criminal instead of the juror, I walked the eight blocks (I trusted no transportation but my own two feet). I arrived early, out of breath, cold (it was winter time) and my feet hurt. I was back to my beginning scared, nervous scene, worse, if possible, than before.

Then a miracle happened. I entered a warm courtroom and found some eighty men and women already there, waiting, feeling just the same as I.

We all stood reverently as the judge entered, because some man, with authority in his voice said, "ALL RISE," and pounded a gavel on a table. The judge was a handsome man and immediately put his nervous audience at ease.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he announced, "you are here, as you know, to be jurors. Relax, it isn't really so difficult. The decisions you will be asked to make will be yours alone. In the courtroom, no one supersedes the jury but the judge."

I took his word for it, but I wasn't so sure about the guy with the gavel. After a small humorous story I can't for the life of me remember, we were instructed in our duties and the "serving" began.

Two days I arrived early, waited, wasn't chosen and went home feeling unwanted. I hated myself for not learning to knit when my mother tried to teach me. The lady sitting next to me knit away without a care in the world. I picked the hem out of my skirt.

At last! On the third day, my name was called, I felt like a queen. But, alas! I was rejected and the queen felt like an overripe pumpkin thrown back onto the heap. On the "outside" the world seemed to get along without me.

About the time I thought I was going to spend the entire two weeks just waiting, I was called again. My name never sounded so good.

I sat in jury box No. 2 like the reigning monarch I was, and started my democratic duty. The case lasted three fascinating days. I reported at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. sharp, regardless of bus schedules, tired feet or cold of winter, I listened to lawyers objecting, witnesses swearing to "tell the truth and nothing but," the judge ruling and over-ruling, all with an open mind.

About halfway through the third day, suddenly it was all over. We, the jury were going to decide. I was elated. For this I had waited. For this moment I had prepared.

Then, with no advance warning, my dream bubble exploded. I listened horrified, unbelieving, as the judge said, "Thank you, the people of the jury, you have served honorably and well. But, I will make the decision in this case. Jury dismissed."

I never did get to vote guilty or not guilty. So goeth the law. Nevertheless I had been chosen, and had served well and I am now a 100% American. No one can take that away from me.

When the jack fails to drop, declarer plays the K-x of hearts from dummy and finesses the jack to go down one.

True, if declarer had extra-sensory perception, he would not take the heart finesse. He would cash the A-K, nabbing the queen, and in that way make the contract.

Yet, properly considered, the fact is that South should make four spades even if he does not have the advantage of seeing around corners. After three rounds of clubs and spades have been played, he should deliberately lead his last trump, discarding a heart from dummy.

When he then plays the A-K-Q of diamonds, West showing out on the third round, this becomes the position:

Actually, this is not a hard decision to make. Since East's only remaining card at this point is known to be the jack of diamonds, it cannot be the queen of hearts. South therefore goes up with the ace, catches the queen, and thus makes four spades.

Make Husband Notice By Aggressive Pursuit

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: If you could see my home, car and clothes closet, you would probably think I was the luckiest woman in Boston. Well, I'm not. But I could be the most frustrated. I sometimes want affection so much I could just curl up and die.

My husband is a very successful businessman. I know he loves me, but he's not the demonstrative type. He shows our dog a lot of affection, though. Abby, you don't know how frustrating it is for me to sit there and watch my husband with the dog on his lap. He cuddles him and scratches his neck. That pup gets more loving than I do!

I just hate to be the one to always make the first move. Why are men so dumb? When we go to bed at night and he wraps those big, strong arms around me, I'm so happy, I hate to fall asleep. He's so good and dear and sweet and INSENSITIVE . . . and I'm so frustrated. What should I do? Sign me,

"PLENTY OF NOTHING IN BOSTON"

DEAR PLENTY: Don't sit around waiting for your hormones to dry up. MAKE your husband notice you. You may have to shove the dog off his lap, but you can make it up to him (the dog) come "BE KIND TO ANIMALS WEEK."

And what's wrong with making the first move? It's better than no moves at all. Be aggressively affectionate. Some men LIKE to be pursued. Try it, and if nothing happens, you haven't lost anything.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know of any organization or medical school that might be interested in buying a person's body?

I have always wanted to donate my body to science since I don't relish the though of being buried. But with times being so bad right now, I'd like to sell my body to a medical school that would pay me in advance. The money would come in very handy now.

By the way, I sure do enjoy your column. I can't get over some of those kooks who write to you.

A MAINE READER

DEAR READER: I know of no organization or medical school that pays for bodies. People leave their bodies as a "gift" to a medical school.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the mother who was upset because she couldn't get her teenagers to keep their rooms reasonably neat, I had to share this amusing incident with you:

My home is always neat and orderly — with the exception of my teenage daughter's bedroom, which was always a mess. Drawers open, clothes thrown everywhere, her bed unmade, etc. . .

I fussed, threatened, punished, but to no avail. Finally I just gave up and kept her bedroom door closed all the time so I wouldn't have to look at the mess.

One day our house was robbed. For some strange reason, all the burglars took were the television sets. I called the police, and they sent two policemen to investigate. They asked me to accompany them while they checked each room in the house to find out if anything else was missing.

When they opened the door of my daughter's bedroom, they gasped, "Good grief — they certainly ransacked THIS room,"

I calmly replied, "No. It always looks like this."

Sisters Nurse Injured Goose

Brockton, Mass. (UPI) — She's only a goose named Gert. But she's getting the best of medical care from two nurses. And they're no quacks.

Mary Hallinan, a nurse at Carney Hospital, Dorchester, and her sister Julie, a nurse at Goddard Hospital, Stoughton, are doctoring Gert back to health after a bout with a dog.

It all began when Mary was driving along a road in Mashpee on Cape Cod last month and saw the severely wounded goose being attacked by the dog.

She shooed away the dog and took the goose to a veterinarian who said it was a lost cause.

Undaunted, she went to another vet, Dr. William Lloyd of Stoughton, who Mary said "won't give up on an animal if you love it." He gave it some medication and the sisters then took the goose to their parent's home here.

Mrs. Catherine Hallinan wasn't the least bit surprised by the unusual pet. "They started when they were little with grasshoppers. Since then it's been hens, pigeons, snakes, caterpillars and frogs."

Mary added, "Mom's glad elephants don't roam the streets — because I'd have one in the house."

At Carney Hospital, Mary asked Dr. Robert O'Brien about her new patient.

"Dr. O'Brien was wonderful. He told us how to care for the bird and what to expect," she said, adding that he prescribed antibiotics for the bird under the name of "Gert Hallinan."

But when Julie went to get it filled, the local druggist recognized her and asked, "Who's this Gert Hallinan? I don't know any Gert in your family.

After she explained, he filled the prescription and told her, "Get out of here before people think I'm crazy."

"We just have so much love for animals. You just can't turn your back on them when one is hurt. If you've got an animal, you should love it and care for it," Julie said.

"But I could never be a vet. I'd cry too much," Mary added.

Gonzales Champion Commuter

Taos, N.M. (UPI) — Freddie Gonzales has lived in this tiny New Mexico community since he was a child but he may be one of the country's champion commuters.

For 25 years he has been driving about 145 miles a day to and from work and figures he has spent more than two years of his life behind the wheel and $22,000 for gas and oil.

Gonzales is a machinist at the Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory. He likes living in Taos but it's hard to get a job in northern New Mexico, which has one of the highest unemployment rates in the nation.

In his 25 years of commuting, Gonzales has never had an accident, seen an accident, had any car trouble and never failed to make it to work.

"I did have a flat tire once," he said. "But it was flat when I got ready to leave home, so I fixed it."

HEAR WELL?

"Mommy, I can't hear well" — In a school system without a hearing test program, such children are usually labeled "dull", "shy", or "slow talkers". Seldom does anyone realize they may have a hearing problem.

The hard-of-hearing child strains to hear what teachers say. He gets tired and irritable. He can't do as well in school as his classmates with normal hearing, so he begins to feel inferior. To escape, he may cut classes and get into trouble.

Statistics show somewhere in America today, there are at least 3,000,000 hard-of-hearing children.

Has your child had his hearing tested in school? Write or call me about some interesting facts on school hearing tests by MAICO. Located at 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Phone 432-8597.

11 Young Women Competing To Be Shorthorn Queen

Eleven young women will be vying for the National Milking Shorthorn Queen crown during the annual meeting of the society here Friday.

Nebraska is hosting the 27th annual event at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel. The Junior Milking Shorthorn Society activities committee and contestants meeting lead off the agenda at 7 a.m. The annual meeting of the national society is scheduled for 9:30 a.m., and the annual banquet at 6:30 p.m.

Queen contestants and their hometowns are: Polly Ann Pratt and Karen Pratt, both of Mechanicsburg, Ohio; Jane Von Tungeln, Verdon, Okla.; Linda Rausch, Fort Atkinson, Iowa; Linda Bacon, Brookfield, Mass.; Patricia Lisenby and Karen Lisenby, both of Burton, Kan.; Marilyn Rae Stoll, Chestnut, Ill.; Karen Wickland, West Chesterfield, Mass.; Sandra E. Anderson, Crow's Landing, Calif.; Ann Phelon, Westfield, Mass.

The queen is selected on the basis of her activities with Milking Shorthorn, future plans and an interview.

Also being held in connection with the annual meeting is the National Milking Shorthorn Sales Saturday, beginning at noon at the State Fairgrounds.

Pair Bilks G.I. Woman In Con Game

Grand Island (AP) — A 75-year-old Grand Island woman was the victim of a confidence game to the tune of $8,000 over the weekend, according to city police officials.

Police Chief Thomas Smaha termed the operation a "pigeon-drop" and explained the woman was first approached by two females in a local parking lot.

"They showed her a large sum of money and told her if she would like her share she would have to put up money in good faith," he said.

Smaha said the woman withdrew $8,000 from her bank account, gave it to the two women and they disappeared with the money.

NOTICE

The City of Lincoln has submitted an application for revision of its Gran. Number 31-5-028-10 as a prime sponsor under Title I, under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, as amended (CETA), to the U.S. Department of Labor, Manpower Administration, 911 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Missouri, 64106.

Planned placements for the year are modified to a total of 160 with a distribution as follows:

1. Veterans	10
2. Student/Work Experience	25
3. Youth/Work Experience	15
4. Adult/Work Experience	50
5. Skill Training	30
6. On the Job Training	25
7. General Education Development	5

Program activities and services are modified to read as follows:

1. Skill Training
2. G.E.D. or Basic Education
3. Adult Work Experience
4. Student Work Experience for In-School Youth
5. Youth Work Experience for Out-Of-School Youth
6. Summer Youth Work Experience
7. On the Job Training

Principal Occupation Areas are modified to include:

1. Business & Office Training
2. Mechanical & Realated Mechanics
3. Welding
4. Other Occupational Areas Demonstrated Need — Machine Tool

The 1975 Summer Youth Program planned expenditures are increased from a total of $82,850 to a new total of $157,068.

The plan for recruitment, selection and determination of eligibility is modified to provide final assessment and component placement at the CETA central office, and provides also that those classified as welfare grant recipients will first be referred to the WIN team, which will assess the needs, attend to those within WIN capabilities, and refer others for CETA participation.

The organizational structure replaces the assistant manpower planner with a manager of operations, changes intake-referral to intake assessments with an assessment coordinator.

The basic allowance for participants is increased from $2.00 to $2.10 per hour for every hour spent in classroom training, and there is added a provision for wages to adult work experience clients. Where the training station has established a salary scale ranging from minimum wages to $2.19 per hour, the Lincoln CETA range will be from $2.10 to $2.16 per hour, where the training station has established a salary of $2.20 per hour, the CETA rate will be 2% below that, and for each additional one cent salary level above $2.20, CETA shall add one tenth salary differential, up to a maximum of ten percent. All CETA Work Experience clients are considered temporary employees in the unclassified service of the City, with benefits as provided in city personnel regulations.

Services provided by delivery agents are modified as to the employment service by providing for a sub-contract with Job Service for intake and referral for CETA enrollees, and Lincoln CETA will utilize the Job Service for placement and job development in cooperation with a CETA specialist for all clients who are work ready, as a result of past performance or rating.

The CETA Cost Plan is modified as follows:

1. Administration	$76,395.00
2. Allowances	106,429.00
3. Wages	373,691.00
4. Fringe Benefits	29,755.00
5 Training	113,020.00
6. Services	97,422.00
Funds to be carried into next grant year	94,422.00
TOTAL	$890,917.00

The application revision may be examined at the office of Ralph D. Nelson, Room B429, County-City Building, 555 South 10, Lincoln, Nebraska, telephone 473-6375. Comments may be made to the City of Lincoln, as the prime sponsor applicant, and to the Assistant Regional Director for Manpower, 911 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Missouri, 64106, within 30 days of this published notice.

Armed Services Programs Help Pay Education Costs

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — One way to meet the higher costs of higher education is to meet them in uniform. The armed services have enormous numbers of programs that send young people to school, whether their need be a high school diploma or a Ph.D. in languages. You can't study everything on army time: for example, it might be tough to convince an education officer that the base needs a specialist in fine arts. But you could use army money to study fine arts on your time.

There's no guarantee you'll get the precise education you want. A man who's interested in medical technology may find himself studying astronomy if the medical program is filled.

However, if a specific course of study, or a specific geographical location, is really important to you, you can ask the recruiting officer to guarantee in writing that you'll get it. Then, if you don't, the service will let you out with an honorable discharge. (But by all means get that promise in writing, a verbal assurance is just so much hot air.)

There are two ways a young man or woman can go to college while in uniform.

You can take part-time

Jane Bryant Quinn

courses (usually at night) paid for by the inservice GI Bill. However, this has the disadvantage of reducing the GI benefits you'd generally be entitled to when you get out (which are $270 a month for single, fulltime students, and $300 to $400 for married students, for 45 months).

Tuition Assistance Plan

Alternatively, each service has a tuition-assistance plan which pays 75% of tuition — leaving you to pay for everything else. Using this approach, you still get your full GI benefits after discharge. With either plan, you can take any courses you want, as long as they're at an accredited school.

In addition, some of the courses given on base as part of service training may be worth college credit. For example, the community college of the Air Force gives technical courses, such as aerospace control, that are accepted by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

There is also financial aid available to students already in college, principally through the Reserve Officers Training Corps. For example, Army ROTC pays $100 a month (after a student has put in two years upaid), with the proviso that a student accept an army commission and serve for at least two years after graduation.

The biggest money scholarships seem to be in the medical field, although competition for them is stiff. The navy, for example, gave away just 300 last year. To qualify, you must be accepted by, or enrolled in, a medical school when you apply, and be due to graduate before age 34. The scholarship covers full tuition, books, miscellaneous expenses such as lab coats, plus a taxable stipend of $400 a month. After graduation, the navy will claim you for one to four years, depending on how long you used their money.

There are many, many avenues of education for enlisted personnel — but you can't predict in advance what you'll end up with. It all depends on your own aptitudes, the service's special needs and the competition. As is true anywhere, the smarter you are the better your chances of pursuing an interesting career.

As an example of what can happen, a woman who enlisted in the navy three years ago took an aptitude test in boot camp and came up with a high schore in electronics. She went through three specialized navy schools (each requiring a competitive exam for admittance) and worked as an aviation-fire control technician. After completing navy math and computer courses, she qualified for a full scholarship from the Navy Enlisted Scientific Program — and is now at North Carolina State University, getting a degree in electrical engineering. Next, she'll go to Officer's Candidate School and become a career officer.

Of course, if war breaks out, everyone may find himself studying arms and artillery. But if you can't afford the schooling you want as a civilian, even that may be worth the risk.

State Masonry Group Formed

Nebraska's concrete and clay masonry industries have formed the Nebraska Masonry Institute to give architectural, engineering and construction companies information on the industry.

Institute members include the bricklayers' local union, the Eastern Nebraska Masonry Contractors Association and the state's brick manufacturers and distributors.

Steering committee officers elected are: president, Dale Funk, Lumbermens Brick and Supply Co., Omaha; vice president, Erwin Rung, Jed Construction Co., Lincoln; secretary, Ron King, of Bricklayers Local #1 in Valley; and treasurer, Bob Watkins, Watkins Concrete Block Co. Inco of Lincoln.

Lincoln Students To Compete In Auto Mechanics

Students from three Lincoln high schools will be among competitors in the statewide Plymouth Trouble Shooting auto mechanic contest May 14.

Contestants are required to fix malfunctions in new cars. Contest winners will travel to Detroit to compete in the national contest finals June 16-18.

Competing high schools besides Lincoln High, Lincoln East and Lincoln Northeast includes: Beatrice Senior High, Bellevue Senior High, Grand Island Senior High, Kimball County High and Ralston High.

Visitors always enjoy a tour of Jack Daniel's Hollow. So, if you're coming to Tennessee, drop on by.

Markets...Business

Dow Ind.: +8.13

Stock Market Posts Gain; Trade Heavy

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for an end to the slide in economic activity helped the stock market buck periodic waves of profit taking Tuesday to post its sixth straight gain in the heaviest trading in five weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 8.13 to 815.08—a new high since last June 26—and extended its advance since a week ago Monday to 72.20 points.

The Dow actually showed a slight decline at midday, rallied to a gain of better than 10 points and then slipped back again in the tug of war between buyers and profit takers.

Big Board volume hit 29.62 million shares, the largest total since 31.28 million changed hands on March 11. The volume record of 35.16 million was set Feb. 13.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a comparatively narrow 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

The figure was down sharply from the comparable period last year, but nevertheless exceeded many analysts' expectations.

Wheat Futures Prices Plunge

Chicago (AP) — Profit-taking in the closing minutes set off a wave of stop-loss selling as prices declined and wheat futures closed with a loss of up to 13 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

Corn futures also fell in the last few minutes, closing about 4 cents lower. Oats were little changed while soybean prices were mostly higher, as much as 7 cents a bushel. Soybean meal prices were irregular and soy oil gained about 25 points, or ¼ cent a pound. Iced broilers were steady to about ¼ cent a pound lower.

A rally at the close almost eliminated a $2 an ounce loss in gold futures but trade was dull throughout the session.

HEAR WELL?

"Mommy, I can't hear well" — In a school system without a hearing test program, such children are usually labeled "dull", "shy", or "slow talkers". Seldom does anyone realize they may have a hearing problem.

The hard-of-hearing child strains to hear what teachers say. He gets tired and irritable. He can't do as well in school as his classmates with normal hearing, so he begins to feel inferior. To escape, he may cut classes and get into trouble

Statistics show somewhere in America today, there are at least 3,000,000 hard-of-hearing children.

Has your child had his hearing tested in school? Write or call me about some interesting facts on school hearing tests by MAICO. Located at 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Phone 432-8597.

Pair Bilks G.I. Woman In Con Game

Grand Island (AP) — A 75-year-old Grand Island woman was the victim of a confidence game to the tune of $8,000 over the weekend, according to city police officials.

Police Chief Thomas Smaha termed the operation a "pigeon-drop" and explained the woman was first approached by two females in a local parking lot.

"They showed her a large sum of money and told her if she would like her share she would have to put up money in good faith," he said.

Smaha said the woman withdrew $8,000 from her bank account, gave it to the two women and they disappeared with the money.

Armed Services Programs Help Pay Education Costs

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — One way to meet the higher costs of higher education is to meet them in uniform. The armed services have enormous numbers of programs that send young people to school, whether their need be a high school diploma or a Ph.D. in languages. You can't study everything on army time: for example, it might be tough to convince an education officer that the base needs a specialist in fine arts. But you could use army money to study fine arts on your time.

There's no guarantee you'll get the precise education you want. A man who's interested in medical technology may find himself studying astronomy if the medical program is filled.

However, if a specific course of study, or a specific geographical location, is really important to you, you can ask the recruiting officer to guarantee in writing that you'll get it. Then, if you don't, the service will let you out with an honorable discharge. (But by all means get that promise in writing, a verbal assurance is just so much hot air.)

There are two ways a young man or woman can go to college while in uniform.

You can take part-time courses (usually at night) paid for by the inservice GI Bill. However, this has the disadvantage of reducing the GI benefits you'd generally be entitled to when you get out (which are $270 a month for single, fulltime students, and $300 to $400 for married students, for 45 months).

Jane Bryant Quinn

Tuition Assistance Plan

Alternatively, each service has a tuition-assistance plan which pays 75% of tuition — leaving you to pay for everything else. Using this approach, you still get your full GI benefits after discharge. With either plan, you can take any courses you want, as long as they're at an accredited school.

In addition, some of the courses given on base as part of service training may be worth college credit. For example, the community college of the Air Force gives technical courses, such as aerospace control, that are accepted by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

There is also financial aid available to students already in college, principally through the Reserve Officers Training Corps. For example, Army ROTC pays $100 a month (after a student has put in two years upaid), with the proviso that a student accept an army commission and serve for at least two years after graduation.

The biggest money scholarships seem to be in the medical field, although competition for them is stiff. The navy, for example, gave away just 300 last year. To qualify, you must be accepted by, or enrolled in, a medical school when you apply, and be due to graduate before age 34. The scholarship covers full tuition, books, miscellaneous expenses such as lab coats, plus a taxable stipend of $400 a month. After graduation, the navy will claim you for one to four years, depending on how long you used their money.

There are many, many avenues of education for enlisted personnel — but you can't predict in advance what you'll end up with. It all depends on your own aptitudes, the service's special needs and the competition. As is true anywhere, the smarter you are the better your chances of pursuing an interesting career.

As an example of what can happen, a woman who enlisted in the navy three years ago took an aptitude test in boot camp and came up with a high schore in electronics. She went through three specialized navy schools (each requiring a competitive exam for admittance) and worked as an aviation-fire control technician. After completing navy math and computer courses, she qualified for a full scholarship from the Navy Enlisted Scientific Program — and is now at North Carolina State University, getting a degree in electrical engineering. Next, she'll go to Officer's Candidate School and become a career officer.

Of course, if war breaks out, everyone may find himself studying arms and artillery. But if you can't afford the schooling you want as a civilian, even that may be worth the risk.

State Masonry Group Formed

Nebraska's concrete and clay masonry industries have formed the Nebraska Masonry Institute to give architectural, engineering and construction companies information on the industry.

Institute members include the bricklayers' local union, the Eastern Nebraska Masonry Contractors Association and the state's brick manufacturers and distributors.

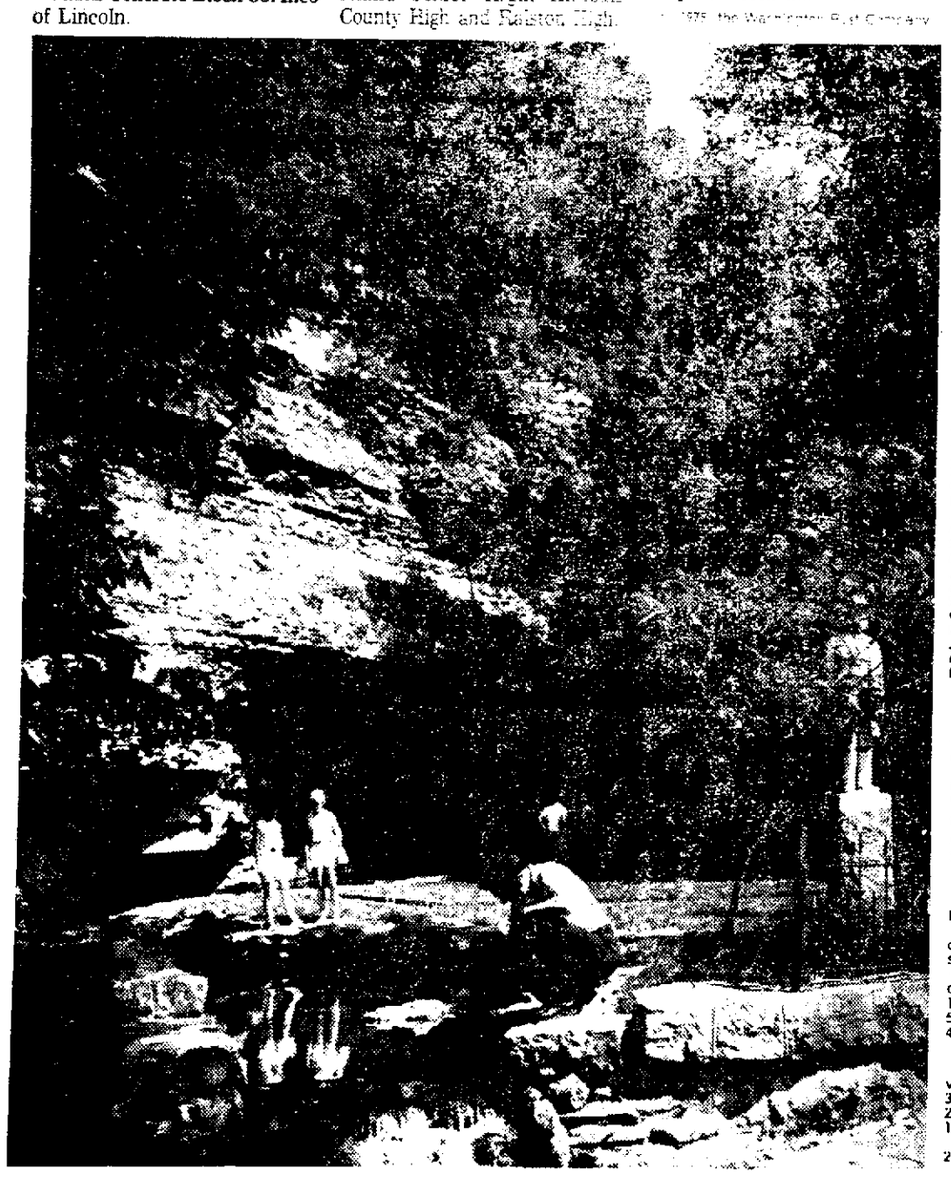

Steering committee officers elected are: president, Dale Funk, Lumbermens Brick and Supply Co., Omaha; vice president, Erwin Rung, Jed Construction Co., Lincoln; secretary, Ron King, of Bricklayers Local #1 in Valley; and treasurer, Bob Watkins, Watkins Concrete Block Co. Inco of Lincoln.

Lincoln Students To Compete In Auto Mechanics

Students from three Lincoln high schools will be among competitors in the statewide Plymouth Trouble Shooting auto mechanic contest May 14.

Contestants are required to fix malfunctions in new cars. Contest winners will travel to Detroit to compete in the national contest finals June 16-18.

Competing high schools besides Lincoln High, Lincoln East and Lincoln Northeast includes: Beatrice Senior High, Bellevue Senior High, Grand Island Senior High, Kimball County High and Ralston High.

Visitors always enjoy a tour of Jack Daniel's Hollow. So, if you're coming to Tennessee, drop on by.

Stock Market Posts Gain; Trade Heavy

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for an end to the slide in economic activity helped the stock market buck periodic waves of profit taking Tuesday to post its sixth straight gain in the heaviest trading in five weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 8.13 to 815.08—a new high since last June 26—and extended its advance since a week ago Monday to 72.20 points.

The Dow actually showed a slight decline at midday, rallied to a gain of better than 10 points and then slipped back again in the tug of war between buyers and profit takers.

Big Board volume hit 29.62 million shares, the largest total since 31.28 million changed hands on March 11. The volume record of 35.16 million was set Feb. 13.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a comparatively narrow 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

The figure was down sharply from the comparable period last year, but nevertheless exceeded many analysts' expectations.

Wheat Futures Prices Plunge

Chicago (AP) — Profit-taking in the closing minutes set off a wave of stop-loss selling as prices declined and wheat futures closed with a loss of up to 13 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

Corn futures also fell in the last few minutes, closing about 4 cents lower. Oats were little changed while soybean prices were mostly higher, as much as 7 cents a bushel. Soybean meal prices were irregular and soy oil gained about 25 points, or ¼ cent a pound. Iced broilers were steady to about ¼ cent a pound lower.

A rally at the close almost eliminated a $2 an ounce loss in gold futures but trade was dull throughout the session.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Question from an Aquarian: "What has concluded that we might conclude from it? — Gertrude Stein.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on ideas and how to make them work. Be selective. Know difference between inspiration and wishful thinking. Avoid scattering your forces. Finish what you start — view recent happenings in realistic light. Unusual film could occupy attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Business affairs, budget, monetary policies command more attention than usual. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture. Collect needed data. Leave nothing to chance. Don't delegate duties. You have chance to profit from experience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar cycle is high — take initiative. Make sure that others get your side of story — from you. Be direct, frank and independent. Imprint your own style. Expand horizons. You might be surprised to learn that persons in faraway places are interested in your product, views.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Aries message for valid hint. What appears flimsy may have more potential than is apparent on surface. Get behind scenes and dig beneath surface. Your own style, individuality make difference now between success and otherwise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on desire, romance, fulfillment of dreams. Member of opposite sex is likely to be in picture. Aquarian has unusual idea. Be receptive but insist on a valid test. Remember recent lesson.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): One in authority wants to know you — and could issue social invitation. Be receptive. There is room for you at more elevated position. Restless associate is slightly envious and could carry tales.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now you get chance to communicate, to relate experiences, to draw together various factions and to synthesize subtle nuances into a complete, viable operation. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo and Scorpio could be in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your curiosity is aroused. Intrigue replaces boredom; romantic interlude could be on agenda. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. Money, managed by another, could be used as bait to have you take certain course of action. Ask questions. Get legal checkup. Don't respond in haste.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low; play waiting game. Let others show their hands, reveal their plans. Slow pace. Be diplomatic and a good listener. You receive pleasant surprise connected with item designed for comfort, beauty. Taurus, Libra may be involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Employment picture needs clarification. Someone is not telling the whole truth. Special services are highlighted. Dress up product, modernize methods of presentation, distribution. Investigate media costs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Love, creativity, personal style — these are highlighted. Intensity is keynoted — nothing lukewarm. Capricorn, Cancer persons are featured. You get what you want if willing to accept responsibility — and pay a price.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Home, property, completion of important transaction — these are featured. You can gain prestige and additional security. What you thought to be buried in past could rise, as if a phoenix from ashes. Be ready with proper documentation.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, spiritual, insistent, stubborn, temperamental, talented. February and November are highlight months for you in 1975. The year features domestic adjustment, possible change of residence. Pisces, Virgo persons play significant roles in your life. You are original, dynamic and very difficult to understand. Those who love you are willing to take the barbs with the roses. Others, however, are quite willing to see you take a fall. You seldom, if ever, compromise principles. You arouse envy. You are very special, provocative and an irritant to stuffed shirts.

Blazer Fans, Owners Protest Walton's Political Statements

By SAM GOLDAPER
(c) 1975 N.Y. Times News Service

New York — Bill Walton's offcourt statements last week critical of the United States Government have aroused a storm of protests from the people of Portland, Ore.

Hundreds of letters and telephone calls, including demands that he be traded, have been received by the Portland Trail Blazers, the National Basketball Association team that he plays for. The city's two newspapers have run editorials chiding Walton. The protests led to a special meeting of the team's owners and executives Sunday in Los Angeles.

Larry Weinberg, team president; Herman Sarkowsky, a part-owner and Harry Glickman, executive vice president, issued the following statement Monday in Portland.

"The Portland Trail Blazers deplore Bill Walton's statement calling for the rejection of the United States Government. The United States is the freest and most democratic nation in the world. We and the people throughout the world recognize this. The American system, despite its imperfections, has been and continues to be the haven which oppressed people throughout the world yearn to reach. We believe the National Basketball Association is an example of the opportunities available to people under the system of government, and Walton, more than most, has reaped extraordinary benefits from this system."

Walter Kennedy, N.B.A. commissioner, commenting on the Blazer statement, said: "I totally agree. Thinking people everywhere will agree with these sentiments."

Weinberg, who was in Los Angeles, said he spoke to Walton Sunday in Portland.

"I made Bill aware of the statement we would be issuing," he said. "I told him why we were doing it. He offered no comment."

Walton was accompanied by Jack and Micki Scott at a news conference last Wednesday in which the Scotts disavowed any alleged wrongdoing with relation to the Patty Hearst case.

Walton referred then to the Federal Bureau of Investigation as "the enemy" and called "on the world to stand with us in our rejection of the United States Government."

Walton's activities, which have displeased the Blazers, have led to numerous reports that he would be traded to the Los Angeles Lakers. Los Angeles is said to be a more liberal-minded city than Portland. In addition, Walton has always said he wanted to play in Los Angeles, where he was an all-American for three seasons at U.C.L.A.

When Glickman was asked of the possibilities of such a trade, he said, "I never comment on rumors."

Asked if that meant he would not trade Walton, he said "I won't say that."

Weinberg, however said: "We have no plans to trade Bill. We believe he is an extraordinary player."

Weinberg and other Blazer executives are meeting Tuesday in Las Vegas, Nev., where the College All-Star game is being played.

When the Blazers signed the 6-11 Walton to a five-year contract worth more than $2 million, their suffering fans, believing he would turn around the team's fortunes, purchased 6,300 season tickets, more than double the number of the previous year. But Walton was said not to have created an angry mood among many fans and much of the populace.

"Our survey shows the people are 4-1 against him," said Don McLeod, sports editor of The Portland Oregonian, by telephone.

"We have talked to people on golf courses, race tracks and a sports show," he said, "and most of them just want him out of their hair. It's going to have a disastrous effect on the season ticket sales.

"The Coliseum, where the Trail Blazers play, is a memorial to veterans, and many of the veteran groups are opposed to him."

Walton played in only 35 games last season. He was reported to have had injuries.

Hunter Hit Hard By Red Sox, 5-3

By United Press International

The Boston Red Sox roughed up Catfish Hunter for four hits and four runs in the fourth inning Tuesday to hand the Yankees' prize new pitcher his second consecutive loss with a 5-3 decision over slumping New York.

Hunter was hit hard throughout the dark and dismal afternoon and was treated to his first chorus of boos by New York fans after being removed in the eighth inning.

Dwight Evans had the big blow for the Red Sox in their fourth inning rally, delivering a sharp two-out single to left that sent home the tying and winning rns. The big rightfielder now has hit safely in all six Boston games.

In other American League day games, California defeated Minnesota 7-3 and Texas nipped Chicago 6-5 in 13 innings.

Mickey Rivers singled to right field to drive in Orlando Ramirez in the seventh inning and came around all the way to score himself when the ball went through Bobby Darwin to aid California's victory over Minnesota.

Nolan Ryan, who allowed eight hits but walked nine Twins, posted his third victory without a defeat, tops in the major leagues, with the help of four Angel double plays and ninth inning relief assistance from Mickey Scott. Dave Goltz, 0-2, took the loss — the Twins' fifth straight.

Dave Nelson opened the 13th inning with a single, stole second and scored the winning run on Joe Lovitto's single to give Texas its win over Rich Gossage and Chicago, breaking a two-game Rangers losing streak.

Milwaukee defeated Baltimore 7-1 and Kansas City edged Oakland 4-3 in night games.

Pedro Garcia rapped a double and run-scoring single in support of Billy Champion's five-hit pitching and the Milwaukee Brewers took advantage of three Baltimore errors during a six-run eighth inning to beat the Orioles.

Milwaukee spotted loser Jim Palmer a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but Garcia's RBI single in the fifth tied the game, and he led off the explosive eighth inning with a double as the Brewers cashed in with six unearned runs.

George Brett lofted a runscoring double down the leftfield line in the ninth inning to sparking the Royals to a comefrom-behind 4-3 victory over the A's.

Hal McRae opened the ninth with a single against loser Rollie Fingers. After Harmon Killebrew struck out, Brett's double eluded leftfielder Claudell Washington and McRae scored all the way from first base with the winning run.

Meanwhile, Don Sutton held Cincinnati hitless for 6 2-3 innings before Johnny Bench homered, then settled for the fourth one-hitter of his career, hurling the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-1 triumph over the Reds.

Jimmy Wynn slugged a two-run homer for the Dodgers in the first inning off loser Clay Kirby and Sutton, 2-0, squeezed home the final Los Angeles run in the seventh.

Bench's homer ended Sutton's string of scoreless innings at 17. Sutton, who shut out Houston on four hits in his last outing, has an 0.72 earned run average in three starts. He struck out eight Reds.

Ruud, Bahe Receive NU Football Honors

Tom Ruud and Ritch Bahe have received Nebraska's top football honors.

Ruud, a linebacker from Bloomington, Minn., who was a No. 1 pro draft choice by Buffalo, is the winner of the Tom Novak Trophy. The Novak Trophy, established in 1950, honors the senior Husker who typifies the play of the former Cornhusker all-America.

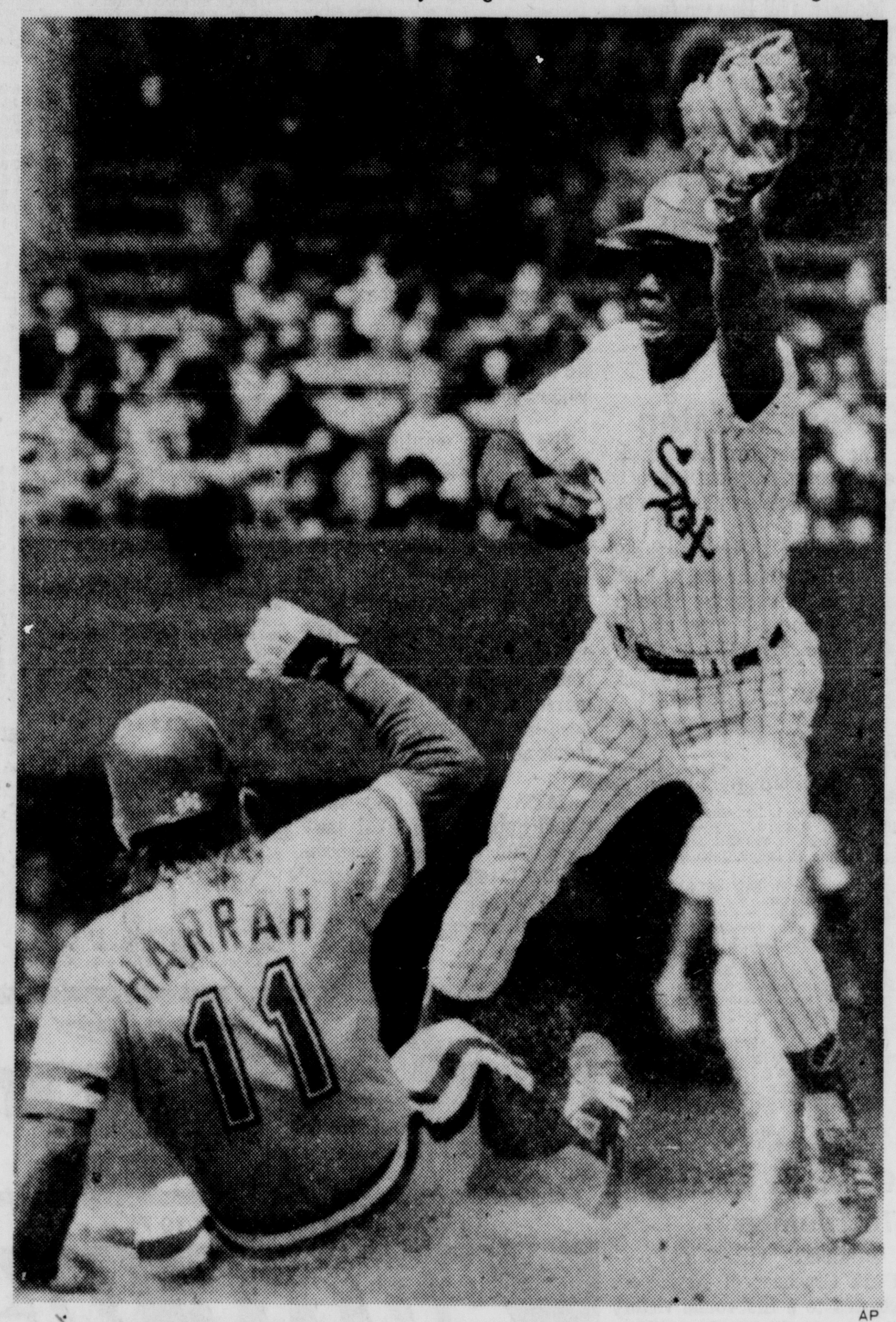

Bahe, a split end-wingback from Fremont, is the recipient of the Guy Chamberlin Trophy. The Chamberlin Trophy, inaugurated in 1967, honors the player who best typifies Chamberlin, an early Cornhusker player now in both the College and Pro Football Halls of Fame.

Previous Chamberlin winners include:

1967 — Marv Mueller; 1968 — Ernie Sigler; 1969 — Dana Stephenson; 1970 — Guy Ingles; 1971 — Jeff Kinney; 1972 — Rich Glover; 1973 — Maury Damkroger.

Previous Novak winners include:

1950 — Charles Toogood; 1951 — Frank Simon; 1952 — Ed Husmann; 1953 — Ted Connor; 1954 — Bob Wagner; 1955 — Rex Fischer; 1956 — LaVerne Torczon; 1957 — Jerry Brown; 1958 — Dick McCashland; 1959 — Harry Tolly;
1960 — Pat Fischer; 1961 — Don Purcell; 1962 — Dwain Carlson; 1963 — Dennis Claridge; 1964 — Lyle Sittler; 1965 — Tony Jeter; 1966 — Larry Wachholtz; 1967 — Wayne Meylan; 1968 — Ernie Sigler; 1969 — Al Larson; 1970 — Joe Orduna; 1971 Jeff Kinney; 1972 — Rich Glover; 1973 — John Bell.

Flyers Blank Toronto For 2-0 Playoff Lead

From News Wires

The defending Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers used a tight defense and two goals by Terry Crisp to score a 3-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night and take a 2-0 lead in an NHL quarter-final playoff series.

In other NHL playoff games, Buffalo beat Chicago 3-1, and Pittsburgh topped the New York Islanders 3-1.

Goalie Bernie Parent scored his third shutout in Stanley Cup play and the Flyers constantly thwarted what little offense the Leafs could muster, limiting Toronto to only 13 shots on goal.

Andre Dupont, ejected from Sunday's opening game for head butting, used his aggressiveness to fight through the crowd at 2:35 of the second period and slap in a power play goal.

Two minutes later, Jimmy Watson missed a long shot from back of the blue line but Crisp ended a scramble in front of the net by pushing the puck past goalie Gord McRae.

Ricky Dudley scored two first period goals to lead the Buffalo Sabres over the Chicago Black Hawks and give the Sabres a 2-0 lead in their National Hockey League quarterfinal Stanley Cup series.

The series now moves to Chicago for games Thursday night and Sunday.

Dudley fired in an 18-footer from straight out after a pass from Jim Lorentz to put the Sabres ahead by 2-1 at 9:59.

He deflected in a shot from the point by Jocelyn Gouvremont at 15:09 of the same period on a powerplay to give the Sabres their final 3-1 margin.

Neither team could mount a scoring offensive in the second period with each club getting only three shots on goal. But the Black Hawks came on with a vengence in the final period, outshooting Buffalo, 16-6. Sabres goal tender Gerry Desjardins confounded the Chicago attack, making several brilliant saves in the process.

Stan Mikita scored on a breakaway at 51 seconds of the first period to give Chicago a 1-0 lead. But at 1:35, Danny Gare trickled the puck past Chicago goalie Tony Esposito to tie the score before Dudley's two goals wrapped it up.

Garry Monahan scored at the 13:46 mark of the final period Tuesday night as the Vancouver Canucks scored their first win ever over Montreal and evened their best of seven Stanley Cup quarterfinal series at a game apiece by defeating the Canadiens 2-1.

In 27 regualar season games against Montreal during their five years in the National Hockey League, the Canucks managed only three ties.

Monahan's shot from 30-feet out got by Montreal goalie Ken Dryden who was screened on the play by Vancouver forward Leon Rochefort.

The teams were tied 1-1 after two periods. Montreal rookie Doug Risebrough got his first playoff goal at 12:39 of the first period when his 45-foot slap shot just managed to get by Canucks goalie Gary Smith.

The teams were playing four-a-side less than three minuutes later when Gerry O'Flaherty scored for Vancouver.

WHA

Mark Howe scored three goals and Murray Hall two to lead the Houston Aeros to a resounding 7-2 victory over the Cleveland Crusaders in the fourth game of their World Hockey Association playoff series.

The victory gave Houston a commanding 3-1 lead in games. The Aeros, defending WHA World Cup champions, could wrap up their quarter-final series with a victory Thursday in Houston.

Shorthanded goals by Bob Charlebois and Tom Earl ignited a four-goal New England third-period scoring binge that carried the Whalers to a 5-2 World Hockey Association playoff victory over Minnesota.

The Whaler's victory evened the WHA quarter-final series at 2-2

Husker Game Canceled

By United Press International

The University of Nebraska's scheduled doubleheader Tuesday with Missouri Western was canceled because of wet grounds.

A scheduled doubleheader Monday with Kearney State College also was canceled because of weather conditions.

The Cornhuskers were scheduled to play a Big Eight Conference doubleheader with Colorado Friday at Boulder.

Osborne Holds Doubts About Husker Offense

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne still maintained some doubts about the Husker offense after sending the NU squad through a 2½-hour rain-makeup practice Tuesday afternoon.

"Defensively, we're looking good, but I'm concerned with the offense," said Osborne. "We have some things to iron out on offense, with four new linemen, and the quarterback and wingback situation still up in the air. It's tough to be satisfied."

"We have about 85-90% of our offensive plays in right now but we are not a polished team now," said Osborne. "Last Saturday, during the full-scrimmage, the defense looked well and the offense not-so-well.

"But this Saturday (the next planned full day scrimmage) we expect to see a little better execution on offense," Osborne said.

"We'll be adding a few more plays on offense before Saturday's scrimmage, but we have almost all of our defense in now so we won't add much there," Osborne said.

Osborne reported that fullback Lafayette "Doty" Donnell, who suffered a knee injury in Monday's workout should be returning to the workouts next week.

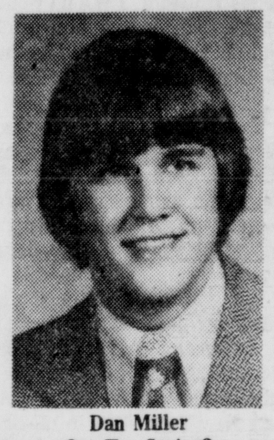

"We hope Donnell will be back next week. He appeared to be a solid second string fullback, and could even be pushing for first string," Osborne said of the 6-2, 210) sophomore from Hackensack, N.J.

Osborne also reported that second-string right guard Dan Miller suffered a knee injury during Tuesday's practice and "may be out for the rest of the spring." Miller, a 6-3, 232-pound sophomore from Hebron, had been alternating at the second right guard spot with 6-4, 246-pound sophomore Stan Waldemore of Belleville, N.J.

Wednesday, the Huskers will scrimmage about 15 minutes each at the stations from 3-5 p.m. and will taper off on hitting Friday with a "teaching" type of practice. Saturday is the next scheduled full scrimmage.

Out For Spring?

Working out for the first time in new positions were Rich Costanzo at first-string left offensive tackle and George Andrew and tight end Ken Spaeth moving up to the second unit. Ted Harvey moved into the safety position.

The quarterback race remains relatively the same with Terry Luck running the first team, Vince Ferragamo and Tom Sorely the second and Ed Burns and Randy Garcia alternating with the third and fourth units.

Omaha's Center CHL Top Rookie

Dallas (UPI) —Omaha Knights' center Guy Chouinnard, the No. 11 scorer this season in the Central Hockey League, was named Rookie of the Year Tuesday.

Chouinnard edged Oklahoma City's Jack Valiquette for the top honor voted by the eight Central Hockey League coaches.

Chouinnard, a 5-11, 175-pounder from Quebec City, was signed by the Atlanta organization last year after a brilliant junior hockey career in Canada. He had 28 goals and 40 assists for 68 points despite playing three weeks with the parent club.

KSU, Creighton Divide Twinbill

Compiled From News Wires

The Kansas State Wildcats and Creighton Bluejays split a doubleheader Tuesday with the Wildcats winning the first 5-4 and the Bluejays the second 10-4.

In other Big Eight action, Oklahoma State and Tulsa split a wild and wooly doubleheader at Stillwater with the Cowboys blasting Tulsa, 12-3, in the first game but falling in the second 14-2. Colorado swept a doubleheader from Southern Colorado State, 2-1, 9-2 on the 'Buffs home diamond; and Iowa State posted two victories over Morningside at Ames, 9-6 and 4-2.

K-State went into the seventh inning trailing 4-1, but managed four runs with the help of two Bluejay errors, and won it by a one-run edge.

Scott Kopnick connected with a grand slam homer in the fifth inning of the second game and the Jays went on to win handily.

Creighton's Mark Kleinsmith relieved Randy Hill on the mound in the third inning and allowed no hits during the remaining four and one-third innings of the second contest.

Creighton's record is now 18-6 while K-State's mark is 12-16.

Iowa State second baseman Randy Duarde, a .406 hitter, went seven for eight at the plate and had three hits in four at-bats in the opener including one double, to drive in one run. He went four for four in the nightcap, with two RBI's. He also stole four bases, two in each game.

Cyclone shortstop Larry Lucchesi was two for three in the first game, driving in two runs. There were no home runs in the contests.

The two wins improved Iowa State's season record to 13-8, while the Chiefs dropped to 2-8.

OSU righthander Bob Evans (3-1) scattered five hits, although two of them were homers, while third baseman Matt Mullens and designated hitter Jim Unmacht provided most of the firepower.

Mullens drove in four runs on three hits and Unmach homered.

A seven-run explosion in the third inning put the game away for the Cowboys.

In the nightcap, Tulsa scored in all but the first inning, capping its rout with four-run bursts in the sixth and seventh frames. Rick Ritschel 4-1 stymied the Cowboys on four hits while Cowboy starter Ray Wingfield 6-4 suffered the loss.

Eddie Stephenson homered for Tulsa in the nightcap as did Unmach and Dan Massari for the Cowboys.

OSU, now 14-10 on the year, took the six-game series, 4-2. Tulsa is now 12-8 over-all.

Dan Antolini fired a six-hitter in the second game to lead Colorado over Southern Colorado State and a sweep of their college baseball doubleheader.

Antolini was touched for a run in the third inning, but blanked the Indians the rest of the way in the seven-inning game. The Buffs pushed across two runs in the sixth inning, with the winning run scoring when Bobby Morris hit into a fielder's choice.

Bob Nickeson, Mark Koncar and Jay Sferra hammered home runs to support Ted Cox, five-hit pitching in the opener. Nickeson's solo blast came in the first inning and was followed by Koncar's two-run shot, giving the Buffs a quick 3-0 lead. CU added three more runs in the second inning.

Colorado boosted its record to 13-10 with the sweep.

Bliss Replaces Ramsey At OU

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

When Oklahoma hired Dave Bliss to succeed Joe Ramsey as head basketball coach Tuesday, the Sooners got a man whose personality matches that of OU football coach Barry Switzer.

Both men are personable, knowledgeable, good talkers, hard workers, natty dressers, and have winning backgrounds.

Bliss, top assistant to Bobby Knight at Indiana the last four seasons, will be introduced to writers and sportscasters in the Sooner state at a press conference Wednesday afternoon in Norman.

His first order of business, as it is with all new coaches, is recruiting. He already has talked with six of the top prospects in Oklahoma, which this year is said to have a better than usual crop of high school seniors.

"I plan to drive around the state Thursday and Friday meeting them personally," Bliss said from Bloomington, Ind.

The top Oklahoma prospect is said to be Winford Boynes, the 6-7 center-forward who averaged 26.4 points a game for Capitol Hill.

Boynes, who still hasn't signed a national letter of intent, recently scored 26 points for a U.S. All-Star team in a game against a team of California all-stars.

"He's undoubtedly the finest prospect in the state this year," according to Oklahoma State coach Guy Strong. "He has exceptional ability and could develop into an outstanding collegiate player."

He's A Baseball Fan

The 31-year-old Bliss is a baseball fan and in his college days at Cornell he was an All-Ivy League selection in both baseball and basketball.

The new Sooner coach said he plans to take Indiana graduate assistant Doug Ash to Norman as one of his assistant coaches, but he hasn't decided on his other aide.

According to wire service reports, Bliss won the job over Roy Danforth, who guided Syracuse to the round of four in the recent NCAA tournament. He is expected to get a three-year contract for about $24,000 annually.

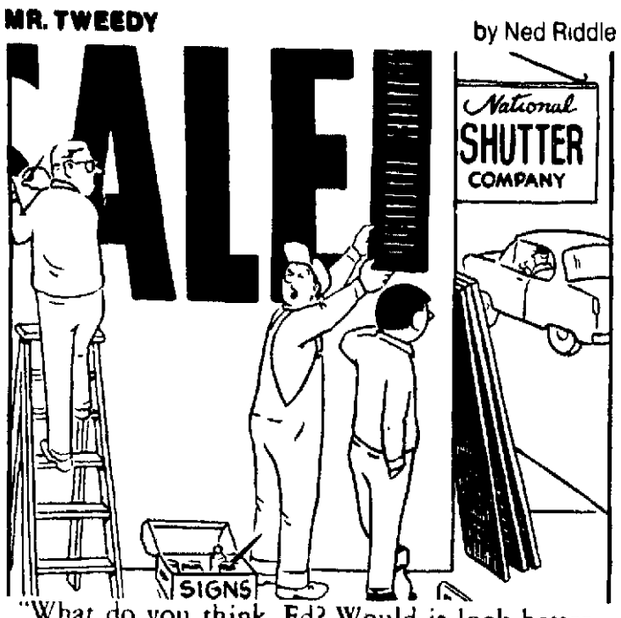

He first joined Knight when the current Indiana coach was head man at the U.S. Military Academy, then returned to Cornell as freshman coach for one year and had a 13-3 record. He rejoined Knight four seasons ago at the Big Ten school.

As a result of his association with Knight, Bliss is expected to coach a man-to-man defense and have an offense in which there is great movement without the ball.

Bliss will inherit the Big Eight's best player in 6-9 center Alvan Adams and he also will keep 16 other players off Ramsey's last team.

Lewis, Spirits Dethorne Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Freddie Lewis' 20-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining carried the underdog Spirits of St. Louis to a 108-107 victory over New York Tuesday night and knocked the defending champion Nets out of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

St. Louis' fourth consecutive victory, after an opening game loss in the best-of-seven series, moved the Spirits into the Eastern Division final against the Kentucky Colonels. The St. Louis-Kentucky series will open at Kentucky Monday night.

The diminutive Lewis, who finished with 29 points, scored St. Louis' last 10. His threepoint field goal with 1:51 remaining brought the Spirits within two points at 103-101. Twenty-one seconds later Lewis' three-point play put the Spirits ahead for the first time in the game, 104-103.

The stunned Nets then forged ahead 107-104 on baskets by Willie Sojourner and Julius Erving, who was the game's high scorer with 34 points. Erving's basket came with 54 seconds to play.

But the determined Spirits were not finished. Lewis, the third-leading scorer in ABA playoff history, sank two free throws with 18 seconds left, cutting New York's lead to 107-106. Then after the usually reliable Erving lost the ball on a backcourt violation, St. Louis took time out. Mike Barr passed the ball inbounds to Lewis and the veteran backcourt man dribbled around before setting up his winning field goal, a jumper from behind the foul line.

Barr contributed 20 points for St. Louis, while Marvin Barnes, who had averaged 34 points in the first four games, added 17—15 in the second half.

John Williamson came off the bench to score 22 points for the Nets and Larry Kenon added 17.

The victory over the defending champion Nets was a remarkable accomplishment for the relatively inexperienced Spirits, who start three rookies in the front court and had lost all 11 regular season games against New York.

The Nets got off to a quick start, sprinting to a 7-0 lead in the opening 1½ minutes. With Kenon connecting on all five of his field-goal attempts, Bill Melchionni deftly setting up plays and accounting for five assists, and Billy Paultz' tight defense, holding Barnes scoreless, New York built its advantage to 30-20 after one period.

Barnes remained ineffective in the second quarter, being held scoreless until two minutes remained in the half when he dropped in a layup. Maurice Lucas, the Spirits' rugged rookie center, meanwhile was held scoreless from the floor in the first half, missing all four of his field goal attempts.

Ewerth Powers LHS To Victory

Brad Ewerth powered a homer over the left field fence to lead Lincoln High to its first victory of the season over Pius X, 2-1, in city play.

Allen Fen led off the bottom of the sixth with a single. Greg Heckman sacrificed Fen to second, and then Ewerth hit Jerry Kobza's first pitch for the two-run homer.

Gary Hart collected the only other hit for Lincoln High.

Russell Shepard, a junior, picked up his first win of the season. Kobza is now 0-2.

Lincoln High, now 1-0 in the city and 1-3 overall meets Southeast at Sherman field Wednesday.

Graebner Coasts To Triumph

BUSINES AIRES (AP) — Clark Graebner of New York coasted to a first-round victory Tuesday in the Rio De La Plata Open Tennis Tournament by downing Argentina's Miguel Gratzen, 6-4, 6-3.

Manuel Santana of Spain beat Argentina's Fidel De Mattei, 60, 6-2.

Chile's Patricio Rodriguez, however, was upset by Argentina's Hector Romani, 6-4, 7-6.

Cable Operators Protest

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Cable television operators protested proposed regulations Monday which they said would black out sports programs for millions of viewers.

The Federal Communications Commission is considering a rule which would bar cable TV operators from importing professional games of the same sport on the day a local team is playing at home, unless the event was available on local television.

In a resolution adopted at the National Cable Television Association's annual convention here, operators called upon the FCC to drop the proposal.

More than 3 million homes served by cable TV would feel the loss, CATV officials said.

The effect would be most severe in the nation's 50 largest metropolitan area, where the cable TV growth is just beginning, since 34 of those markets are home to one or more major league sports teams, they added.

The effect would be disasterous to their developing industry, officials said, but wouldn't have much impact on sports gate receipts.

The resolution noted that the FCC's own recent study of television blackouts shows sporting events haven't suffered when blackout restrictions were removed, and that Congress has been moving toward expanding public access to televised sports.

CATV officials said they would present the FCC next week with documents describing the massive effect the proposed sports blackout would have on cable television subscribers.

Blazer Fans, Owners Protest Walton's Political Statements

By SAM GOLDAPER
(c) 1975 N.Y. Times News Service

New York — Bill Walton's offcourt statements last week critical of the United States Government have aroused a storm of protests from the people of Portland, Ore.

Hundreds of letters and telephone calls, including demands that he be traded, have been received by the Portland Trail Blazers, the National Basketball Association team that he plays for. The city's two newspapers have run editorials chiding Walton. The protests led to a special meeting of the team's owners and executives Sunday in Los Angeles.

Larry Weinberg, team president; Herman Sarkowsky, a part-owner and Harry Glickman, executive vice president, issued the following statement Monday in Portland.

"The Portland Trail Blazers deplore Bill Walton's statement calling for the rejection of the United States Government. The United States is the freest and most democratic nation in the world. We and the people throughout the world recognize this. The American system, despite its imperfections, has been and continues to be the haven which oppressed people throughout the world yearn to reach. We believe the National Basketball Association is an example of the opportunities available to people under the system of government, and Walton, more than most, has reaped extraordinary benefits from this system."

Walter Kennedy, N.B.A. commissioner, commenting on the Blazer statement, said: "I totally agree. Thinking people everywhere will agree with these sentiments."

Weinberg, who was in Los Angeles, said he spoke to Walton Sunday in Portland.

"I made Bill aware of the statement we would be issuing," he said. "I told him why we were doing it. He offered no comment."

Walton was accompanied by Jack and Micki Scott at a news conference last Wednesday in which the Scotts disavowed any alleged wrongdoing with relation to the Patty Hearst case.

Walton referred then to the Federal Bureau of Investigation as "the enemy" and called "on the world to stand with us in our rejection of the United States Government."

Walton's activities, which have displeased the Blazers, have led to numerous reports that he would be traded to the Los Angeles Lakers. Los Angeles is said to be a more liberal-minded city than Portland. In addition, Walton has always said he wanted to play in Los Angeles, where he was an all-American for three seasons at U.C.L.A.

When Glickman was asked of the possibilities of such a trade, he said, "I never comment on rumors."

Asked if that meant he would not trade Walton, he said "I won't say that."

Weinberg, however said: "We have no plans to trade Bill. We believe he is an extraordinary player."

Weinberg and other Blazer executives are meeting Tuesday in Las Vegas, Nev., where the College All-Star game is being played.

When the Blazers signed the 6-11 Walton to a five-year contract worth more than $2 million, their suffering fans, believing he would turn around the team's fortunes, purchased 6,300 season tickets, more than double the number of the previous year. But Walton was said not to have created an angry mood among many fans and much of the populace.

"Our survey shows the people are 4-1 against him," said Don McLeod, sports editor of The Portland Oregonian, by telephone.

"We have talked to people on golf courses, race tracks and a sports show," he said, "and most of them just want him out of their hair. It's going to have a disastrous effect on the season ticket sales.

"The Coliseum, where the Trail Blazers play, is a memorial to veterans, and many of the veteran groups are opposed to him."

Walton played in only 35 games last season. He was reported to have had injuries.

Hunter Hit Hard By Red Sox, 5-3

By United Press International

The Boston Red Sox roughed up Catfish Hunter for four hits and four runs in the fourth inning Tuesday to hand the Yankees' prize new pitcher his second consecutive loss with a 5-3 decision over slumping New York.

Hunter was hit hard throughout the dark and dismal afternoon and was treated to his first chorus of boos by New York fans after being removed in the eighth inning.

Dwight Evans had the big blow for the Red Sox in their fourth inning rally, delivering a sharp two-out single to left that sent home the tying and winning rns. The big rightfielder now has hit safely in all six Boston games.

In other American League day games, California defeated Minnesota 7-3 and Texas nipped Chicago 6-5 in 13 innings.

Mickey Rivers singled to right field to drive in Orlando Ramirez in the seventh inning and came around all the way to score himself when the ball went through Bobby Darwin to aid California's victory over Minnesota.

Nolan Ryan, who allowed eight hits but walked nine Twins, posted his third victory without a defeat, tops in the major leagues, with the help of four Angel double plays and ninth inning relief assistance from Mickey Scott. Dave Goltz, 0-2, took the loss — the Twins' fifth straight.

Dave Nelson opened the 13th inning with a single, stole second and scored the winning run on Joe Lovitto's single to give Texas its win over Rich Gossage and Chicago, breaking a two-game Rangers losing streak.

Milwaukee defeated Baltimore 7-1 and Kansas City edged Oakland 4-3 in night games.

Pedro Garcia rapped a double and run-scoring single in support of Billy Champion's five-hit pitching and the Milwaukee Brewers took advantage of three Baltimore errors during a six-run eighth inning to beat the Orioles.

Milwaukee spotted loser Jim Palmer a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but Garcia's RBI single in the fifth tied the game, and he led off the explosive eighth inning with a double as the Brewers cashed in with six unearned runs.

George Brett lofted a runscoring double down the leftfield line in the ninth inning to sparking the Royals to a comefrom-behind 4-3 victory over the A's.

Hal McRae opened the ninth with a single against loser Rollie Fingers. After Harmon Killebrew struck out, Brett's double eluded leftfielder Claudell Washington and McRae scored all the way from first base with the winning run.

Meanwhile, Don Sutton held Cincinnati hitless for 6 2-3 innings before Johnny Bench homered, then settled for the fourth one-hitter of his career, hurling the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-1 triumph over the Reds.

Jimmy Wynn slugged a two-run homer for the Dodgers in the first inning off loser Clay Kirby and Sutton, 2-0, squeezed home the final Los Angeles run in the seventh.

Bench's homer ended Sutton's string of scoreless innings at 17. Sutton, who shut out Houston on four hits in his last outing, has an 0.72 earned run average in three starts. He struck out eight Reds.

Ruud, Bahe Receive NU Football Honors

Tom Ruud and Ritch Bahe have received Nebraska's top football honors.

Ruud, a linebacker from Bloomington, Minn., who was a No. 1 pro draft choice by Buffalo, is the winner of the Tom Novak Trophy. The Novak Trophy, established in 1950, honors the senior Husker who typifies the play of the former Cornhusker all-America.

Bahe, a split end-wingback from Fremont, is the recipient of the Guy Chamberlin Trophy. The Chamberlin Trophy, inaugurated in 1967, honors the player who best typifies Chamberlin, an early Cornhusker player now in both the College and Pro Football Halls of Fame.

Previous Chamberlin winners include:

1967 — Marv Mueller; 1968 — Ernie Sigler, 1969 — Dana Stephenson; 1970 — Guy Ingles; 1971 — Jeff Kinney; 1972 — Rich Glover; 1973 — Maury Damkroger

Previous Novak winners include:

1950 — Charles Toogood; 1951 — Frank Simon, 1952 — Ed Husmann; 1953 — Ted Connor; 1954 — Bob Wagner; 1955 — Rex Fischer; 1956 — LaVerne Torczon; 1957 — Jerry Brown; 1958 — Dick McCashland; 1959 — Harry Tolly,

Flyers Blank Toronto For 2-0 Playoff Lead

From News Wires

The defending Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers used a tight defense and two goals by Terry Crisp to score a 3-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night and take a 2-0 lead in an NHL quarter-final playoff series.

In other NHL playoff games, Buffalo beat Chicago 3-1, and Pittsburgh topped the New York Islanders 3-1.

Goalie Bernie Parent scored his third shutout in Stanley Cup play and the Flyers constantly thwarted what little offense the Leafs could muster, limiting Toronto to only 13 shots on goal.

Andre Dupont, ejected from Sunday's opening game for head butting, used his aggressiveness to fight through the crowd at 2:35 of the second period and slap in a power play goal.

Two minutes later, Jimmy Watson missed a long shot from back of the blue line but Crisp ended a scramble in front of the net by pushing the puck past goalie Gord McRae.

Ricky Dudley scored two first period goals to lead the Buffalo Sabres over the Chicago Black Hawks and give the Sabres a 2-0 lead in their National Hockey League quarterfinal Stanley Cup series.

The series now moves to Chicago for games Thursday night and Sunday.

Dudley fired in an 18-footer from straight out after a pass from Jim Lorentz to put the Sabres ahead by 2-1 at 9:59.

He deflected in a shot from the point by Jocelyn Gouvremont at 15:09 of the same period on a powerplay to give the Sabres their final 3-1 margin.

Neither team could mount a scoring offensive in the second period with each club getting only three shots on goal. But the Black Hawks came on with a vengence in the final period, outshooting Buffalo, 16-6. Sabres goal tender Gerry Desjardins confounded the Chicago attack, making several brilliant saves in the process.

Stan Mikita scored on a breakaway at 51 seconds of the first period to give Chicago a 1-0 lead. But at 1:35, Danny Gare trickled the puck past Chicago goalie Tony Esposito to tie the score before Dudley's two goals wrapped it up.

Garry Monahan scored at the 13:46 mark of the final period Tuesday night as the Vancouver Canucks scored their first win ever over Montreal and evened their best of seven Stanley Cup quarterfinal series at a game apiece by defeating the Canadiens 2-1.

In 27 regualar season games against Montreal during their five years in the National Hockey League, the Canucks managed only three ties.

Monahan's shot from 30-feet out got by Montreal goalie Ken Dryden who was screened on the play by Vancouver forward Leon Rochefort.

The teams were tied 1-1 after two periods. Montreal rookie Doug Risebrough got his first playoff goal at 12:39 of the first period when his 45-foot slap shot just managed to get by Canucks goalie Gary Smith.

The teams were playing four-a-side less than three minuutes later when Gerry O'Flaherty scored for Vancouver.

WHA

Mark Howe scored three goals and Murray Hall two to lead the Houston Aeros to a resounding 7-2 victory over the Cleveland Crusaders in the fourth game of their World Hockey Association playoff series.

The victory gave Houston a commanding 3-1 lead in games. The Aeros, defending WHA World Cup champions, could wrap up their quarter-final series with a victory Thursday in Houston.

Shorthanded goals by Bob Charlebois and Tom Earl ignited a four-goal New England third-period scoring binge that carried the Whalers to a 5-2 World Hockey Association playoff victory over Minnesota.

The Whaler's victory evened the WHA quarter-final series at 2-2

Husker Game Canceled

By United Press International

The University of Nebraska's scheduled doubleheader Tuesday with Missouri Western was canceled because of wet grounds.

A scheduled doubleheader Monday with Kearney State College also was canceled because of weather conditions.

The Cornhuskers were scheduled to play a Big Eight Conference doubleheader with Colorado Friday at Boulder.

Osborne Holds Doubts About Husker Offense

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne still maintained some doubts about the Husker offense after sending the NU squad through a 2½-hour rain-makeup practice Tuesday afternoon.

"Defensively, we're looking good, but I'm concerned with the offense," said Osborne. "We have some things to iron out on offense, with four new linemen, and the quarterback and wingback situation still up in the air. It's tough to be satisfied."

"We have about 85-90% of our offensive plays in right now but we are not a polished team now," said Osborne "Last Saturday, during the full-scrimmage, the defense looked well and the offense not-so-well.

"But this Saturday (the next planned full day scrimmage) we expect to see a little better execution on offense," Osborne said

"We'll be adding a few more plays on offense before Saturday's scrimmage, but we have almost all of our defense in now so we won't add much there." Osborne said

Osborne reported that fullback Lafayette "Doty" Donnell, who suffered a knee injury in Monday's workout should be returning to the workouts next week

"We hope Donnell will be back next week. He appeared to be a solid second string fullback, and could even be pushing for first string," Osborne said of the 6-2, 210) sophomore from Hackensack, N.J

Osborne also reported that second-string right guard Dan Miller suffered a knee injury during Tuesday's practice and "may be out for the rest of the spring." Miller, a 6-3, 232-pound sophomore from Hebron, had been alternating at the second right guard spot with 6-4, 246-pound sophomore Stan Waldemore of Belleville, N.J.

Wednesday, the Huskers will scrimmage about 15 minutes each at the stations from 3-5 p m. and will taper off on hitting Friday with a "teaching" type of practice Saturday is the next scheduled full scrimmage.

Dan Miller
Out For Spring?

Working out for the first time in new positions were Rich Costanzo at first-string left offensive tackle and George Andrew and tight end Ken Spaeth moving up to the second unit Ted Harvey moved into the safety position.

The quarterback race remains relatively the same with Terry Luck running the first team, Vince Ferragamo and Tom Sorely the second and Ed Burns and Randy Garcia alternating with the third and fourth units

Omaha's Center CHL Top Rookie

Dallas (UPI) —Omaha Knights' center Guy Chouinnard, the No 11 scorer this season in the Central Hockey League, was named Rookie of the Year Tuesday.

Chouinnard edged Oklahoma City's Jack Valiquette for the top honor voted by the eight Central Hockey League coaches.

Chouinnard, a 5-11, 175-pounder from Quebec City, was signed by the Atlanta organization last year after a brilliant junior hockey career in Canada. He had 28 goals and 40 assists for 68 points despite playing three weeks with the parent club.

KSU, Creighton Divide Twinbill

Compiled From News Wires

The Kansas State Wildcats and Creighton Bluejays split a doubleheader Tuesday with the Wildcats winning the first 5-4 and the Bluejays the second 10-4

In other Big Eight action, Oklahoma State and Tulsa split a wild and wooly doubleheader at Stillwater with the Cowboys blasting Tulsa, 12-3, in the first game but falling in the second 14-2 Colorado swept a doubleheader from Southern Colorado State, 2-1, 9-2 on the 'Buffs home diamond, and Iowa State posted two victories over Morningside at Ames, 9-6 and 4-2

K-State went into the seventh inning trailing 4-1, but managed four runs with the help of two Bluejay errors, and won it by a one-run edge

Scott Kopnick connected with a grand slam homer in the fifth inning of the second game and the Jays went on to win handily

Creighton's Mark Kleinsmith relieved Randy Hill on the mound in the third inning and allowed no hits during the remaining four and one-third innings of the second contest.

Creighton's record is now 18-6 while K-State's mark is 12-16

Iowa State second baseman Randy Duarde, a .406 hitter, went seven for eight at the plate and had three hits in four at-bats in the opener including one double, to drive in one run. He went four for four in the nightcap, with two RBI's. He also stole four bases, two in each game

Cyclone shortstop Larry Lucchesi was two for three in the first game, driving in two runs. There were no home runs in the contests.

The two wins improved Iowa State's season record to 13-8, while the Chiefs dropped to 2-8.

OSU righthander Bob Evans (3-1) scattered five hits, although two of them were homers, while third baseman Matt Mullens and designated hitter Jim Unmacht provided most of the firepower

Mullens drove in four runs on three hits and Unmach homered

A seven-run explosion in the third inning put the game away for the Cowboys

In the nightcap, Tulsa scored in all but the first inning, capping its rout with four-run bursts in the sixth and seventh frames. Rick Ritschel 4-1 stymied the Cowboys on four hits while Cowboy starter Ray Wingfield 6-4 suffered the loss.

Eddie Stephenson homered for Tulsa in the nightcap as did Unmach and Dan Massari for the Cowboys.

OSU, now 14-10 on the year, took the six-game series, 4-2 Tulsa is now 12-8 over-all.

Dan Antolini fired a six-hitter in the second game to lead Colorado over Southern Colorado State and a sweep of their college baseball doubleheader.

Antolini was touched for a run in the third inning, but blanked the Indians the rest of the way in the seven-inning game The Buffs pushed across two runs in the sixth inning, with the winning run scoring when Bobby Morris hit into a fielder's choice.

Bob Nickeson, Mark Koncar and Jay Sferra hammered home runs to support Ted Cox, five-hit pitching in the opener. Nickeson's solo blast came in the first inning and was followed by Koncar's two-run shot, giving the Buffs a quick 3-0 lead. CU added three more runs in the second inning.

Colorado boosted its record to 13-10 with the sweep.

Bliss Replaces Ramsey At OU

When Oklahoma hired Dave Bliss to succeed Joe Ramsey as head basketball coach Tuesday, the Sooners got a man whose personality matches that of OU football coach Barry Switzer.

Both men are personable, knowledgeable, good talkers, hard workers, natty dressers, and have winning backgrounds.

Bliss, top assistant to Bobby Knight at Indiana the last four seasons, will be introduced to writers and sportscasters in the Sooner state at a press conference Wednesday afternoon in Norman.

His first order of business, as it is with all new coaches, is recruiting. He already has talked with six of the top prospects in Oklahoma, which this year is said to have a better than usual crop of high school seniors.

"I plan to drive around the state Thursday and Friday meeting them personally," Bliss said from Bloomington, Ind.

The top Oklahoma prospect is said to be Winford Boynes, the 6-7 center-forward who averaged 26.4 points a game for Capitol Hill.

Boynes, who still hasn't signed a national letter of intent, recently scored 26 points for a U.S. All-Star team in a game against a team of California all-stars.

"He's undoubtedly the finest prospect in the state this year," according to Oklahoma State coach Guy Strong. "He has exceptional ability and could develop into an outstanding collegiate player."

He's A Baseball Fan

The 31-year-old Bliss is a baseball fan and in his college days at Cornell he was an All-Ivy League selection in both baseball and basketball.

The new Sooner coach said he plans to take Indiana graduate assistant Doug Ash to Norman as one of his assistant coaches, but he hasn't decided on his other aide.

According to wire service reports, Bliss won the job over Roy Danforth, who guided Syracuse to the round of four in the recent NCAA tournament. He is expected to get a three-year contract for about $24,000 annually.

He first joined Knight when the current Indiana coach was head man at the U.S. Military Academy, then returned to Cornell as freshman coach for one year and had a 13-3 record. He rejoined Knight four seasons ago at the Big Ten school.

As a result of his association with Knight, Bliss is expected to coach a man-to-man defense and have an offense in which there is great movement without the ball.

Bliss will inherit the Big Eight's best player in 6-9 center Alvan Adams and he also will keep 16 other players off Ramsey's last team.

Tosoro Gains Fonner Feature

Grand Island — A.D. Turner's Tosoro scored his first 1975 victory after five winless runs in Tuesday's featured seventh race here at Fonner Park.

The 4-year-old filly came from off the pace to win by a half-length over Clark Hudson's Good By Boob to capture the winners' share of the $2,500 purse. Ridden by Leslie Spiller, Tosoro was clocked in 1:13 4-5 over the muddy track for the 6 furlongs.

As an 8-1 outsider in the field of eight 4-year-old allowance horses, Tosoro paid $18.00, $7.60 and $5.60. Good By Boob, ridden by Dave King, returned $6.00 and $5.20.

R. Abner and Frank Rystrom's Upon A Star showed for $11.60.

Anthony Leading Standings

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — If Earl Anthony can successfully defend his title in this week's Tournament of Champions at Akron, he will jump over $70,000 in earnings on the Professional Bowlers' Association tour.

The Tacoma, Wash., bowler already is far out in front in the 1975 pro bowling money derby with $46,050 in prize money after 12 tournaments.

That puts him nearly $15,000 ahead of Carmen Salvino of Chicago, who has earned $31,348 in 15 tournaments.

First prize in the $125,000 Tournament of Champions is $25,000.

Salvino earned $1,050 with a 23rd place finish at Toledo last weekend and holds a narrow edge over Nelson Burton Jr. of St.Louis. Burton jumped into third place with a $6,000 second prize at Toledo and now has won $31,245 for the year.

Others in the top 10 money winners include Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa., $25,628; Paul Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., $25,575; Dave Davis, Atlanta, Ga., $23,235; Larry Laub, San Francisco, $19,078; Gary Dickinson, Ft. Worth, Tex. $19,065; Mark Roth, Staten Island, N. Y., $18,728, and Johnny Petraglia, Staten Island, N. Y., $18,450.

Omaha Royals Open At Home

Omaha — The Omaha Royals will open the 1975 American Association baseball season at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Rosenblatt Stadium against the Wichita Aeros.

The Offutt AFB band will provide entertainment for pregame ceremonies which will begin at 7:20 p.m.

The first home stand for new manager Billy Gardner's team is a four-game series with additional night games Thursday and Friday and a Saturday afternoon game against the Aeros.

Soap Box Derby Meeting Scheduled

The second Lincoln organizational meeting for contestants in this year's Soap Box Derby is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the basement of the Bethany Medical Building at 65th and Holdrege, according to newly-appointed race director Dennis Douty.

"We had seven kids at our first meeting last week and since 15 or so have expressed interest, we should have between 20 and 22 at this Saturday's meeting," Douty said. "We're hoping that 25 kids enter the race."

More Sports, Pages 36, 37

The Lincoln Soap Box Derby set for July 13 on a hill at 52nd and R Sts. The rainout date is one week later, on July 20.

The Lincoln winner will advance to the national Soap Box Derby at Akron, O. on Aug. 16.

Douty can be contacted for further details.

Lewis, Spirits Dethorne Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Freddie Lewis' 20-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining carried the underdog Spirits of St. Louis to a 108-107 victory over New York Tuesday night and knocked the defending champion Nets out of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

St. Louis' fourth consecutive victory, after an opening game loss in the best-of-seven series, moved the Spirits into the Eastern Division final against the Kentucky Colonels. The St. Louis-Kentucky series will open at Kentucky Monday night.

The diminutive Lewis, who finished with 29 points, scored St. Louis' last 10. His threepoint field goal with 1:51 remaining brought the Spirits within two points at 103-101. Twenty-one seconds later Lewis' three-point play put the Spirits ahead for the first time in the game, 104-103.

The stunned Nets then forged ahead 107-104 on baskets by Willie Sojourner and Julius Erving, who was the game's high scorer with 34 points. Erving's basket came with 54 seconds to play.

But the determined Spirits were not finished. Lewis, the third-leading scorer in ABA playoff history, sank two free throws with 18 seconds left, cutting New York's lead to 107-106. Then after the usually reliable Erving lost the ball on a backcourt violation, St. Louis took time out. Mike Barr passed the ball inbounds to Lewis and the veteran backcourt man dribbled around before setting up his winning field goal, a jumper from behind the foul line.

Barr contributed 20 points for St. Louis, while Marvin Barnes, who had averaged 34 points in the first four games, added 17—15 in the second half.

John Williamson came off the bench to score 22 points for the Nets and Larry Kenon added 17.

The victory over the defending champion Nets was a remarkable accomplishment for the relatively inexperienced Spirits, who start three rookies in the front court and had lost all 11 regular season games against New York.

The Nets got off to a quick start, sprinting to a 7-0 lead in the opening 1½ minutes. With Kenon connecting on all five of his field-goal attempts, Bill Melchionni deftly setting up plays and accounting for five assists, and Billy Paultz' tight defense, holding Barnes scoreless, New York built its advantage to 30-20 after one period.

Barnes remained ineffective in the second quarter, being held scoreless until two minutes remained in the half when he dropped in a layup. Maurice Lucas, the Spirits' rugged rookie center, meanwhile was held scoreless from the floor in the first half, missing all four of his field goal attempts.

Ewerth Powers LHS To Victory

Brad Ewerth powered a homer over the left field fence to lead Lincoln High to its first victory of the season over Pius X, 2-1, in city play.

Allen Fen led off the bottom of the sixth with a single. Greg Heckman sacrificed Fen to second, and then Ewerth hit Jerry Kobza's first pitch for the two-run homer.

Gary Hart collected the only other hit for Lincoln High.

Russell Shepard, a junior, picked up his first win of the season. Kobza is now 0-2.

Lincoln High, now 1-0 in the city and 1-3 overall meets Southeast at Sherman field Wednesday.

Graebner Coasts To Triumph

BUSINES AIRES (AP) — Clark Graebner of New York coasted to a first-round victory Tuesday in the Rio De La Plata Open Tennis Tournament by downing Argentina's Miguel Gratzen, 6-4, 6-3.

Manuel Santana of Spain beat Argentina's Fidel De Mattei, 60, 6-2.

Chile's Patricio Rodriguez, however, was upset by Argentina's Hector Romani, 6-4, 7-6.

Cable Operators Protest

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Cable television operators protested proposed regulations Monday which they said would black out sports programs for millions of viewers.

The Federal Communications Commission is considering a rule which would bar cable TV operators from importing professional games of the same sport on the day a local team is playing at home, unless the event was available on local television.

In a resolution adopted at the National Cable Television Association's annual convention here, operators called upon the FCC to drop the proposal.

More than 3 million homes served by cable TV would feel the loss, CATV officials said.

The effect would be most severe in the nation's 50 largest metropolitan area, where the cable TV growth is just beginning, since 34 of those markets are home to one or more major league sports teams, they added.

The effect would be disasterous to their developing industry, officials said, but wouldn't have much impact on sports gate receipts.

The resolution noted that the FCC's own recent study of television blackouts shows sporting events haven't suffered when blackout restrictions were removed, and that Congress has been moving towards expanding public access to televised sports.

CATV officials said they would present the FCC next week with documents describing the massive effect the proposed sports blackout would have on cable television subscribers.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASEBALL

San Francisco Giants' pitcher Ron Bryant, who recently announced his retirement, has sent word to the Giants that he wants his name removed from the voluntarily retired list and that he'd like to be released or traded, the club said.

The New York Mets traded relief pitcher Mac Scarce to the Cincinniati Reds for left-handed relief specialist Tom Hall.

Catcher Steve Yeager of the Los Angeles Dodgers did not suffer a fractured leg as first suspected and probably will be able to rejoin the team within 10 days.

Cuba has asked the International Amateur Baseball Federation for permission to invite U.S. major league teams to meet their powerful amateur squads. No dates or teams were mentioned in the bulletin.

Syd Thrift, a scout for the Kansas City Royals since 1968, has resigned to go into the real estate business in Vienna, Va.

BASKETBALL

James Bradley, a 6-8½ forward from Memphis, Tenn., has signed a national letter of intent with Iowa State, Cyclone coach Ken Trickey announced. Bradley, a high school all-American by two national publications, averaged 18 points and 15 rebounds to lead his team to a state title in 1974.

Julius Erving of the New York Nets was named the ABA's player of the year in a poll of ABA players conducted by the Sporting News.

Larry Fogle, the nation's leading collegiate scorer in the 1973-74 season, has dropped out of Canisius College, the school said, after Canisius declared Fogle ineligible last month for receiving improper financial assistance.

ABA President John Y. Brown of Louisville has ruled out the possibility the Memphis franchise might be moved to another city before the start of the 1975-76 season, saying the Sounds will either survive or fold.

Eddie Donovan has been named general manager of the New York Knicks, after five years at that post with the Buffalo Braves. Donovan served as general manager with the Knicks from 1965-70.

Mike Krzyzewski, an assistant coach at Indiana University, has been named head coach at Army.

The Buffalo Braves of the NBA are not threatening to move from the city, owner Paul Snyder said. The question came up during the negotiations for the team's lease renewal on Memorial Auditorium.

The NCAA has awarded post-graduate scholarships to 15 senior basketball players who played with distinction and maintained at least a B average. Included in the list was Bob Pritchard of Oklahoma.

FOOTBALL

The Baltimore Colts have signed Temple University quarterback Steve Joachim who finished 1974 as the total offense leader in college football.

The WFL will return to Jacksonville next year, with a team directed by former University of Miami head coach Charlie Tate, The Miami News reported.

Curly Culp has decided to remain with the Houston Oilers instead of switching to the WFL's Southern California Sun. Culp signed a four-year contract with the Oilers.

Craig Morton, apparently free of legal entanglements with the WFL, has signed a three-year contract for an estimated $300,000 with the New York Giants.

BOXING

Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali challenged George Foreman to a three-round exhibition match as part of Foreman's television fight against five fighters April 26. Ali said if Foreman "can prove worthy" during the three rounds, he would qualify for a rematch of their title fight in Zaire.

Muhammad Ali was sued for $20 million on charges he made "false, malicious and libelous" statements about referee Anthony Perez in his title defense against Chuck Wepner last month.

Video Techniques announced that Mac Foster has dropped out as one of the five fighters who will box three-round exhibitions with former champion George Foreman on April 26. Foster will be replaced by heavyweight Jerry Judge.

TENNIS

American Stan Smith easily defeated Yuji Tezuka of Japan, 6-1, 6-2, in the first round of the $60,000 WCT Red Group Kawasaki Classic tournament.

Romanian tennis star Ilie Nastase will defend his title in the British Championship Grand Prix tournament next month despite a lucrative offer from World Team Tennis to play a limited number of matches this summer.

Billie Jean King will be teamed with Tony Trabert and Pancho Gonzales with Rosemary Casals in the $60,000 Mixed Doubles Tennis Classic in Scottsdale, Ariz., May 3-4.

Chris Evert has been paired with Olga Morozova in the first semifinal match of the $100,000 L'Eggs World Series of Tennis.

Rain cut short the second day of the World Championship Tennis tournament Tuesday with only one match completed. Australian Ken Warwick made the quarterfinals, beating Patrice Dominguez, 7-6, 1-6, 6-4.

OTHER SPORTS

Madison Square Garden is up for sale for at least $60 million and two groups of "Arab oil interests" are interested in buying, a real estate consultant for the owners of the complex said.

Professional bowling great Don Carter was one of eight men inducted into the PBA Hall of Fame in Akron, Ohio. Others inducted were Frank Esposito, Chuck Pazzano, Dick Weber, Ray Bluth, Carmen Salvino, Harry Smith and the late Billy Welu.

Last year's top rookie Duane Carter Jr., and veterans Billy Vukovich and Lee Kunzman were named as drivers for entries in the May 25 Indianapolis 500 auto race.

The NCAA has advised college athletes that they will be ineligible for the rest of the season if they choose to make the China trip next month. A track and field team of 66 men and women will engage in a series of meets and clinics in mainland China May 16-30 under the auspices of the AAU.

The total of teams bowling 3,000 or better in the ABC tournament in Dayton, Ohio, has reached 29, possibly threatening the record of 55 registered last year at Indianapolis.

Cynthia Phipps' Singh, one of the top Kentucky Derby eligibles, will not run in Saturday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct because of strained ligaments, trainer John Russell said.

Carl Rosen retired Chris Evert, his champion three-year-old filly of 1974, to Claiborne Farm for breeding, possibly with Secretariat.

Clark Beedle, Southern Cal's top high jumper, has been lost for the track season with a broken foot, Trojan coach Vern Wolfe said.

NCAA Puts Damper On AAU China Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Longtime friction between the AAU and NCAA surfaced again Tuesday to throw a cloud over the projected China tour next month by a hand-picked U. S. track and field team.

Threat of suspension and possible loss of athletic scholarships was raised for college athletes who might be interested in the exotic trip to the vast and mysterious Chinese mainland.

The tour, sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union and involving 66 men and women competitors plus supervisory personnel, is scheduled May 1630 with meets and clinics in Canton, Shanghai and Peking.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, with headquarters in Kansas City, revealed a memorandum sent to the NCAA Council April 2 by the executive director of the NCAA, Walter Byers.

The memorandum called attention to the NCAA constitution stipulating that any college athlete competing on an outside team, other than a national team, is automatically ineligible in his sport for the rest of the season.

The memorandum further pointed out that a track and field athlete making the China trip could miss a number of important meets, including conference championships, scheduled for the last three weeks in May. There were 18 such meets over the same period in 1974.

Byers said the team being assembled for the trip is not a national team.

A college athlete making the trip also conceivably could be stripped of his athletic scholarship, although there was no threat of such action in Byers' memo. This falls into the province of the individual universities and not the NCAA.

Ollan Cassell, executive director of the AAU, expressed surprise at the NCAA action. "We had collegiate swimmers on national teams earlier this year before the NCAA Championships and the NCAA didn't say anything."

A State Department spokesman said he had had not been made aware of Byers' memo but added: "It wouldn't surprise me, based on past action."

The NCAA and AAU have been at loggerheads for years, their war threatening U. S. performance in the Olympic Games as well as U. S.-Soviet dual meets.

Such personalities as the late President John Kennedy and Gen. Douglas MacArthur sought to arbitrate a peace between the two groups without success. The NCAA pulled out of the U.S. Olympic movement after the 1972 Games in Munich.

Because athletes are priming for the 1976 Games in Montreal and because some top collegians may fear reprisal, the United States will not have its strongest team making the China tour.

Indications are that such stars as high jumper Dwight Stones, miler Tony Waldrop, polevaulter Dave Roberts and shotputters Al Feuerbach and George Woods will pass up the trip.

Chicago Fearing McNeill

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Dick Motta and his Chicago Bulls find they have more to worry about than Nate Archibald and Sam Lacey of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in their National Basketball Association playoff.

The newest problem is Larry McNeill who has taken 18 shots from the field and made 18 field goals in the series which stands at one game each with game No. 3 to be played Wednesday night in Chicago Stadium.

"It just doesn't figure, it isn't normal," said Motta. "McNeill is a 40 per cent shooter. He just can't keep hitting at a thousand per cent."

One of the reasons McNeill is hitting so well is the fact that the Bulls have been double teaming the dangerous Archibald with Bob Love falling off McNeill to help Norm Van Lier on Archibald.

"We're going to have to have a more honest defense," admitted Motta. "Love will have to watch McNeill more closely."

Van Lier agrees with his coach although it will put a heavier burden on him. "We never pulled gimmicks to stop anyone before," said Van Lier. "That's one reason McNeill's been so hot. Tiny (Archibald) gets him the ball when nobody's on him, he scores and his confidence goes up. Personally, I think I can watch Tiny man-to-man."

Archibald scored 24 points in Sunday's 102-95 loss to the Kings while Lacey dominated the boards with 20 rebounds. McNeill hit 12 of 12 from the field.

Lacey, forced to play against the Bulls' platoon pivotmen of Nate Thurmond and Tom Boerwinkle, was somewhat banged up with ankle and knee problems Sunday but insists he's ready for the third game.

"I wasn't tired Sunday," said Lacey. "I hurt my right knee and ankle but I wasn't tired. I can play against the two of them."

The fourth game of the best-of-seven series will be played at Kansas City Friday with game No. 5 slated for here Sunday afternoon.

Mansperger Takes Seattle Position

Seattle (UPI) — Dick Mansperger, director of player personnel for the Dallas Cowboys, Tuesday was named to the same position with the new Seattle franchise in the National Football League.

Mansperger, 42, with Dallas since 1966, played his collegiate football at Arizona State, graduating in 1958.

Seattle will begin play in 1976.

When it comes to learning more about NUTRITION you can count on us for the latest information.

Nutritional labeling of food—now available on many products—is designed to help you Read the Label... Set a Better Table. Many new food labels now appearing on our shelves will help make it possible for you to identify the nutritional content of foods you buy.

These new labels appear in the same format and provide the same basic information but may also contain additional information. You will be able to tell the size and number of the servings in the container, and how many calories and the amount of protein, carbohydrates and fat in each serving. The label will also give you the percentage of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances for protein and seven vitamins and minerals in each serving. The basis for the U.S.R.D.A. is the Recommended Daily Allowance (R.D.A.) established by the Foods Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council. The Recommended Daily Allowances (R.D.A.) are designed as a guide and include a margin to cover various individuals. The U.S.R.D.A. is the amount of protein, 19 minerals and vitamins considered adequate to maintain good health.

Food supplies the nutrients needed each day to maintain good health; but no one food can provide all the various nutrients needed, so it is essential we choose a variety each day. Watch the new labels to learn what key nutrients are in the foods you eat.

These labels can help you serve better balanced meals and snacks, help count calories, compare different foods to obtain all the needed nutrients, help avoid restricted foods for special diets, help you learn about new foods and the nutrients they supply. They will help you compare similar foods on a "cost-per-serving" basis and identify and find less costly alternatives of the more expensive foods.

Watch for these labels on the Foods you buy and Read the Label... Set a Better Table...

Anthony Leading Standings

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — If Earl Anthony can successfully defend his title in this week's Tournament of Champions at Akron, he will jump over $70,000 in earnings on the Professional Bowlers' Association tour.

The Tacoma, Wash., bowler already is far out in front in the 1975 pro bowling money derby with $46,050 in prize money after 12 tournaments.

That puts him nearly $15,000 ahead of Carmen Salvino of Chicago, who has earned $31,348 in 15 tournaments.

First prize in the $125,000 Tournament of Champions is $25,000.

Salvino earned $1,050 with a 23rd place finish at Toledo last weekend and holds a narrow edge over Nelson Burton Jr. of St.Louis. Burton jumped into third place with a $6,000 second prize at Toledo and now has won $31,245 for the year.

Others in the top 10 money winners include Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa., $25,628; Paul Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., $25,575; Dave Davis, Atlanta, Ga., $23,235; Larry Laub, San Francisco, $19,078; Gary Dickinson, Ft. Worth, Tex. $19,065; Mark Roth, Staten Island, N. Y., $18,728, and Johnny Petraglia, Staten Island, N. Y., $18,450.

Omaha Royals Open At Home

Soap Box Derby Meeting Scheduled

The second Lincoln organizational meeting for contestants in this year's Soap Box Derby is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the basement of the Bethany Medical Building at 65th and Holdrege, according to newly-appointed race director Dennis Douty.

"We had seven kids at our first meeting last week and since 15 or so have expressed interest, we should have between 20 and 22 at this Saturday's meeting," Douty said. "We're hoping that 25 kids enter the race."

The Lincoln Soap Box Derby set for July 13 on a hill at 52nd and R Sts. The rainout date is one week later, on July 20.

The Lincoln winner will advance to the national Soap Box Derby at Akron, O. on Aug. 16.

Douty can be contacted for further details.

LNE Girls Down Millard, 56-40

Pam Baker was a triple winner for Millard, but her effort failed to boost Millard past Northeast in a dual meet Tuesday.

The Northeast girls defeated Millard 56-40, at the Lincoln school.

Baker won the 80 hurdles with a :11.4 clocking, the 100 yard dash, turning in a :11.6 and capped her efforts with a win in the 220 at :27.6.

Good Times, Joe Namath May Be In WFL Future

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Football League, on the eve of its planned coming-out party, revealed Tuesday night that it has offered Joe Namath a long-term $4-million contract to play for the next three years.

League president Chris Hemmeter, who is set to announce here Wednesday that there will be a WFL in 1975, said a guaranteed offer had been made to Namath.

Hemmeter said the league was offering the New York Jets' quarterback a $500,000 bonus, a three-year contract at $500,000 per year and $100,000 per year for 20 years beginning in 1978, when the playing contract would end.

There was no immediate reaction from Namath, who is under contract to the Jets until May 1. However, the WFL made it very clear that it wants Namath, that it considers him a key to its future survival.

Sources at the league meeting said the offer to Namath would place him with the WFL's Chicago franchise, one which the league wants to make its flagship team in an effort to attract television money and create an image of respectability in a major urban area.

These sources also said that the prospective owners of the Chicago franchise were demanding the services of former Miami Dolphins Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield if the league is not successful in signing Namath. The Memphis team, which holds the rights to the former Dolphins, has said it would sell their contracts to a Chicago team if that were the only way to save the league.

Regardless, Hemmeter and other league officials scheduled a 10:30 a.m., EDT, news conference Wednesday to announce details of the league in 1975. Things can only get better for this league, which is expected to announce that between eight and 11 teams will make another run at respectability and profitability—two factors it has thus far lacked.

League officials have huddled in day-long meetings at the city's fashionable Waldorf-Astoria since last Friday, and a source who has sat in on the sessions said that by Tuesday night no one was sure just how many teams would compose the WFL, Part II.

These teams are set: Hawaii, Southern California, Shreveport, La., Philadelphia and Memphis. Teams considered nearly ready to play are San Antonio, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Fla., and Chicago. Possibilities include Charlotte, N.C., and Portland, Ore.

Whatever the WFL announces Wednesday, it will do it with an all-star lineup including Csonka, Warfield, Jim Kiick and Calvin Hill, all of whom plan to play in the league next season.

But the biggest drawing card of all would be Namath, and he's a prize the league desperately wants as it tries to recover from the disastrous first year, when $20 million was lost.

Hemmeter and other league officials continued meeting into the night Tuesday. Hemmeter said officials had agreed on the league's financial structure, and he said arrangements had been worked out to pay back salaries of 93 per cent of the players whose payrolls were not met last season.

He said discussions were continuing on what to do about the other seven per cent.

Hemmeter, who has almost single-handedly rescued the WFL from what seemed a certain death, has outlined a reorganization plan under which most league players will get less salary than last year. But since many of them weren't paid most of last year, a guaranteed check in 1975 might be considerably better.

Under Hemmeter's plan, those not in the superstar class will get a percentage—usually one per cent—of their team's gross revenue, with a $10,000 salary guaranteed if the club fails to take in $1 million.

The teams will be required to place all operating funds in escrowed bank accounts to assure that salaries and other bills are paid.

The league plans to play a 20-game schedule in 1975, but this year plans to play on weekends instead of weekdays, beginning the first weekend in August.

Southeast Tops Beatrice, 94-47

Perry Krogmier and Scott Pallman of Lincoln Southeast and Mike Dando of Beatrice were double winners in the dual meet at Southeast Tuesday.

Southeast won the meet, 94-47, winning all but one of the track events and all the relays.

Krogmier won the 100 and 220 races with times of :10.5 and :23.1, respectively.

Pallman won the 120 high hurdles and the 180 lows, turning in times of :15.7 in the highs and :21.6 in the lows.

NCAA Puts Damper On AAU China Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Longtime friction between the AAU and NCAA surfaced again Tuesday to throw a cloud over the projected China tour next month by a hand-picked U. S. track and field team.

Threat of suspension and possible loss of athletic scholarships was raised for college athletes who might be interested in the exotic trip to the vast and mysterious Chinese mainland

The tour, sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union and involving 66 men and women competitors plus supervisory personnel, is scheduled May 1630 with meets and clinics in Canton, Shanghai and Peking

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, with headquarters in Kansas City, revealed a memorandum sent to the NCAA Council April 2 by the executive director of the NCAA, Walter Byers

The memorandum called attention to the NCAA constitution stipulating that any college athlete competing on an outside team, other than a national team, is automatically ineligible in his sport for the rest of the season.

The memorandum further pointed out that a track and field athlete making the China trip could miss a number of important meets, including conference championships, scheduled for the last three weeks in May. There were 18 such meets over the same period in 1974.

Byers said the team being assembled for the trip is not a national team.

A college athlete making the trip also conceivably could be stripped of his athletic scholarship, although there was no threat of such action in Byers' memo. This falls into the province of the individual universities and not the NCAA.

Ollan Cassell, executive director of the AAU, expressed surprise at the NCAA action. "We had collegiate swimmers on national teams earlier this year before the NCAA Championships and the NCAA didn't say anything."

A State Department spokesman said he had had not been made aware of Byers' memo but added· "It wouldn't surprise me, based on past action."

The NCAA and AAU have been at loggerheads for years, their war threatening U. S. performance in the Olympic Games as well as U. S.-Soviet dual meets.

Such personalities as the late President John Kennedy and Gen. Douglas MacArthur sought to arbitrate a peace between the two groups without success. The NCAA pulled out of the U S. Olympic movement after the 1972 Games in Munich.

Because athletes are priming for the 1976 Games in Montreal and because some top collegians may fear reprisal, the United States will not have its strongest team making the China tour.

Indications are that such stars as high jumper Dwight Stones, miler Tony Waldrop, pole-vaulter Dave Roberts and shot-putters Al Feuerbach and George Woods will pass up the trip

Chicago Fearing McNeill

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Dick Motta and his Chicago Bulls find they have more to worry about than Nate Archibald and Sam Lacey of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in their National Basketball Association playoff.

The newest problem is Larry McNeill who has taken 18 shots from the field and made 18 field goals in the series which stands at one game each with game No. 3 to be played Wednesday night in Chicago Stadium.

"It just doesn't figure, it isn't normal," said Motta. "McNeill is a 40 per cent shooter He just can't keep hitting at a thousand per cent "

One of the reasons McNeill is hitting so well is the fact that the Bulls have been double teaming the dangerous Archibald with Bob Love falling off McNeill to help Norm Van Lier on Archibald

"We're going to have to have a more honest defense," admitted Motta "Love will have to watch McNeill more closely "

Van Lier agrees with his coach although it will put a heavier burden on him "We never pulled gimmicks to stop anyone before," said Van Lier "That's one reason McNeill's been so hot. Tiny (Archibald) gets him the ball when nobody's on him, he scores and his confidence goes up Personally, I think I can watch Tiny man-to-man "

Archibald scored 24 points in Sunday's 102-95 loss to the Kings while Lacey dominated the boards with 20 rebounds. McNeill hit 12 of 12 from the field.

Lacey, forced to play against the Bulls' platoon pivotmen of Nate Thurmond and Tom Boerwinkle, was somewhat banged up with ankle and knee problems Sunday but insists he's ready for the third game.

"I wasn't tired Sunday," said Lacey "I hurt my right knee and ankle but I wasn't tired. I can play against the two of them."

The fourth game of the best-of-seven series will be played at Kansas City Friday with game No. 5 slated for here Sunday afternoon.

Mansperger Takes Seattle Position

Seattle (UPI) — Dick Mansperger, director of player personnel for the Dallas Cowboys, Tuesday was named to the same position with the new Seattle franchise in the National Football League.

Mansperger, 42, with Dallas since 1966, played his collegiate football at Arizona State, graduating in 1958.

Seattle will begin play in 1976.

When it comes to learning more about NUTRITION you can count on us for the latest information.

Nutritional labeling of food—now available on many products—is designed to help you Read the Label... Set a Better Table. Many new food labels now appearing on our shelves will help make it possible for you to identify the nutritional content of foods you buy.

These new labels appear in the same format and provide the same basic information but may also contain additional information. You will be able to tell the size and number of the servings in the container, and how many calories and the amount of protein, carbohydrates and fat in each serving. The label will also give you the percentage of U S. Recommended Daily Allowances for protein and seven vitamins and minerals in each serving. The basis for the U.S.R.D.A. is the Recommended Daily Allowance (R.D.A.) established by the Foods Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council. The Recommended Daily Allowances (R.D.A.) are designed as a guide and include a margin to cover various individuals. The U.S.R.D.A. is the amount of protein, 19 minerals and vitamins considered adequate to maintain good health.

Food supplies the nutrients needed each day to maintain good health; but no one food can provide all the various nutrients needed, so it is essential we choose a variety each day. Watch the new labels to learn what key nutrients are in the foods you eat.

These labels can help you serve better balanced meals and snacks, help count calories, compare different foods to obtain all the needed nutrients, help avoid restricted foods for special diets, help you learn about new foods and the nutrients they supply. They will help you compare similar foods on a "cost-per-serving" basis and identify and find less costly alternatives of the more expensive foods.

Watch for these labels on the Foods you buy and Read the Label... Set a Better Table...

METRIC'S SPOKEN HERE...

It seems to be only a matter of time until the United States officially goes metric. The National Bureau of Standards points out the metric system is a simple, logical system of measurement of weights, distances, temperatures and dimensions based on multiples of 10. It has been almost universally adopted with only five countries not using the metric system — the United States, Liberia, Yemen, Burma and Brunei. That means the United States is the last major nation that has not "gone metric".

Many United States business and governmental agencies have made a commitment to metrics and many have already begun the transformation by retooling plants, redesigning equipment and incorporating metrics into their systems and products. Some examples are:

The Education Amendment of 1974 authorized federal funds to help teach metrics beginning in 1975. Even though no funds have been allocated yet, this provision is seen as an indication of Presidential and Congressional support.

Many packaged foods already show the metric measurement in addition to the customary system.

The Treasury Department has recently announced all domestic and imported wines will be bottled in seven standard metric sizes beginning January 1, 1979.

The 7-Up manufacturer says they will offer their product in liter and half-liter sizes (about 5% larger than the quart and pint).

Some housewares such as bathroom scales, kitchenware such as measuring cups and spoons and cookbooks are available with metric measurement.

Many clothing patterns and notions for the home sewer show both metric and customary sizing and measurements.

It's time we begin to become familiar with this different system. You can get more information from the Metric Information Office, National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C. 20234. Or I have some materials showing some of the more common conversions into metric. Just ask for "Metrics Spoken Here"... I'll be glad to help...

Good Times, Joe Namath May Be In WFL Future

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Football League, on the eve of its planned coming-out party, revealed Tuesday night that it has offered Joe Namath a long-term $4-million contract to play for the next three years.

League president Chris Hemmeter, who is set to announce here Wednesday that there will be a WFL in 1975, said a guaranteed offer had been made to Namath.

Hemmeter said the league was offering the New York Jets' quarterback a $500,000 bonus, a three-year contract at $500,000 per year and $100,000 per year for 20 years beginning in 1978, when the playing contract would end.

There was no immediate reaction from Namath, who is under contract to the Jets until May 1. However, the WFL made it very clear that it wants Namath, that it considers him a key to its future survival.

Sources at the league meeting said the offer to Namath would place him with the WFL's Chicago franchise, one which the league wants to make its flagship team in an effort to attract television money and create an image of respectability in a major urban area.

These sources also said that the prospective owners of the Chicago franchise were demanding the services of former Miami Dolphins Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield if the league is not successful in signing Namath. The Memphis team, which holds the rights to the former Dolphins, has said it would sell their contracts to a Chicago team if that were the only way to save the league.

Regardless, Hemmeter and other league officials scheduled a 10:30 a.m., EDT, news conference Wednesday to announce details of the league in 1975. Things can only get better for this league, which is expected to announce that between eight and 11 teams will make another run at respectability and profitability—two factors it has thus far lacked.

League officials have huddled in day-long meetings at the city's fashionable Waldorf-Astoria since last Friday, and a source who has sat in on the sessions said that by Tuesday night no one was sure just how many teams would compose the WFL, Part II.

These teams are set: Hawaii, Southern California, Shreveport, La., Philadelphia and Memphis. Teams considered nearly ready to play are San Antonio, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Fla., and Chicago. Possibilities include Charlotte, N.C., and Portland, Ore.

Whatever the WFL announces Wednesday, it will do it with an all-star lineup including Csonka, Warfield, Jim Kiick and Calvin Hill, all of whom plan to play in the league next season.

But the biggest drawing card of all would be Namath, and he's a prize the league desperately wants as it tries to recover from the disastrous first year, when $20 million was lost.

Hemmeter and other league officials continued meeting into the night Tuesday. Hemmeter said officials had agreed on the league's financial structure, and he said arrangements had been worked out to pay back salaries of 93 per cent of the players whose payrolls were not met last season.

He said discussions were continuing on what to do about the other seven per cent.

Hemmeter, who has almost single-handedly rescued the WFL from what seemed a certain death, has outlined a reorganization plan under which most league players will get less salary than last year. But since many of them weren't paid most of last year, a guaranteed check in 1975 might be considerably better.

Under Hemmeter's plan, those not in the superstar class will get a percentage—usually one per cent—of their team's gross revenue, with a $10,000 salary guaranteed if the club fails to take in $1 million.

The teams will be required to place all operating funds in escrowed bank accounts to assure that salaries and other bills are paid.

The league plans to play a 20-game schedule in 1975, but this year plans to play on weekends instead of weekdays, beginning the first weekend in August.

Southeast Tops Beatrice, 94-47

Perry Krogmier and Scott Pallman of Lincoln Southeast and Mike Dando of Beatrice were double winners in the dual meet at Southeast Tuesday.

Southeast won the meet, 94-47, winning all but one of the track events and all the relays.

Krogmier won the 100 and 220 races with times of :10.5 and :23.1, respectively.

Pallman won the 120 high hurdles and the 180 lows, turning in times of :15.7 in the highs and :21.6 in the lows.

Dando led Beatrice to winning four of the field events. Dando took first in the shot put with a heave of 55-6 and won the discus with a 141-2 mark.

Cage Awards To Ballard, Cole

Rodney Ballard and Kevin Cole were named outstanding players for the Big and Little Fry basketball programs Saturday at the 1975 awards day at the Salvation Army Community Center gym.

Ballard plays for the COSMOS in the Big Fry league, and Cole plays for Wentz Plumbing & Heating in Little Fry action.

The coaches' awards went to Gary Smith and Rex Marquart for Bouwen's Plumbing & Heating in Big Fry, and Larry White and Dave Jones in the Little Fry league.

The Big Fry tournament winner was VFW #131, which also won the league play title. Bouwen's Plumbing & Heating was the Big Fry runnerup.

Moose Lodge #175 won the Little Fry playoffs, with the Trophy Shop coming in second and Wentz Plumbing & Heating placing third.

Kidnaping Law Said Unconstitutional

By United Press International

Attorneys for a man convicted of kidnaping a Blair policeman told the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday that the state's kidnaping statute is unconstitutional.

"The kidnaping statute under which appellant was convicted is on its face and, as construed by the district court, vague and overly broad and thus unconstitutional as a violation of due process," said attorneys for Gary Lynn Saltzman.

In the first place, the attorneys told the high court, the kidnaping law fails to clearly define exactly what kidnaping is and further fails to set forth different degrees of the crime as do the statues of other states.

In short, the attorneys said, under the definitions provided in the Nebraska law a violation of it could "include nearly anything" and thus too much discretion is left in the hands of law enforcement officers, prosecutors and the courts.

"Such discretion is contrary to our constitutional form of government," the attorneys said.

In the alternative of reversing and dismissing the case against Saltzman, the attorneys requested a new trial on the grounds the jury in the case received faulty instructions.

Also cited as grounds for a new trial was an objection to the Washington County district court's decision to admit into evidence the confession of a codefendant, Billy Boyce.

In the case, which occurred Oct. 27, 1974, records said Boyce and Saltzman abducted Officer William J. Schnur and tried to get him to take them to the home of the county prosecutor, Roy Anderson.

Schnur said he didn't know where Anderson lived and he was taken, in his police car, to south of Blair, where Schnur was released. The next day both men turned themselves in to the county sheriff.

Action To Ensure R.I. Tax Payment Eyed

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said he may take action in the next few weeks to make sure the Rock Island Railroad makes good on its 1974 property taxes.

The line, involved in bankruptcy proceedings, has already paid the first half of the $55,000 it owes nine southeastern Nebraska counties for the 1974 taxes.

The railroad has paid the first half of the $16,295 tax assessment in Lancaster County, according to the county treasurer's records.

Peters' said he might be intervening in the bankruptcy proceedings with tax claims to make sure the second half of the taxes are paid.

The Rock Island's taxes will not become delinquent unless they are not paid by July 1.

Miki Leaving Later

Tokyo (UPI) —Prime Minister Takeo Miki plans to leave Aug. 1 or 2 for Washington for talks with President Ford.

Claim Filed Against State In Chadron Fire

Who should pick up the bill for fighting a forest fire at Chadron State Park?

The U.S. Forest Service has filed a claim against the state for $85,913 for men, planes and chemicals used to fight the Deadhorse Fire which blackened several thousand acres of pine forest in northwest Nebraska on July 6, 1973.

The State Claims Board decided to study the matter further Tuesday after reviewing correspondence from the Forest Service, the State Military Department and fire officials.

The Forest Service has said federal disaster funds cannot be used to pay the bill, since a disaster declaration was never issued. State officials, however, said they did not ask for federal aid, although the Chadron fire chief did.

Omaha Council OKs Lottery

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha City Council voted four to three Tuesday in Favor of a city lottery.

A spokesman for the City Betterment Corp., a nonprofit corporation which will run the lottery, said tickets should be available in 10 weeks, selling for 50 cents each.

Weekly prizes of up to $50,000 will be awarded.

Officials have estimated the odds are 140 to 1 to 250 to 1 against anyone holding a winning ticket.

Tickets will be sold at retail outlets throughout Omaha.

Proceeds estimated at $2 million are to be split between city government and the corporation. The corporation's half is to be used to help pay for a parking garage in the planned downtown superblock.

Officials said the 1,600-stall garage may cost $8 million.

Hall County Jail Will Stay Open

Grand Island (UPI) — Two Hall County district judges Tuesday accepted a report from County Sheriff Charles Headley and ordered that the county jail in Grand Island remain open.

Judges Donald Weaver and Lloyd Kelley Jr. had ordered certain conditions in the jail corrected by 5 p.m. Wednesday or threatened to close it.

In a report to the judges and to the County Board Tuesday, Headley indicated the conditions had been corrected.

The improvement areas included the hiring of a fulltime cook in accordance with State Health Department standards, a semi-monthly dietary inspection by a certified dietician, the hiring of 12 fulltime male non-law enforcement personnel to staff the jail and the hiring of three female non-law enforcement workers on an on call basis for female prisoners.

In addition, Headley said all state fire marshal requirements as well as those included in a recent State Health Department report had been met. He said the jail's ventilating system had been thoroughly cleaned and was operational.

Last week, Weaver and Kelley suspended an order to close the jail because they said Headley and the County Board were showing "sufficient progress" to warrant keeping the jail open.

METRIC'S SPOKEN HERE...

It seems to be only a matter of time until the United States officially goes metric. The National Bureau of Standards points out the metric system is a simple, logical system of measurement of weights, distances, temperatures and dimensions based on multiples of 10. It has been almost universally adopted with only five countries not using the metric system - the United States, Liberia, Yemen, Burma and Brunei. That means the United States is the last major nation that has not "gone metric".

Many United States business and governmental agencies have made a committment to metrics and many have already begun the transformation by retooling plants, redesigning equipment and incorporating metrics into their systems and products. Some examples are:

The Education Amendment of 1974 authorized federal funds to help teach metrics beginning in 1975. Even though no funds have been allocated yet, this provision is seen as an indication of Presidential and Congressional support.

Many packaged foods already show the metric measurement in addition to the customary system.

The Treasury Department has recently announced all domestic and imported wines will be bottled in seven standard metric sizes beginning January 1, 1979.

The 7-Up manufacturer says they will offer their product in liter and half-liter sizes (about 5% larger than the quart and pint).

Some housewares such as bathroom scales, kitchenware such as measuring cups and spoons and cookbooks are available with metric measurement.

Many clothing patterns and notions for the home sewer show both metric and customary sizing and measurements.

It's time we begin to become familiar with this different system. You can get more information from the Metric Information Office, National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C., 20234. Or I have some materials showing some of the more common conversions into metric. Just ask for "Metrics Spoken Here" . . . I'll be glad to help . . .

Kidnaping Law Said Unconstitutional

By United Press International

Attorneys for a man convicted of kidnaping a Blair policeman told the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday that the state's kidnaping statute is unconstitutional.

"The kidnaping statute under which appellant was convicted is on its face and, as construed by the district court, vague and overly broad and thus unconstitutional as a violation of due process," said attorneys for Gary Lynn Saltzman.

In the first place, the attorneys told the high court, the kidnaping law fails to clearly define exactly what kidnaping is and further fails to set forth different degrees of the crime as do the statues of other states.

In short, the attorneys said, under the definitions provided in the Nebraska law a violation of it could "include nearly anything" and thus too much discretion is left in the hands of law enforcement officers, prosecutors and the courts.

"Such discretion is contrary to our constitutional form of government," the attorneys said.

In the alternative of reversing and dismissing the case against Saltzman, the attorneys requested a new trial on the grounds the jury in the case received faulty instructions.

Also cited as grounds for a new trial was an objection to the Washington County district court's decision to admit into evidence the confession of a codefendant, Billy Boyce.

In the case, which occurred Oct. 27, 1974, records said Boyce and Saltzman abducted Officer William J. Schnur and tried to get him to take them to the home of the county prosecutor, Roy Anderson.

Schnur said he didn't know where Anderson lived and he was taken, in his police car, to south of Blair, where Schnur was released. The next day both men turned themselves in to the county sheriff.

Action To Ensure R.I. Tax Payment Eyed

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said he may take action in the next few weeks to make sure the Rock Island Railroad makes good on its 1974 property taxes.

The line, involved in bankruptcy proceedings, has already paid the first half of the $55,000 it owes nine southeastern Nebraska counties for the 1974 taxes.

The railroad has paid the first half of the $16,295 tax assessment in Lancaster County, according to the county treasurer's records.

Peters' said he might be intervening in the bankruptcy proceedings with tax claims to make sure the second half of the taxes are paid.

The Rock Island's taxes will not become delinquent unless they are not paid by July 1.

Miki Leaving Later

Tokyo (UPI) —Prime Minister Takeo Miki plans to leave Aug. 1 or 2 for Washington for talks with President Ford.

Claim Filed Against State In Chadron Fire

Who should pick up the bill for fighting a forest fire at Chadron State Park?

The U.S. Forest Service has filed a claim against the state for $85,913 for men, planes and chemicals used to fight the Deadhorse Fire which blackened several thousand acres of pine forest in northwest Nebraska on July 6, 1973.

The State Claims Board decided to study the matter further Tuesday after reviewing correspondence from the Forest Service, the State Military Department and fire officials.

The Forest Service has said federal disaster funds cannot be used to pay the bill, since a disaster declaration was never issued. State officials, however, said they did not ask for federal aid, although the Chadron fire chief did.

Omaha Council OKs Lottery

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha City Council voted four to three Tuesday in Favor of a city lottery.

A spokesman for the City Betterment Corp., a nonprofit corporation which will run the lottery, said tickets should be available in 10 weeks, selling for 50 cents each.

Weekly prizes of up to $50,000 will be awarded.

Officials have estimated the odds are 140 to 1 to 250 to 1 against anyone holding a winning ticket.

Tickets will be sold at retail outlets throughout Omaha.

Proceeds estimated at $2 million are to be split between city government and the corporation. The corporation's half is to be used to help pay for a parking garage in the planned downtown superblock.

Officials said the 1,600-stall garage may cost $8 million.

Hall County Jail Will Stay Open

Grand Island (UPI) — Two Hall County district judges Tuesday accepted a report from County Sheriff Charles Headley and ordered that the county jail in Grand Island remain open.

Judges Donald Weaver and Lloyd Kelley Jr. had ordered certain conditions in the jail corrected by 5 p.m. Wednesday or threatened to close it.

In a report to the judges and to the County Board Tuesday, Headley indicated the conditions had been corrected.

The improvement areas included the hiring of a fulltime cook in accordance with State Health Department standards, a semi-monthly dietary inspection by a certified dietician, the hiring of 12 fulltime male non-law enforcement personnel to staff the jail and the hiring of three female non-law enforcement workers on an on call basis for female prisoners.

In addition, Headley said all state fire marshal requirements as well as those included in a recent State Health Department report had been met. He said the jail's ventilating system had been thoroughly cleaned and was operational.

Last week, Weaver and Kelley suspended an order to close the jail because they said Headley and the County Board were showing "sufficient progress" to warrant keeping the jail open.
